One Says South, One North New Bombers, Good News Torch Squad Marches On Snakes as Strike Aids

Paris, June 25—William H. Murray, called by his friends "Alfalfa Bill," once a colonizer in Bolivia, lately governor of Oklahoma, advises American cotton farmers, "Go try your fortune in the Argentine Chaco."

Wonderful land, that Chaco region. Says he:

"The lands of the Chaco, both Bolivian and Argentine, are richer on the whole than our lands, very fine for cotton, corn, sugar and all kinds of vegetables.

"Cotton in the Bolivian Chaco is perennial. You find cotton trees growing wild in the forest. The American farmer will find that it will grow for years from one planting, and will make a better crop the second and third year than the first."

Another adviser of Americans, whose specialty is finance, and what is going to happen to stocks, money and business, advises the cautious American to put some of his money in Canada, to be sure of safety in case something unfortunate should happen in the way of Fascism or Communism.

Old Greeley did not advise young Americans to go South to the Argentine, or North to Canada, but to "go West," in the United States.

That is still good advice. You can succeed if you go East, West, North, South, anywhere between the Rio Grande and Canadian border; success depends on what you take with you, in your head, not on what you collect on the way.

The United States navy has ordered 191 "bomber" airplanes; cheerful small news.

It is to be hoped that the government is trying to build bomber planes able to fly any ocean.

If war came, our bombing operations could be carried on in countries across the Atlantic or the Pacific. We should not want to do any bombing in America. After the first experiment, no country would send any ships within easy bombing or submarine range of these shores.

Our country would need the world's biggest flock of the fastest, most destructive speed planes to drive off invading bombers, and such a fleet of long-range bombing planes as would enable Uncle Sam to say to the world:

"We want only peace, we hate war. I do not want to hurt anybody. But I do ask you to come over and see for yourselves that if you were foolish enough to attack the United States, I could, within a week, destroy every city in your country."

To say that and be able to DO it would prevent war.

Detroit reports that the Black Legion forces included a "torch squad," organized to burn down houses of those not approved by "Black Legion" authorities. Members of the squad admit burning one house.

That sort of thing happens in a country unable to deal with a crime wave. Our only excuse is that crime was financed by gigantic earnings of bootlegging in prohibition.

Strikes are old, often dull; this one is "news." At Granada, Spain, picturesque Moors, hired to charm snakes with music, went on strike for more money after one Moor got a raise of thirty cents a day.

Can you imagine the surprise of those Moors if the snakes should go on strike with "We refuse to be charmed, unless we get more mice," or whatever they eat.

You are told, and it can be proved, that while men have made good progress in science and knowledge of all kinds, the progress has been very slight inside of the human skull.

The average of intelligence in the British House of Commons, it is said, does not equal the average intelligence of free citizenship two or three centuries before Christ.

The wife of a missionary returned from the Congo regions is the first white woman that ever recovered from the bite of a tsetse fly.

Scorpions, rattlesnakes, mad dogs may bite you, and you recover. But the bite of that little brown fly means death. It doesn't mean much elsewhere, but it means a lot in Africa.

A German scientist is believed to have discovered a remedy for the disease. It hasn't yet been proved.

GOVERNOR CURLEY LEO CURLEY

Smiling broadly, and feeling "fit as a fiddle," Governor James M. Curley is shown at South Station today as he boarded the Philadelphia special, which will take him to the Democratic National Convention, where he may be named a candidate for the vice-presidency. The Governor is accompanied by his son, Leo Curley, a Georgetown university graduate.

Cambridge Fire Truck Hits Car, Autoist Dying

Crushed in his coupe by a Cambridge fire truck today, Robert Williger, 63, of 53 Columbia street, Cambridge, was reported dying at Cambridge City Hospital.

James J. Glennan was treated at the hospital for an injured right arm.

The crash occurred at Portland and Cambridge streets as Rescue Company No. 1, from the Harvard station, was responding to an alarm from a "hoodoo" box, No. 13, in Lechmere square.

Williger drove out of Portland street to cross Cambridge street along which the fire truck was going.

The truck, driven by Fireman Edward J. Tobin, was following the car of Deputy Chief George Church. Police said Williger crossed behind the deputy chief's car and in front of the rescue truck.

TWO-THIRDS RULE DOOMED; 'DEAL' SPLIT

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 25—Delayed by heated arguments over the platform and the abrogation of the century-old two-thirds nominating rule, the Democratic national convention held a brief half-hour session today and then recessed until 8 o'clock tonight.

At tonight's session they will kick the old Jacksonian rule into the discard and they may get to the platform, although that was in doubt when the convention recessed shortly before 1 o'clock.

The vote on the rules committee to knock out the old rule was 36 to 13, with New York, Indiana and Massachusetts, surprisingly enough, voting with the southerners to uphold it.

CAMERA EYE HALTED AT 2 TRACKS

The Massachusetts State Racing Commission today ruled that until further notice no photographic finish pictures taken at Suffolk Downs or Agawam Park will be considered official.

This action followed a conference at the offices of the commission attended by Charles F. Connors, chairman of the commission, and Commissioner William Ensign. Suffolk Downs was represented by Allan Wilson, Herman Conkling and William Almy, and by placing judges, Charles Stickney and Hart Dernhan.

The Waite movie camera has been in operation at Suffolk Downs for several days.

MORE TESTS DUE

Allan Wilson said that Suffolk Downs will conduct further tests of the camera, among which will be pictures taken from both sides of the track to be compared with the movie camera pictures.

In the second race of the Wednesday program, after placing judges called for pictures of the finish, they ruled that Keokee and Pompey's Squaw had finished in a dead heat for first place. Pompey's Squaw was the horse nearest the camera, but in the opinion of most persons near the finish line Keokee was the winner.

The same type of camera has been in use at Agawam Park, Springfield, but there have not been any disputes regarding finishes at that track.

The commission made it clear it is not banning the camera finish decisions for all time from Massachusetts. In the official statement the phrase "until further notice was used."

JUDGES TO ACT

As a result of the action today by the commission finishes at Suffolk Downs and at Agawam will be called by the placing judges as was the case before the camera finish plan was introduced.

It is likely that in the event the commission later on is satisfied that photo finishes are reliable that they will again be used.

The official statement follows:

"The Massachusetts State Racing Commission has ruled that until further notice no photographic finishes will be considered official."

FIGHT FARLEY BAN ON BOOM FOR CURLEY

Philadelphia, June 25—The crash of "Big Jim" Farley's fist on the vice-presidential boom for Governor Curley of Massachusetts today sounded a note that promised to develop into a symphony of discord by nightfall.

The postmaster-general is determined to see that none other than Vice-President John N. Garner be selected as Roosevelt's running mate. And the Bay State delegation to this Democratic convention is just as determined that Governor Curley get national recognition.

Plans call for a reception to the governor tonight at the Broad street railroad station that will grow into a march of triumph before he reaches Convention Hall. Four bands will escort him along the two-mile route.

'Old Timers' Play For 15,000

By BILL GRIMES

National League Field, June 25—Before a gathering of 15,000 the Old Timers Day marking the 50th anniversary of the National League was staged today at National League Park, prior to the regular double-header between the Bees and Cubs.

Two old timer nines played a three-inning game which was very entertaining to the fans as well as the present day major leaguers.

In the old timers' game Boston beat Chicago 2 to 1. A feature of the game was the head first sliding of the base runners and the mobbing of the umpire for what was alleged to be a bad decision at the plate.

Nail Is Removed From Boy's Lung

Philadelphia, June 25 (AP)—A nail lodged in the lung of Melvin Rogers for 18 months was removed at Temple University Hospital today, less than 24 hours after he arrived from Australia.

The Rogers boy, who made the 9000-mile journey with his mother, was "doing nicely," the hospital said. Removal of the three-inch wire nail through a bronchoscope required seven minutes.

Blood Tests Solve Heart Balm Case

New York, June 25 (AP)—A breach of promise suit brought by Miss Mary Schirp against George H. Hatch, a cotton converter, alleging he was the father of her four-year-old boy, was dismissed in supreme court today on Hatch's plea that blood tests showed he was not the boy's parent.

Miss Schirp had asked $500,000. Justice Louis A. Valente announced the suit dismissed "for lack of prosecution."

3 WOUNDED IN BANK CAR HOLDUP

Lawrence, June 25—Two bandits were critically wounded in a desperate gun battle that foiled an attempted $19,000 bank car holdup at the Lawrence railroad depot today.

They were wounded by Abbott Corkum, 30-year-old Bay State Merchants bank chauffeur, who himself was shot through the left knee in the encounter. Two bandits escaped.

More than 150 persons, waiting to board the 10:28 Boston and Maine express train to Boston, witnessed the dramatic battle in which a score of shots were exchanged.

The three wounded men were taken to Lawrence General Hospital.

REFUSES TO TALK

From one bandit, dying with a gaping wound in his stomach, police tried to learn the identity of himself and his companions.

"Nothing doing," he gasped. "I won't tell you anything."

Doctors said he had but a short time to live—couldn't recover.

Nor would the second robber, who was shot through the spine, say anything.

Their companion got away in a large sedan, whose registration numbers were taken by bystanders. A fourth man was at the wheel.

SUPREME COURT BLAMED FOR RECOVERY DELAY

'BLIND, IMPARTIAL JUSTICE' LASHED BY ROBINSON

Philadelphia, June 25 (US)—Democrats heard the clarion call for party solidarity when Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, who will be made permanent chairman of the Democratic National Convention today, addressed the second day of convention.

After a brief introduction the Senator plunged into a criticism of Governor Alfred M. Landon, of Kansas, the Republican nominee whom, he said, had already indicated "a disposition to bolt on five or more subjects on which his party had spoken."

Robinson, on the contrary, contended that the Democratic party had "faithfully complied with the spirit of the Chicago platform." Any "partial departure as to the letter of its planks," he said, was attributable to "constantly changing conditions and necessities and to the guerilla warfare of the Republicans."

But of Landon he said:

"The principal concern of the recent Republican convention at Cleveland was to reconcile its candidate for the presidency with the declarations embraced in its platform.

"Bolts Platform"

"It was not the first time in our history that a nominee, in advance of accepting the nomination, has placed his interpretation on the language employed, but it is the first instance in which a candidate, by keeping silent on national public questions, and after maneuvering himself into a position assuring his election has indicated a disposition to bolt on five or more subjects on which his party had spoken.

"It is also the first case in which a platform committee and convention has anticipated the purpose of a prospective nominee to break away in a direction opposite to their movement by declaring that it would constitute a breach of public faith and private honor should he fail or refuse to conform to the policies laid down for his guidance."

Cites 5 Points

Senator Robinson cited the five points on which he said that Landon was prepared to bolt his platform as follows:

1—That Landon, prior to his nomination, telephoned from Topeka that he would like to embody in the platform a declaration putting all postoffice employes, including the postmaster-general, under civil service. Neither the platform committee nor the convention, Robinson said, would stand for putting cabinet officers under civil service.

2—Landon desired a plank seeking an amendment to the Constitution which would overcome the Supreme Court decision denying to states the right to fix hours of labor, working conditions and wages. His application was denied by the committee.

3—Landon holds out for a return to the gold standard and a currency convertible into gold. The Republican convention gave him no support, Robinson said.

4—Landon is at variance with his platform on the subject of tariffs, according to Robinson. The Republican candidate, he said, through the Kansas delegation suggested a plank looking directly to lower tariffs. The plank, as adopted is a compromise, Robinson declared.

5—Landon favors adherence to the World Court, Robinson insisted. He said that after the platform committee had inserted the plank pledging the United States not to become a member of the World Court, but that Landon called up from Topeka and asked that the abandonment of the court be reconsidered. His request was rejected, Robinson went on to say:

"Breach of Faith"

"This bit of convention history discloses that the platform committee in the Republican convention doubted whether the candidate would carry out the platform and that they sought to bind him by the unusual charge, made in advance, that if he failed to do so his action would constitute a breach of faith and honor."

Robinson then proceeded to a somewhat detailed history of the conduct of the present administration beginning with the election of President Roosevelt in 1932. He said:

"Because of the policies of three Republican administrations extending over a period of 12 years a condition existed March 4th, 1933 which cannot be adequately described.

"Breakdown was threatened in the government of several states as well as in that of the nation. Millions of laborers were out of work.

"The spectre of poverty cast its appalling shadow over the land. Credit sources were dried up, financial institutions were bankrupt, factories were closing down, agriculture was profitless, the savings of cities were being swept away, business was at a standstill, our foreign commerce had almost disappeared and hoarding was general.

"You have not forgotten, can you ever forget the gloom, the sorrow and the distress which clouded the hopes and hampered the activities of all our people?

"President Hoover seemed powerless to suggest any method by which the engulfing tides of adversity might be impeded or turned back. All he could do, apparently, was to boast a refracted vision, which he claimed enabled him to see prosperity around corners.

Hoover, Veterans

"Having employed the army to drive from the Capital thousands of hungry war veterans, he retired to the cloister of the White House and indulged in crystal gazing to predict the quick return of better times, which never began to return until after he had been retired to the auto-baked gardens of Palo Alto to give place to the new leader of the nation."

Facing these conditions, Robinson said, President Roosevelt entered office. There was immediately devised the federal emergency relief administration, the civil conservation corps and the civil works administration. He said:

"The civil works administration, when first established, was ridiculed as a useless and costly experiment.

"In spite of the contempt of those who had stood motionless and dumb while the catastrophe was approaching, the organization has demonstrated its effectiveness for keeping deserving young men from becoming hoboes, and for giving them useful employment in the construction of highways, the improvement of public parks, buildings and grounds, the reforestation of denuded areas and in other helpful spheres of labor.

"Now the value of the emergency conservation corps is so well recognized that former President Hoover vainly boasts that he was it originator.

Planning Need

"The civil works administration required comprehensive planning. It was difficult to find useful employment in the neighborhood where the unemployed were located.

"The concensus of opinion is that more than 75 per cent of the funds expended through that agency was of substantial and permanent advantage to the communities in which the work was carried on."

The works progress administration, Robinson said, was devised to take more than 3,500,000 laborers off the dole.

"Manifestly the number on Federal relief rolls could not be concentrated in the communities where public buildings and similar works could be located so that it became necessary to plan for the employment of the majority of them in or near the communities where they lived.

"To accomplish this, undertakings of a less permanent character than those contemplated by the Public Works Administration became indispensable.

"The opposition have described these expenditures as wasteful and foolish but the theory of the Works Progress Administration is that it is better to give those who are willing to work the opportunity to do so than to make them dependent upon charity or the government dole.

"No one dares advocate that those who cannot get work shall be permitted to starve."

The Senator then said that opponents of the administration advocate that government funds appropriated for relief should be disbursed by the states on the ground that this would eliminate politics and prevent waste and corruption. Robinson said that experience had not proved that to be true. He said:

"With respect to politics the record shows that there have been less abuses than under any other plan that has been employed. State officers are not exempt from political influence. Indeed local pressure on state and county officers might prove irresistible and overpowering.

"There is no plan conceivable under which no waste will occur and under which all abuses may be prevented.

WPA Supervision

"So long as the national government provides the major portion of the sums necessary for the unemployed it must, for its own protection and for the protection of those who are required to pay the bill, retain a liberal measure of supervision both as to the purpose and manner of the expenditures.

"The drain on the national treasury has been great, it must be reduced as soon and as rapidly as circumstances permit.

"But unemployment assistance cannot be abandoned so long as there are large groups of American men and women unable to find an opportunity to earn an honest livelihood."

Declaring that "managed currency" is the soundest in the world, Senator Robinson said:

"To prevent our foreign trade from being taken away from us by competitors and to avoid further contraction of credit which threatened, we reduced the gold content of the dollar. We did not create an unsound currency. The United States currency is the soundest in the world. We propose to keep it so.

"Almost everybody realizes that there can be no return to the gold standard under present conditions without penalizing our economy and without injury to producers of agricultural products.

"The Cleveland platform declares for the repeal of the reciprocal tariff law, and for an embargo on livestock, dairy and agricultural products. To repeal this law and to declare embargoes will virtually mean the end of our foreign commerce.

"American ships will rot at their docks and our vessels will disappear from the seas. Under the Republican policy surpluses will continue to pile up in the home market to the ruin of American producers."

Supreme Court

On the question of the Supreme Court, Robinson said:

"Decisions of the Supreme Court in various cases have had the effect of slowing up national recovery because they have held invalid the National Recovery Act, the Agricultural Adjustment Act, the Guffey coal law and some other laws intended to prevent labor controversies, eliminate unfair competition and to secure fair prices for agricultural products.

"In spite of these decisions the American people are going forward.

"We recognize that decisions of the Supreme Court are final until reversed and we will abide by them.

"Nevertheless we do not regard the court above and beyond those factors and causes which naturally influence the minds of human beings.

"Whatever may be the just basis for differences of opinion respecting other decisions, the bar of the United States overwhelmingly repudiates the denial by the Supreme Court of the right to regulate maximum hours and minimum wages.

"Oh, blind and impartial justice, what blunders are committed in thy name!"

War Debt Blame

"The blame for this blunder in the conduct of international affairs must be laid where it belongs, namely, on the shoulders of the sage of Palo Alto.

"The Democratic administration seeks to protect small businesses against the great combinations which crush them and drive them out of existence. It has terminated the reign of gangsters by destroying the kidnaper, the national bank robber and the outlaw who seeks refuge in flight to other states from the place of his crime.

"Our platform is to be read in the record of the international law enforcement ever recorded in the history of the nation."

Youth, Old-Line Jeffersonian Meet

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

SEN. McADOO "JIM" ROOSEVELT MRS. McADOO

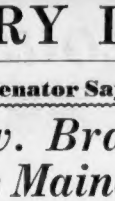
Exchanging the viewpoints of Young Democrats and Old-line Jeffersonians at the national convention in Philadelphia were James Roosevelt, son of the President, William Gibbs McAdoo, and the wife of the Senator from California.

The Senator Says:

Gov. Brann Gets His Maine Bridges

Philadelphia, June 25—Timmy is just starting to call the roll of states at the morning caucus in the Adelphia tap room when in comes The Senator arrayed for a slow track.

What The Senator is arrayed in is rubber boots and a New Bedford sou'wester and all he is missing is a codfish over his left shoulder.



The Senator

"Senator," says Timmy, "the men must work and the women must weep and the boys at the bar are moaning. What's yours?"

"Timmy," says The Senator, "what will have to go with my costume is a small dollop of New England rum of the finest. The reason I am rigged out like Captain Sykes is for the parade of the Mummers tonight."

"Senator," says Timmy, "if you can make anything in that outfit you should win the nomination."

"Timmy," says The Senator, with great dignity, "this is a different kind of Mummer than which you are thinking, so perhaps we had better drop it. Speaking of the nomination, if they do not hurry up with it the election will be over.

"Yesterday they start calling it the slow motion convention instead of the tin ear convention, and this morning there is a widespread rumor that if they do not step it up to at least a creep Postmaster-General Farley will be the only one left to vote."

While Timmy is preparing the New England rum of the finest after the roll of the states is called, The Senator proceeds as follows:

"Timmy," says The Senator, "I have a session last night with Governor Louis Brann and Fred Lancaster, chairman of the Maine delegation. Louis has just arrived in town because he heard the Democrats were holding a convention or something.

"What Governor Louis came to the convention for is to get $1,000,000 more for his Maine bridges and this he accomplished in a very few minutes, making a total of $3,000,000 Governor Louis has got for his Maine bridges.

"Another thing that Governor Louis is looking for here is a little financial backing for Quoddy dam which the government starts on him but does not finish.

"Governor Louis says this looks very promising, which I take it to mean that if he gives his full support to the administration in the election fight, and the administration should win the fight, he will get more money for the dam, if Congress will let the administration give it.

Coolidge Parachute

"This is very much like the old ham and egg idea, if you get the likes.

"Maine is very important to the outlook because of the Coughlin-Townsend influence that has been brought to bear there and I am sure Governor Louis will get his bridges, anyway.

"I made a slight inquiry of Governor Louis as to whether he was participating in the boom for Governor Jim for Vice-President. He sidestepped this very gracefully by stating that he is not planning any active participation in any of the convention doings.

"I guess the administration is banking heavily on off-setting the Republican Bridges in New Hampshire with the Democratic bridges in Maine."

"Senator," says Timmy, "I can stand only so much of that in the morning. What is this I hear about Senator Marcus Coolidge renting a parachute for tonight?"

"Timmy," says The Senator, "Senator Marcus Coolidge's parachute is a rumor that crops up soon after it is announced the Massachusetts delegation will dine here after the convention meeting tonight with three honored guests in attendance, Senator Marcus Coolidge, Senator Dave Walsh and Governor Jim.

"The idea about the parachute is that they are holding the dinner on the roof and some fear that Senator Marcus Coolidge will be nudged off and some hope that he will bail out of the senatorial fight.

"If you wish my private opinion it is that Senator Marcus Coolidge will not be nudged off the roof and that he will not bail out, at least not tonight.

"The gathering will be very harmonious. Senator Dave Walsh may state whether he will campaign for the ticket in Massachusetts or whether he will campaign in Montana for Senator Murray or whether he will merely spend a quiet summer and fall inspecting the navy yards in his capacity as the new chairman of naval affairs. This latter job gives him a very nice out of the campaign if he cares to take it."

"How does it look for Governor Jim, Senator?" says Timmy.

Peace, Good Will

"Timmy," says the Senator, "Governor Jim will arrive late this afternoon to find a good sized boom in progress for his nomination for vice-president, the slightly ruffled Texas delegates notwithstanding.

"There is a strong possibility that this boom will even go so far as to result in Utah placing his name before the convention, but like I told you before I expect Governor Jim will gracefully decline in the interests of peace and good will and 1940.

"I have been scurrying hither and you in an effort to determine why it is that Delegate James Roosevelt of the Washington, New York, New Hampshire and Brookline Roosevelts has decided against becoming a candidate for congress in the Ninth District now represented by Dick Russell of Cambridge.

"The principal reason for this decision, so far as I can learn, is that it could not have been gracefully done without providing some spot for Dick Russell, and there was a general belief that providing a spot for Dick Russell in order to provide a spot for Delegate James Roosevelt would have reacted very unfavorably for the administration in Massachusetts, where Toastmaster General Jim Farley is desirous of preventing any reactions unfavorable to the administration.

"Timmy, it looks to me like the Massachusetts Democrats will hold another state convention to endorse somebody else than Mr. Philip Philbin for lieutenant governor. The displeasure with this set-up I related to you yesterday.

"Now it appears that Jerry O'Sullivan of the Lowell rubber heel O'Sullivans, and Tom Moriarty, the district attorney from Springfield, are both casting envious glances at this spot. Toss them in with Arthur Lyman, Francis Kelly and Mr. Philbin and you have the makings for another convention.

"Another morsel of gossip which I gather here is that an attempt is being made to clear the field for Charles J. Fitzgerald of Dorchester for the Democratic nomination for governor's council in the second district.

"The leaders would like to get the field cleared in order to avoid the usual post-primary ill feeling. Fitz is popular with many Republicans and is looked upon as having a good chance to beat Eliot Grossman, the Quincy shingle dealer, who will be out for re-election.

"If you care for a bit of republican news, it is something that comes to me of the Massachusetts delegates from the well known authentic source, to the effect that Nanny Cook, the mysterious Republican who threatened to bolt the ticket and oppose John Haigis for the governorship has decided to go after his old job of state auditor, instead, and will run against Owen Bonne.

"Tom Buckley says he is not greatly concerned either way.

"The Massachusetts boys, Timmy, are behaving themselves very well indeed. Fire Commissioner Eddie McLaughlin is getting a lot of new ideas for badges, and there are apparently no hard feelings between Maurice Tobin and Charlie McGlue because Maurice broke the Joe McGrath slate and defeated Charlie.

"It is strange to see Joe Maynard on the outside peeking in where only a short time ago he was the master of the hearth.

"And now, Timmy, I must away. This is Flatform Day, Curley Day, Monument Day and Queen-of-the-Convention Day. Things are going so slowly that Mummers are clamoring to enter their babies in the baby show.

"How does it look for the platform, Senator?" says Timmy.

"Forget it, Timmy," says The Senator. "That's how it looks."

Just at this point there is loud clanging of bells and a screaming of sirens as an ambulance swings down the street outside.

"Senator," says Timmy, "I guess they just catch another delegate whistling 'The Sidewalks of New York.'"

TODAY'S

Boon-Doggle

Few cities have exploited the streams that run through them as profitably as Denver has exploited Cherry Creek and the South Platte River. Three Works Progress Administration projects for the improvement of the South Platte have been approved, as follows:

To build a retaining wall, $5108; to perform levee work, rip-rapping and excavating the channel, and to build a boulevard along the west bank, $477,155; to do more levee work, rip-rapping and excavating, $787,380. The total for the South Platte is $1,239,543.

Four Cherry Creek projects are: Rejaining wall reinforcement, $5970; excavation and rip-rapping, $441,305; widening and rip-rapping, $70,244; and more excavation, rip-rapping and levee work, $3,005,844. Total for Cherry Creek, $3,522,986.

Grand total for both, $4,762,529.

If the prospectors and placer-miners who work the gold and silver bearing streams of the Rockies could make any of them pan out as well as that, Colorado would be the scene of a gold rush that would put '49 in the shade.

Worked All Night In Vain

Prorogue Monday

The wildest scene in the history of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, with most of the 240 members screaming, cheering and booing, followed sudden adjournment by Speaker Saltonstall at 5:30 this morning.

Fists flew in one corner of the chamber, and Democratic members stood on their chairs, shrieking for continuation of the session.

For more than an hour after adjournment until Monday the chamber was in an uproar.

Democrats clamored outside the door or the Speaker's private office, demanding that he reconvene the session.

Armed with Saltonstall's gavel, they would have begun a "rump" session and tried to vote Saltonstall out of office, had not Governor Curley advised otherwise, "to let the odium fall on the Speaker."

ACCUSE SALTONSTALL

Speaker Saltonstall said later the sudden adjournment was necessary because he and other Republican leaders had discovered they had been "tricked" on the supplementary budget.

He said they feared disorder and fist fights if the session was allowed to continue and the issue, which their discovery raised, was argued by tired legislators.

What angered the Democrats, they said, was that Saltonstall did not follow regular procedure in refusing to permit a standing vote or rollcall on a sudden motion to adjourn.

Governor Curley wanted all his new recommendations enacted, and the legislature prorogued, before he left for the Philadelphia convention.

The Democratic members, with Republican aid, had succeeded in putting through most of these recommendations, with a small margin in each case.

As dawn broke, Representative Horace T. Cahill of Braintree, Republican floor leader, heard the governor was about to send in some more measures. Cahill accordingly put a motion to adjourn until 2 p. m. Monday.

"No, we came here to do business, let's do it," cried Representative Paul J. McDonald, Democrat, of Chelsea.

Supporting Cahill, Rep. Albert F. Bigelow, Republican, of Brookline, raised the cry of "trickery and deceit."

Bigelow said the Governor's messages were "jumbled" and that the Legislature had enacted financial measures for which no provision was made in the supplementary budget.

FIGHT TO OUST SPEAKER

The Speaker called for a voice vote and announced the Cahill motion had won and the House was adjourned.

Saltonstall immediately left the rostrum and as he proceeded to his private office, he was booed and cheered.

Shouting Democratic legislators jumped to their feet, protesting that they wanted a count of votes on the motion to adjourn.

Rushing to the rostrum, Representative Edward P. Bacigalupo, Democrat, of Boston, seized the Speaker's gavel and asserted the House had the power to reconvene itself. Others said the Speaker could be ousted under a Supreme Court ruling.

Most of the members were joining in the babel and many were shouting. McDonald rushed to the door of the clerk's office which he found locked. He pounded on the door, demanding the official record.

CURLEY COUNSELS ORDER

Democratic Floor Leader Edward J. Kelly of Worcester and Rep. Bacigalupo decided to seek counsel from a meeting of the attorney general's staff, and said they were assured they could call a "rump" session.

The Democratic leaders then rushed to the Governor's office where the Governor was still holding the executive council in session, and told him of the plan.

"Don't do that," said the Governor. "Appoint a committee and call on the Speaker and ask him to reconvene the House. If he refuses let him stew in his own juice. We will act in an orderly manner and the odium will fall upon him."

The committee went to Saltonstall's office and found the door locked and a guard outside.

SALTONSTALL EXPLAINS

Saltonstall told the press later that shortly before adjournment he was called to his office and there found Assistant Attorney General James J. Ronan and Budget Commissioner Carl Raymond.

"They told me that through an error some items had been left out of the supplementary budget," said Saltonstall.

"These items totaled $300,000, of which all but $10,000 was for bridge construction.

"We had already transferred $3,600,000 from the state highway fund to the general fund, as the Governor requested, and that left $80,000 in this fund with which to build those bridges.

"The only answer was a new supplementary budget, and I was shown a list of items totaling approximately $230,000, which Mr. Ronan said they wished to add to the new budget. All of these items had been previously turned down by the Ways and Means Committee and the Legislature.

"When I said that was a large amount, Mr. Ronan suggested that we might trade. He said they were most interested in items for the Governor's executive department and the income tax department.

"I told Mr. Ronan a two-thirds vote would be needed for these items and I doubted if he could obtain it. He asked me to wait a minute, left the room, and returned to say he must insist that the items be included.

CHARGES TRICKERY

"Obviously we were tricked by somebody. In the past 15 years in the Legislature all bills passed in the last day have been included in the supplementary budget.

"Just how the error occurred remains to be learned from investigation. In order to get the money for the bridges, which the people want, it would have been necessary to trade and include the executive fund. Mr. Ronan suggested the trade."

The Senate, taken entirely by surprise by the sudden adjournment, voted at 6:02 a. m. to adjourn likewise until Monday.

Governor Curley, leaving the State House shortly afterward, to go home and get ready to leave for the Democratic national convention, said he had eight more bills to submit.

$8,000,000 TAX CUT

Before adjournment, House and Senate passed the Governor's new minimum wage bill, affecting women and minors, the purpose of which is to make the Massachusetts law a health and welfare measure, so as to avoid invalidation by the U. S. Supreme Court as in the case of New York.

The legislature also approved transfer to the general fund of $3,214,000 from liquor and betting revenue, $3,600,000 from the highway fund, and $800,000 from other special funds. These transfers are expected to reduce the state tax, which falls on real estate, to $3,000,000, the lowest figure in several years.

The Governor had vetoed a bill to distribute the $3,214,000 to the cities and towns for old age pensions. The House sustained the veto, but refused to approve the transfer of this liquor revenue to the general fund, until the Governor had twice revived the measure by special messages during the night.

The legislature also voted to reduce from 70 to 65 years the age at which one becomes eligible for old age pensions and established a minimum of $30 a month for single persons and $50 for couples. A clause requiring children "so far as possible" to support elderly parents was stricken out.

BRIDGES APPROVED

With minor changes, the Legislature approved construction of bridges over the Connecticut river at Turners Falls, Sunderland and Northampton, and the Merrimack river at Lowell. Repair of 331 small bridges, damaged by the recent flood, was also approved.

Restoration of items cut out of the supplementary budget will be demanded by the governor in a special message which he was preparing, when the House adjourned this morning.

His supplementary budget called for $1,693,000, but it was reduced to $1,202,461. Items for funds for his own department were eliminated.

The governor adjourned the executive council to 2 p. m. Monday.

While a charwoman looks on, smiling, and surprised to see a governor up and around at such an early hour, Governor Curley leaves the State House shortly after 6 o'clock this morning, following the all-night legislative session which ended in an uproar. The Governor will be in Philadelphia tonight.

FAIL TO LINK CASH TO BONDS

Richard D. Seamans, accountant for the city in its suit to recover $250,000 from Edmund L. Dolan and five others, today admitted under cross-examination that $600,000 transferre from Legal Securities Corporation to the account of E. L. Dolan & Co., had nothing to do with city bond purchases.

For the past three days, in the fourth week of the trial before Judge Edward F. Hanify, Special Corporation Counsel Robert G. Dodge and George R. Farnum, have had Seamans chronologically tracing bond transactions between Legal Securities Corporation and Dolan during his incumbency as city treasurer.

Indictions were that the city would rest its case some time late today.

Thomas H. Mahoney, chief defense counsel for the six defendants, hinted that his defense would take three, possibly four days. He announced that Dolan, key witness in the case, would positively take the stand the first of next week

It is expected that corporation counsel will present motions before the court to dismiss the motions against John F. Dever and Frederick J. Reardon, named in the original bill of complaint as defendants.

Hammond Riches to 4 Children

The gold-mine millions of the late John Hays Hammond, Sr., world-famed prospector, of Gloucester, will be equally divided among his four children, according to the will filed today in the Salem probate court. No estimate was given.

They are Harris Hammond of Bordentown, N. J.; John Hays Hammond, Jr., of Gloucester; Richard P. Hammond and Miss Natalie Hammond, both of New York city.

If any of the four contests the will, he automatically loses his share, according to a clause in the will.

Gifts of $10,000 each to the Boys' Clubs of America and to the Addison Gilbert Hospital of Gloucester were also provided for. The will explained that Hammond, Sr., had left few bequests to charitable organizations because he had been generous in giving when he was alive.

A bequest of $20,000 is to be divided among 25 employes.

The celebrated collection of autographed photos was given to the National Press Club of Washington, D. C., subject to possession of Harris Hammond. This gift does not include personal pictures, of those of royalty.

The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D. C. and Harris Hammond, and John Hays Hammond, Jr., were named executors.

The will was dated June 4, 1935. Hammond died last June 8.

U. S. Protests Two 'Japanese Insults'

Peiping, June 25 (INS)—The United States embassy formally protested today to the Japanese embassy against two cases of interference with American citizens during a Japanese military demonstration Tuesday.

While 2000 Japanese paraded, the American protest said, a Japanese soldier prodded Captain Henry S. Jernigan, American military attache, with a bayonet. Captain Jernigan was in civilian attire.

An American woman, it was charged, was forced off the sidewalk by a Japanese officer waving a sabre.

INDICT 2 as Navy SPIES

U. S. SECRETS TO JAPAN

Los Angeles, June 25 (AP)—The oft-rumored "navy spy case" was stripped of its secrecy today with indictment of two men charged with conspiring to supply U. S. Navy information to the Japanese government.

One of the defendants, Toshio Miyazaki, was identified in the federal grand jury indictment as a lieutenant commander in the Japanese imperial navy.

The other was Harry Thomas Thompson, former navy petty officer, accused by the government of masquerading as an officer to obtain information and then selling it to Miyazaki.

In addition, a Japanese woman was injected into the affair when it became known federal operatives had been questioning her and were keeping her accessible for further interrogation.

Jail "Traitor"

The indictment, returned yesterday, accuses "divers other persons unknown" of complicity in the alleged plot.

Thompson now is serving a county jail sentence for illegally wearing a naval officer's uniform.

Thompson, indictment charged, began selling his country's naval secrets on August 26, 1934, when he boarded the U. S. S. Brooks at San Diego. With this episode as opening chapter, the indictment continued with this story:

Dressed as an officer, Thompson went aboard warships at San Pedro and San Diego and "obtained code books, signal books, photographs, blueprints, plans, maps, models and information relating to the national defense."

Miyazaki, described in the indictment as one time honor student at Stanford University, met Thompson on several occasions, in San Pedro and Los Angeles, and paid him for naval information.

Spy's Salary

The indictment said specifically that on November 26, 1934, Miyazaki informed Thompson by letter that his monthly salary would be sent "not later than the first of each month," and requested him to send him the schedule of force tactics which were scheduled to begin less than two weeks later.

A gunnery school book and navy schedule of explosives were among documents Thompson sold to Miyazaki, the try alleged.

The information, according to the indictment, was "to be used to the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a foreign nation, to wit, Japan."

Officials hold warrants for the arrest of Miyazaki, although navy authorities expressed belief he was in the Orient.

Both federal attorneys an naval authorities declined to amplify the story set forth in the indictment.

Tokyo Silent About U. S. Indictment of 'Spy'

Tokyo, June 25 (AP)—Naval officials parried inquiries today concerning indictment of a Japanese at Los Angeles for conspiring to supply U. S. navy information to the Japanese government.

"We lack official information and hence are unable to comment," an official spokesman said.

The latest roster of officers in the Japanese navy showed a Lieut.-Commander Toshio Miyazaki was an instructor in the naval college at Tokyo.

Miyazaki, the Tokyo officer, was in "America a few years ago as an attache of the Japanese Embassy," authorities said.

New York Sleuths Probe Feely Case

Pittsburgh, June 25—Two ace New York detectives today began a private probe into the deaths of Mrs. Eleanor Feely, formerly of Springfield and Abington, Mass., and her two children.

The detectives, who began a thorough study of the baffling case from the time a scarlet fever sign was removed from the Feely apartment door until the bodies were found June 17, refused to say whether or not Martin J. Feely, husband of the dead mother and a University of Pittsburgh professor, had employed them.

Coroner W. L. McGregor announced he would question the husband at length regarding his wife's mental condition. Feely previously admitted his wife, an intelligent, placid woman, had been worried about her son's illness and feared her tiny daughter would become affected.

Davis Sworn In

Lost $1000 Bill Found By Police

Elsa Seise, a German governess staying at the Hotel Touraine, was broken hearted. Yesterday she lost a $1000 bill with which she intended to build a dream house in her native land.

Today as detectives combed her room seeking the "dream money" Miss Seise fondled a white envelope on which she had sketched her house-to-be.

Finally one of the detectives decided to look in that envelope. There, nestled in one corner, was the $1000.

The little blonde governess looked a bit abashed for a moment—but she smiled ever so happily at the detective.

TRAGEDY'S ORPHANS

Father's Suicide Crushes Girl, Boy

Madison, Me., June 25—A small boy and his little sister began a new life today—the aftermath of crushing tragedy.

Charles Jones, 15, and his sister Shirley, 13, stunned by two successive suicides which took their parents and three baby brothers, turned to friends and relatives for aid in remodeling their lives.

Sunday the mother, Mrs. Annie Wallace Jones, 32, crazed by ill health, took the three baby boys into the woods near her home on a "picnic of death." Bodies of Robert and Edward, four-year-old twins; Norman, two, and the mother were found huddled together three miles from their home.

Erwin Jones, automobile repairman, attended the funeral of his wife and sons and then broke. The automobile of Cecil Brewster, a friend, was parked in his yard. He drove it to a spot 100 yards from the scene of the "picnic of death," connected a tubing from the exhaust pipe to the interior of the sedan and was killed by carbon monoxide fumes.

A note addressed to Frank Clough, Madison, and to Shirley, said:

"Take care of Charlie, please. Put him through his school. Shirley, go home to grandmother, and do as she says. Don't lie. Be good, won't you? Goodby—Erwin."

The other note read:

"Frank: Take care of Charlie. Please put him through high school."

The other note was written to his daughter and read:

"Shirley: Go home to grandma and do as she says. Be good. Don't lie. Good-bye."

BAY STATE FIGHTS FARLEY'S MOVE TO NIP CURLEY BOOM

supporters in a state that Republicans are already claiming.

Furthermore, Governor Curley, although a candidate for United States Senator, has sent word to his "boomers" that he would "take the vice-presidential nomination if voted" to him.

The postmaster general—and President Roosevelt himself—cannot see anyone else usurping the seat that Garner has filled for the past "three long years." They have served notice they will go right down the line for him.

And that means not only crushing force brought to bear on Massachusetts' hopes, but open conflict with delegations favoring vice-presidential honors for Governors McNutt of Indiana and Herring of Iowa.

REFUSE TO BE CRUSHED

If they think their crushing force will crush without a fight, however, they haven't reckoned on the Bay Staters.

On tonight's calendar, climaxing the "march of triumph" for Governor Curley and the hoped-for demonstration in Convention Hall, will be a reception at the Adelphia Hotel that is aimed at sweeping new supporters into the Curley fold.

Governor Curley is due to arrive at Broad Street station at 7 p. m.

The Henry H. Houston, Jr., band, American Legion Post No. 3, will lead the reception committees. Mayor Wilson, Democrat, of Philadelphia, will personally greet the governor and will be in the line of march from the station to the hotel.

A monster banner reading "Massachusetts," and about a dozen standards will be carried by the marchers which includes delegates from many of the states anxious to do homage to the Massachusetts chief executive.

These standards contain greetings from the city of Philadelphia, the state of Pennsylvania, "Curley for President in 1940," "Governor Curley of Massachusetts for Vice-President," among others.

CONRY FLAYS ELY

Joseph A. Conry, former Boston traffic commissioner and at present attached to the attorney general's department in Washington, today lashed out at ex-Governor Ely.

In a statement, Conry characterized the former Governor as an "amorphous apostate."

"Ely was never a Democrat," the statement read.

"He used the Democratic party to gratify ignoble ambition. Having won the bauble by the assistance of genuine party men, he turned against the men who made him, because he realized that without their aid, he never could have won and he hated to think that he owed everything to stalwart Democrats.

"I predicted last September that Ely would abandon the party when it seemed expedient. A few weeks a he indicated his willingness to support the Republicans, indulging the hope that the Republicans in convention might reward him by some mention of his name.

"LAST HOPE FAILS"

"His last hope of passing honor failed when the Social Union selected Tom O'Brien for vice-president.

"He has proclaimed that he will make speeches for the Republican candidates, if he is invited. That is his delusion of grandeur.

"Mr. Landon wants every vote, but will he do it with Ely?"

A meeting of the Massachusetts delegation has been called by acting Chairman Josheph McGrath of the delegation at the Adelphi Hotel today for the purpose of instructing Senator Coolidge, member of the rules committee, to vote against a broadening of the traditional two-thirds convention rule by which the national ticket has been selected in the past.

GIVEN FREE REIN

The delegation has already voted 27 to 7 against scrapping the two-thirds for a majority rule, but gave the senator a free rein to vote as his best judgment dictated.

The headquarters of the Massachusetts delegation is one of the busiest of the convention. State House guide books containing autographed pictures of the governor, identical with those passed out to visitors on Beacon Hill, are at a premium. One delegate from a Western state offered to pay $10 for one of these as a souvenir. A rush order has been sent to Boston for a new and larger supply. It is planned to place one of these booklets in the seat of every delegate to the convention.

A state flag has reached here also sent by special messenger at the telegraphic request of the Curley enthusiasts. The campaign button, used by the Governor at the pre-primary convention in Springfield, bearing photographs of President Roosevelt and Governor Curley is also in demand and the supply is exhausted.

State Senator William F. McCarthy of Lowell is the only delegate absent from the official Massachusetts contingent.

Among the alternates, the absence of Joseph F. O'Connell of Cambridge resulted in a loud and lengthy oral dispute in the Massachusetts headquarters. Had the altercation taken place in a less conspicuous location it might have resulted in a fist fight.

Michael Golding, delegate from Woburn, accompanied by "Tom" Power of that city, claimed the badge, saying that it belonged to him because O'Connell was his alternate. Michael Sullivan of Salem, in charge of the headquarters, stoutly maintained that he would not give the badge up and that he was acting under orders.

The passage of words became so heated that scouts were sent out for McGrath and other leaders.

Golding charged Sullivan had given the badge away and when Sullivan denied this, Golding offered to bet $10 that he couldn't produce it.

"Produce it and I'll take it away from you," Golding shouted.

Sullivan accepted the wager offer but Golding failed to cover it. At the same time Sullivan dared Golding to "take it away from me."

Chairman McGrath hurried in and a little later state auditor Thomas H. Buckley arrived on the scene. Power had joined Golding by this time in berating Sullivan and got a dressing down from McGrath.

The row died down when McGrath turned the alternate badge over to Golding for temporary use only.

Philip Philbin, Democratic nominee for Lieutenant Governor was one of the late arrivals.

Tonight the Massachusetts state committee is tendering a dinner at 11 o'clock to the Massachusetts delegation at the Adelphia roof garden, Gov. Curley, Senator Walsh and Senator Coolidge will be the speakers.

Puts Woman's Stamp on Platform

Mrs. Mary T. Norton, Congresswoman from New Jersey, addresses the Democratic resolutions committee, after the convention O. K.'d a ruling for opposite sex alternates. It is expected that women's hands will be seen in the final draft of the platform.

Two-Thirds Rule Doomed; Democrats Split on Issue

ful rules committee of the House, will be a candidate for speaker in the next Congress. He threw New York's support to the southern states with that speakership contest in view. He wants the votes of the south for speaker next January, and the gesture today is not calculated to hurt his chances.

Even the south, however, was not solidly for the retention of the old rule. Louisiana, North Carolina, Kentucky, Arkansas and Oklahoma broke away from the solid south to vote for majority rule.

When the convention reassembles tonight the expectation is that the rules committee will bring in its report recommending the nomination of presidents in future conventions by a majority vote and that the platform committee will have succeeded in ironing out its arguments over phraseology of the controversial planks.

SOUTH BADLY BEATEN

The southerners were so badly licked on the two-thirds rule fight that when the convention recessed it appeared doubtful they would take the fight to the floor.

Opinions clashed on the platform, despite the fact it was written in Washington. As originally conceived, the platform avoided any criticism of the Supreme Court, and avoided any specific comment to a constitutional amendment that will give to the Federal government the powers which the court has said it did not have.

But there are Democrats here who believe the party should take the constitutional issue by the horns and declare specifically for either (1) a curtailment of the court's powers, or (2) an amendment which will afford the states and Federal government a degree of authority over economic fundamentals.

Those who hold to this belief were busy pointing out, in the platform committee and in the party councils today that he Republicans already had taken something of a forthright stand. While the G. O. P. platfor mwas silent about the question o famending the Constitution, Governor Alfred M. Landon, in his telegram of interpretation to the Cleveland convention, stated that he favored, if necessary, a constitutional amendment to enable the states to legislate where hours and wages of labor are concerned.

CLARK GETS REVENGE

The Supreme Court has said that neither the federal government nor the states now have that specific power.

There wasn't much contest over other parts of the platform. Most of the fight centered on the party position about amending the constitution.

Appropriately enough, it was Senator Bennett Champ Clark, as chairman of the committee, who fought the two-thirds rule fight through. Twenty-four years ago at Baltimore his father, Champ Clark, would have been the Democratic nominee for the presidency instead of Woodrow Wilson had it not been for that two-thirds rule.

Clark in the 1912 convention had a clear majority on five ballots, only to lose in the end. The young square-jawed senator from Missouri too personal satisfaction in leading the fight to throw out the rule that prevented his father from becoming President.

DIXIE'S PROTECTION

The Dixie delegations didn't like the abrogation of the old rule, however. The Southerners have always regarded the two-thirds rule as their special protection against domination of the great state machines of the North. It has been their "veto power" and they did not propose to relinquish it lightly.

The convention, as usual was late getting under way. Called to mest at 11 a. m., the hour of noon came and passed with only a handfull of delegates on the floor and virtually no one in the galleries. The pipe organ and the band vied with each other in entertaining the stragglers.

It was 12:15 before Senator Barkley, still functioning as temporary chairman, rapped the delegates into their seats. Galleries were virtually empty. The floor was only partly filled.

The Rev. Dr. George Emerson Barnes, moderator of the Philadelphia Presbytery, pronounced the invocation.

Washington, June 25 (INS)—The Army engineers today awarded contracts exceeding $3,000,000 for river and harbor development in various sections of the United States.

Lose Smith's Note? Not Me, Says Farley

Philadelphia, June 25 (AP)—The question of what became of the statement of Alfred E. Smith and four other anti-New Dealers, asking that the party convention nominate a "genuine Democrat" for president, bobbed up today in James A. Farley's press conference.

Told that friends of Smith said the statement had been mailed, the Democratic national chairman, who also is postmaster general, said he had not received it and knew of no one who had.

"They're blaming you for losing the letter," a reporter told Farley.

"Well, if they didn't it would be the only thing they haven't blamed me for," he replied.

Asked whether he had received any "suggestions" to extend a personal invitation toSmith to attend the convention, Farley replied that "I don't know why an invitation should be extended toany delegate."

Cohalan Address Letter to Barkley

New York, June 25 (AP)—Former Supreme Court Justice Daniel Cohalan, who with Alfred E. Smith and three other anti-New Deal Democrats issued a statement to the Philadelphia Democratic convention, said today the statement was mailed last Sunday night and bore the following address:

"To the delegates of the 1936 Democratic convention, Convention Hall, Philadelphia.

"In care of the temporary chairman."

PLATFORM FIGHT CENTERS ON WOMEN WAGE ISSUE

Philadelphia, June 25 (INS)—Democratic platform makers, desperately anxious to avoid a convention floor fight, struggled today to placate opposing factions on the issue of a constitutional amendment giving states power to enact minimum wage laws for women.

A compromise plan which, it was stated authoritatively, has been placed before President Roosevelt, called for governmental regulation of wages and hours, with implications that a constitutional amendment will be sought if necessary.

Despite optimistic predictions of Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, chairman of the platform committee, the party planks on the wage question, farm relief and money aroused keen controversy among delegates.

OPPOSED BY SOUTHERNERS

Southern forces fought against an outright declaration for a constitutional amendment, fearful that the issue might split the South.

The Roosevelt forces also were reluctant to make an outright declaration. Only recently President Roosevelt declared that the New Deal can accomplish its objectives within the Constitution.

Liberal forces, accepting the Supreme Court decision in the New York state minimum wage law for women case as a challenge, urged the platform builders to immediately inaugurate the proposed change in the basic law.

Their argument was that workers can't afford to wait for elderly Supreme Court justices to die to obtain decisions friendly to the aims of the New Deal.

Although the money and farm planks apparently had been settled, opposing factions were certain to wage a battle in the full resolutions committee.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and organized farmers demanded a declaration for crop control, a policy attacked by Republicans as "The Philosophy of Scarcity."

The Wallace plan was said to have been adopted by the platform sub-committees of 12 but it was still uncertain whether it would emerge in the exact form desired by him from the full committee.

A declaration for sound money—with no mention of gold—also was said to have been approved by the drafting committee. Eastern Democrats, aroused lest the platform lean too far to the lfet, wanted a more binding commitment against inflation.

The simple fact that the platform sub-committee labored all night long, when President Roosevelt was reported to have dictated the entire platform, aroused amazement.

Delegates could not understand why there should be such extensive—and acrimonious—debate under these circumstances.

LEHMAN IN LIMELIGHT

As the platform neared its final stages, Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York assumed a role which steadily increased in importance.

A close friend of Governor Lehman asserted that he had reached an agreement with President Roosevelt and Senator Wagner on the minimum wage issue.

While purported agreement was said to be designed to give President Roosevelt or a Democratic Congress indirect authority to demand a constitutional amendment empowering the states to act if the Supreme Court fails to reverse the New York minimum wage decision.

President Roosevelt was consulted frequently by telephone by Senator Wagner and Charles West, contact man.

Presentation of the platform to the convention was slated for tonight.

YD Convention Ban Proposed On Harvard

Worcester, June 25—Resolutions calling for a virtual boycott of Harvard, Princeton and Columbia universities will be presented at the national convention of the Yankee Division Veterans' Association.

The 2000 delegates assembled here for the three-day convention will also be urged to "condemn unpatriotic and un-American activities" by students and to demand that university officials reprimand those active.

This was learned today from the advance guard of the Connecticut delegates, prime sponsors of the resolutions.

The resolve, as it is worded now, calls for every Yankee Division veteran to pledge that none of his children shall attend Harvard, Princeton or Columbia and that no financial support be given any of the three universities.

Cited as causes are the "Veterans of Future Wars" who organized in Princeton and developed branches in the other universities; the Red Flag incident in the Supreme Court at Washington, attributed to Harvard students; the heckling of R. O. T. C. members at a Columbia University ceremony.

Just what a reception such a resolution will meet, no one is willing to forecast, but in this city there are many delegates who openly state they will back their Connecticut comrades.

The resolutions committee will undoubtedly present a resolution condemning the Black Legion and "other societies fostering prejudices and bigotry," it was stated.

Most of the delegates will be here by nightfall for the business sessions of tomorrow. There will be a parade, with 18,000 in line, Saturday afternoon, and memorial services at Lincoln square World War Memorial on Sunday.

I guess maybe the whole lot of us Wilkens is just about the same as Grandad. He didn't used to care a snap of the fingers about anything much at all, so long as his whiskey was better than what any of the other old timers could put out. Same with Dad and all of us. I recollect a long ways back when Dad first starting his teaching of us—he'd keep saying and saying how he'd never yet seen any good come out of hurrying whiskey or being careless or sloppy in your handling of it. So I suppose you might say we just grew to get as particular as him just out of habit. And besides, being our own Family's Whiskey and all, you couldn't hardly expect us to do different!

3 SHOT IN ARMORED CAR HOLDUP AT LAWRENCE

ethy J. O'Brien, former city marshal, now a member of the police bank squad. O'Brien disarmed him, but the bandit was too strong for the officer to hold.

The money in the armored bank car was the property of the Bay State Merchants National Bank of Lawrence.

From the precision and swiftness with which the bandits acted it was apparent that the desperate affair had long been planned.

TWO IN CAR

The bank car, with an employe of the bank at the wheel and O'Brien riding by his side as guard, drew into the railroad yard and backed up to an enclosure that parallels the railroad tracks, just before the 10:28 was due.

As the train pulled in, Corkum, with bags containing $18,400 in currency that was destined for the Bay State's repository in Boston, stepped out of the armored car.

He had walked part of the distance of the 150 feet from the Railway Express enclosure to the baggage car of the train, when an armed man suddenly thrust a gun in his face.

Corkum dropped his money bags and snatched at his pistol, opening fire almost as quickly as the bandit, but with better success. The robber fell.

O'Brien, meanwhile, had stepped from the armored car to carry over bags containing $600 in small change.

As he did, another man with a gun thrust it in his back. O'Brien wheeled and grappled with his bandit.

HAS MACHINE GUN

At the same time a third man, armed with a sawed-off high-powered repeating rifle — which some mistook for a sub-machine gun—made his appearance. He opened fire, pointblank, and apparently at everyone.

All these acts of this dramatic clash were going on concimitantly. But when Corkum dropped his $18,400 a fourth act ensued.

Frank Dyer, former Villanova College football player, not an employe of the Railway Express, crawled under the railway shed, grabbed the money bags and raced to the baggage car on the 10:28 train.

Corkum was still firing. The bandit with the rifle was firing. O'Brien was engaged in a hand-to-hand struggle with his man.

BANDIT DISARMED

The last bandit finally was disarmed. Corkum shouted a warning to O'Brien that he was in the line of the rifle fire and the ex-marshal ducked.

As he did, his captive wrenched free and fled. Practically at the same time, the rifleman dropped, wounded perhaps fatally by Corkum.

Brien fired two shots at the fleeing robber, but missed. It was found afterwards he had used the bandit's own pistol. His own was not discharged.

The rubber got into a Hudson sedan, which witnesses said had another man at the wheel, waiting. The car roared out of the yard, up Railroad place, into Merrimack, then Essex street, and made off in the direction of Haverhill.

Witnesses, however, had taken the registration numbers of the Massachusetts splates the bandit getaway car carried.

Then came a strange development.

Police said that the registration numbers of the bandit car were issued to a Dorchester man. The Registry of Motor Vehicles in Boston reported the plates had been so issued, but that they had been returned and later destroyed.

Smoke Blankets Medford in Suspicious $75,000 Blaze

Rolling clouds of smoke drifted skyward today as a fire caused $75,000 damage to the Friend Lumber Company's yard in Medford. This photograph was made at the height of the blaze. Firemen from nearby towns aid the Medford men in preventing spread of the fire to any houses.

(Picture from Irational News Photograph Service)

5 TOWNS FIGHT $75,000 FIRE IN MEDFORD

The second suspicious fire in three months swept five acres of the Friend Lumber Company yards in Medford today, with estimated damage of $75,000.

Sixty persons in the neighborhood were driven from their homes in their night clothing, a Medford fire captain was seriously injured and a general alarm sounded.

Eight hours after the start of the blaze, fire departments of Medford, Malden, Everett, Somerville and Arlington were still battling desperately.

IN STORAGE SHED

Only valiant work by a band of fire-fighters, who set themselves between one end of the roaring 35,000 square foot storage shed and a two-story office building, saved thickly settled Gibson and Spring streets.

Like the fire in March that caused $30,000 damage, the fire today started at the east end of the huge 1½-story storage shed.

Investigation of the previous blaze showed that a group of boys had probably started it. Fire department inspectors, police and state fire marshals were dispatched to the scene today.

The injured man was Captain Joseph W. McKeon of Engine 3, Medford, who drove a large spike through one foot. He was taken to Lawrence Memorial Hospital.

Through all the morning traffic hours, long lines of automobiles were stalled in the streets near the yards and Medford branch trains were compelled to crawl through the thick smoke that blanketed the railroad right of way.

FREIGHT CAR BURNS

One wooden freight car of the Boston & Maine was burned to its trucks on a siding near the storage plant, while another steel car was enveloped in flames.

Four automobile trucks were literally melted to junk by the terrific heat.

Firemen maintained water-curtains over sheds and dwellings close to the raging storage building and thus prevented a general conflagration, officials said.

Long rows of lumber, piled high along the outskirts of the yards, started blazing several hours after the start of the fire and the east wind whipped a storm of sparks through the air.

FIREMEN WEARY

Even at 10:30 a. m., eight hours after the first alarm had been sounded, this menace still persisted.

The five fire departments, weary after their struggle, stood by, still pouring tons of water on the blazing mass that remained of the storage plant and its contents, but fire officials felt then the only thing left was to let it burn itself out.

Morgans Fight Tax On Library

New York, June 25 (AP)—An argument between Mayor F. H. LaGuardia and the J. P. Morgan family on whether the Pierpont Morgan Library is a public institution and tax free—as the Morgans contend—was headed today for a court decision.

The library, housing millions of dollars' worth of manuscripts, including Dickens' autographed "A Christmas Carol," was ordered by the mayor in October, 1934, to be placed on the 1935 tax roll.

Ten years before, however, the institution had been declared tax exempt by a legislative act.

The white marble structure next door to the J. P. Morgan Town House in East 36th st., together with the land on which it stands, was assessed at $1,685,000 which would yield the city about $60,000 yearly taxes.

Appealing to the supreme court, Henry Sturges Morgan, son of the banker and treasurer of the library, said it is open without charge.

Justice John L. Walsh granted Morgan's petition, issuing a writ requiring the assessment board to submit its findings, returnable September 28.

U. S. Jails Man On Fraud Charge

Henry M. DeMeyer, alias Henry R. Martin, was held in $2500 for the federal grand jury today on a charge of impersonating an investigator in the Department of Agriculture. In default of bail he was committed to the East Cambridge jail. His home is said to be in Annonam, N. Y.

The government alleges that on June 11, with intent to defraud Gracie Cook of Boston, DeMeyer pretended to be a government officer.

Salem Fire Anniversary

Salem, June 25 — Old-time Salem residents today reviewed the city's recovery from a fire 22 years ago which levelled 1800 buildings and left 15,000 persons homeless. Today is its anniversary.

The fire, with loss passing $11,000,000, wiped out 51 streets and razed 41 factories and 400 stores.

O'Connell Heads Somerville B. C. I.

Lieutenant Daniel F. O'Connell, head of Somerville bureau of criminal investigation, today was appointed acting captain in an order issued to Police Chief Thomas Danery by Mayor Leslie E. Knox.

O'Connell temporarily will fill a vacancy caused by the death of John A. Ray. The order specifies that O'Connell is to hold the office until the civil service commission can choose a permanent captain by examination.

Herbert P. Shortell, 58, of 79 Shawmut avenue, South End, was found dead on Boston Common today. East Weymouth relatives have been notified.

Bank Guard Tells How He Helped Thwart Holdup

Timothy J. O'Brien, former Lawrence city marshall and bank guard of the armored railway express truck, today told the Boston Evening American in his own words the story of the thrilling holdup.

By TIMOTHY J. O'BRIEN

As told to Arthur J. Quinn, Boston Evening American staff reporter:

"I was standing in back of the bank car and I was just reaching out to get a bag of money. The other guard had just gone in ahead of me.

"Suddenly I felt a gun in my back. I turned, and as I did I grabbed the gun, getting a good grip on the man. We both went to the ground, with me still holding on as tight as I could.

"I said 'you might as well quit.' But he only answered: 'Quit—hell.'

FIGHTS ROBBER

"I managed to get one hand free and drove it at his face as we were rolling around on the ground. He kept fighting and swearing at me.

"While we were flighting on the ground I heard a lot of shots. Right after this I managed to get the gun from him. I fired two shots.

"He broke loose from my grip and ran for a car. When I got up I saw one man lying on the ground at my right and another only a few feet away on my left.

CORKUM ON GROUND

"A little distance away I saw Corkum also lying on the ground. I think Corkum must have shot them.

"I still have the gun I grabbed from him. I don't think I shot any of them.

"At one time I thought I was done for, but I knew I couldn't give up. I knew I could take him."

Lemke, O'Brien Plan Campaign

Cleveland, June 25 (AP)—Congressman William Lemke of North Dakota, the new Union party's candidate for President, today discussed plans for the coming campaign with his running mate, Thomas C. O'Brien, former Suffolk county district attorney of Boston, Mass.

Lemke said he did not know when his campaign would open.

He predicted Congress would be called upon to decide the next President because he believes neither President Roosevelt nor Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas will poll a majority of the electoral college votes.

Foiled Bank-Car Holdup!

Timothy J. O'Brien, former Lawrence City Marshal, now a member of the Railway Express, who opened fire on bandits in the attempted holdup today at South Lawrence Railroad depot. O'Brien, an expert marksman, is shown in recent target practice.

St. Brendan's Wins Anti-Tavern Fight

Led by the Reverend James P. Donovan, of St. Brendan's Church, Dorchester, fifteen women and seven men residents of Minot street, won a fight today before the Boston Licensing Board against the granting of a tavern license to William J. Brady of Minot street.

Non one appeared in favor of granting the license, and Chairman David T. Monagaue said that the board would reject the application.

Sergeant Cecil E. Lewis of Fields Corner station said police now have difficulty in breaking up a so-called "Minot street gang," a group of youths responsible for a number of attacks on persons in the neighborhood.

To allow another tavern in the neighborhood, Sergeant Lewis said, would be an increase of trouble.

He said that Judge Richard Walsh of the Dorchester Court was recently a target of the boys who threw decayed fruit at him.

Bank Clerk Held On Theft Charge

Charged with theft of $2500 from the Old Colony Trust Co., Boston, where he was employed as clerk, Stanley R. Bradley, 45, of 830 Salem street, Malden, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Commissioner Harry N. Gutterman in Federal court and was held in $500 for hearing June 30.

Fix Cutting Crash Blame

Washington, June 25 (AP)—The Senate air safety committee today attributed the Kirksville (Mo.) fatal air crash of May 6, 1935, to the failure of ground aids. Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico and four others died in the accident.

REDS CUT OFF FRANCE FROM COLONIES

Paris, June 25 (INS) — With hundreds of thousands of francs' worth of perishable goods consigned to Algeria rotting in the holds of ships held up by 8000 striking sailors in Marseilles Harbor, politically-torn France today was isolated from her African Colonial empire.

Seamen accompanying their proclamations of "Soviets everywhere!" with whistle blasts remained in occupation of 68 red-flagged vessels in spite of an agreement for shorter hours and more pay reported to have been foced on ship owners by the "Popular Front" government last night.

Algerian merchants, already facing a shortage of supplies, unsuccessfully appealed to socialist Premier Leon Blum to commandeer vessels to keep trans-Mediterranean trade routes open, while sea captains warned that the sailors were guilty of mutiny and must assume responsibility for any damage to the ships.

SCORN EDICT

Scorning Premier Blum's edict that "no reoccupation of factories will be tolerated in the future," strikers again "folded arms" in several factories around Paris, while 400 men "besieged" the turbine factory at Loire-Saint-Denis.

Holding up work on two French naval cruisers and three submarines, the number of strikers in the shipyards at St. Nazaire grew today to 2500.

As strife between the right and left increased, the earlier orderly determination of the strikers gave way to Red rioting. Several isolated cases of attacks on individuals by Communists in the select Meuille residential sector were reported to police.

A minor revolution exploded at Chatteudun when gendarmes arrested the Communist agitator, Francis Gadriet. Fellow Communists quickly assembled, beat up citizens, and then attacked the town mayor, forcing him to liberate the prisoner.

Meanwhile, the cabinet met and approved a project nationalizing manufacture of all war materials in accordance with a bill presented recently by the ministers of national defense, and and marine.

The cabinet also decided to demand of Parliament the necessary credit to double the present pay of soldiers and sailors as well as to augment their rations.

CUT LIVING COSTS

Premier Blum was authorized to present a project authorizing certain public works, but the ministers decided to take any measures necessary to prevent a rise in the cost of diving. A credit of 1,000,000 francs for participation in the Olympic games was voted and plans for a mammoth youth festival to be held in Paris on July 13 were approved.

Gravity of the tense situation existing was clearly shown by the fact the ministers met virtually under the bayonets of a detachment of mobile guards which surround the Quai d'Orsay.

KNOX 'TO KNOW' ON JULY 30

Washington, June 25 (INS)—National headquarters of the Republican National Committee will be shifted to Chicago early next week, National Chairman John Hamilton announced today.

He also formally announced that Col. Frank Knox will be notified of his selection as vice-presidential candidate on the Gov. Alfred M. Landon ticket in a ceremony in Chicago July 30, a week after the Kansas governor takes up the party standard at Topeka July 23.

Hamilton declared Gov. Landon is "certain of victory in November." He predicted the Landon forces will break two or three states of the "Solid South" and added:

"This thing has gone way beyond party limits. There will be the same or greater shift than in 1928 and 1932. The West is 'in the bag' and every state east of the Ohio and north of the Potomac rivers 'always has been.'"

DENVER CHEERS GOV. LANDON

Denver, June 25 (INS)—Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, Republican presidential candidate, arrived in Denver at 7:30 a. m. (MST) today.

He was given an enthusiastic reception by several hundred persons, held a brief conference with newspapermen, spoke a few words to the crowd in front of Union Station and then continued on his trip to Estes Park.

The Governor declined to answer purely political questions, saying he was on a vacation. He did answer one question, however, by replying "Mrs. Landon," when asked if he expected to have any women in his cabinet.

Injured in Crash

Joseph Sullivan, 33, of Adams street, Charlestown, is at St. Elizabeth's Hospital today suffering from a possible skull fracture resulting from an automobile collision.

Spike Surety Probe

By a roll call vote of 14 to 21 the state senate has rejected a resolve creating a special unpaid commission to investigate insurance companies writing industrial life insurance.

Knox Awaits New Thrill As N. H. Folk Plan Fete

Manchester, N. H., June 25—You'd never guess it, to see him quietly vacationing at his summer home here—but Colonel Frank Knox, today, has only 24 hours to wait for one of the really big events of a busy and eventful life.

Knox got a thrill, of course, out of his nomination at Cleveland as Republican candidate for the vice-presidency.

In years gone by, he had more than his share of thrills as a Rough Rider with "Teddy" Roosevelt in Cuba and as a major of artillery with the A. E. F. in France.

But tomorrow's thrill be different—and maybe deeper!

It will be a private and personal thrill.

It will be the thrill of standing as a national figure before the New Hampshire folks with whom he cast his lot as a young, almost untried newspaper publisher.

Tomorrow is the day when notables and the general public of Manchester and the state turn out to honor Colonel Knox at an almost unprecedented outdoor gathering at Manchester's big athletic field.

They plan to honor him as a Manchester man who made good.

They plan to celebrate Colonel Knox's "homecoming."

That's a thrill to the vice-presidential candidate, because Colonel Knox knows well that becoming a New Englander by adoption isn't easy—and isn't an overnight process!

Coming from the middle west, to start a newspaper in Manchester, he had to show New Hampshire that he had the right stuff in him.

He had to show New Hampshire that he was more than a good editor, a good publisher and a good business man.

He Showed Them

All that he did show them. Then he showed them, too, that he was a good soldier, a good boss to work for, a good citizen of the community.

So today, Colonel Knox may vote in Chicago, but New Hampshire claims him.

And tomorrow, New Hampshire is going to show him that she's proud of him.

You don't need to believe it.

You can stick to your notion that, to a vice-presidential candidate, New Hampshire is just a single little state out of 48.

But Colonel Knox's close friends know better.

They know he is only 24 hours away from one of the really big events of a busy and eventful life.

Lawyer Kills Wife, Self

Palmyra, N. J., June 25 (INS)—William S. C. Roray, a lawyer, shot and killed his wife and then committed suicide in his home here today, according to police.

REDS OPEN FIRE ON LANDON

New York, June 25 (INS)—Beginning the second session of its first national convention ever open to the public, the Communist party today had been urged to do everything in its power to defeat Governor Alfred M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee.

The keynote was sounded by General Secretary Earl Browder, once a Wichita, Kan., bookkeeper, who called President Roosevelt "the lesser of two evils," although he denounced the New Deal and said the administration is "retreating before reaction."

Browder said it would be preferable for his party members to vote for a Communist presidential candidate and back Farmer-Labor candidates wherever nominated in congressional districts. He predicted the Farmer-Labor party would be the real power in the 1940 election.

William Z. Foster, three times Communist presidential nominee, another opening speaker in a setting of American and Red flags, denounced the Supreme Court.

2 SHOPLIFTING SUSPECTS HELD

Two women—one of whom refused to give her name or address, for fear of disgracing her four children—were arrested today, charged with larceny from department stores.

According to Police Detective Eldred Adair, keys found on one of them opened lockers in the Summer street subway station, where curtains, stockings and dresses were found.

Adair arrested the women in Winter street. One was booked as Mrs. Mary Brown, 65, widow, alias Annie Kelly, Falcon street, East Boston, and the other simply as "Jane Doe."

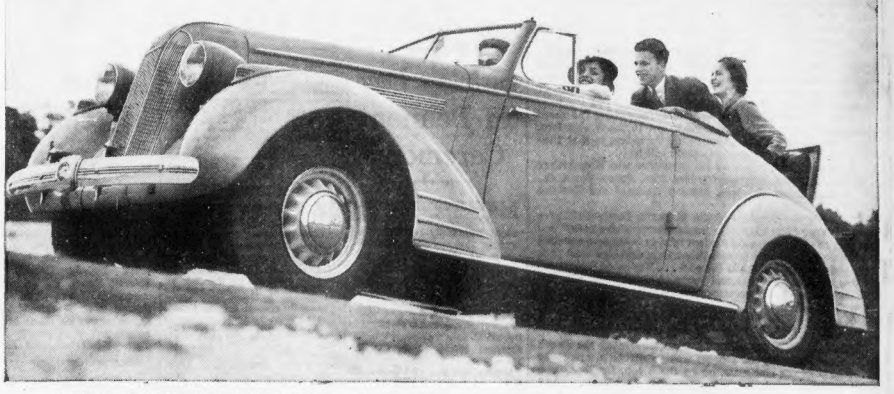
DOES MOBILGAS REALLY GIVE MORE POWER?

"YES"



HERE ARE THE FACTS: Mobilgas, introduced at 20,000 Socony dealers just 6 weeks ago, is already a 3-to-1 favorite throughout Soconyland! It is America's largest-selling gasoline today—and only one thing could make it so—that's an actual demonstration of superiority.

In that very first tankful, you feel the extra "get-up-and-go" of this new and different gasoline! Your engine runs with a new, quiet smoothness. And, if you watch your mileage, you find Mobilgas takes you farther at no extra cost.

The preference of millions of motorists proves Mobilgas must be good. But we'd rather you'd try it yourself—prove it yourself. Just stop at the Sign of the Flying Red Horse. Fill up your tank today, at the pump with the new Mobilgas globe—and enjoy a new driving thrill! Standard Oil of New York—Division of Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, Incorporated.

Betty Alden on 'Beacon Hill'

Mrs. Ruth Gaston Howard's Betrothal Surprises Society

By BETTY ALDEN

THOSE WHO idly thumbed through their new summer social registers yesterday morning were quite surprised to find that Mrs. Ruth Gaston Howard's name was not in its usual place between George Parker Howard, whose summer address is Buzzards Bay, and the Dudley Wolfes, who have again opened their Whispering Pines at Dark Harbor, Maine, for the season . . .

Almost while they were wondering what the reason for the omission might be, a possible explanation came in the news from Portland, Maine, that Mrs. Howard had filed wedding intentions to marry Lawrence Foster, prominent socialite and attorney of Boston . . .

BEATRICE PHILLIPS

Evidently she had wedding bells in mind when the Social Register Association sent out its blanks for summer addresses, and, with her usual foresight, had the name omitted, so that after she becomes Mrs. Foster she wouldn't be listed as Mrs. Howard all season . . . She was divorced from John K. Howard early in May . . .

Her mother, Mrs. William A. Gaston, is again ensconced in her expansive estate, The Crosstrees, at North Haven, where Anne Howard, daughter of the bride-to-be, will spend some time late in the summer . . . Mrs. Gaston is one of the most attractive and up-to-date of grandmothers, yet she is very old-fashioned and indulgent in her adoration of Anne . . . Last winter when Anne was in the throes of making her debut we often saw them together on shopping expeditions, picking out a party frock or a pair of slippers with brilliant heels . . . with grandmother fairly doting on every word and gesture of the excited debutante . . .

The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Foster of The Fenway and Manchester-by-the-Sea, and, like all men of society's inner circles, belongs to the Somerset, Union, Tennis and Racquet and Myopia Hunt Clubs. . . Being a son of Eli, there will probably be frequent altercations on the subject of Harvard versus Yale in his new family . . . for he will acquire not only a post-deb step-daughter, but two younger step-daughters and a step-son who are inclined to think that their own daddy's Alma Mater is quite the thing . . .

To get back to the summer social register . . . it is interesting to note the peregrinations of our social population, which seems to be definitely on the move now that summer has officially arrived . . .

The North Shore still holds first place in the minds of our most consequential socialites though it is hard to say, without actually getting involved in boring statistics, whether or not more families actually spend their summers along the coast from Swampscott to Gloucester, or whether more are to be found scattered along the highways and byways of Cape Cod . . .

* * *

Busy Social Season on North Shore

FROM EARLY REPORTS, however, it looks as if the North Shore is to have the most active season . . . To be sure the Cape has its summer playhouses and warmer waters, but we have not heard of any activities there which promise to be as entertaining as the amateur night at Christ Church, nor of any South Shore beach club which can offer the ultra modern notes of music with one's morning swim . . .

Mrs. Sumner Pingree, who, with "Ping," presides over Flying Horse Farm, and all the hunt teas and breakfasts for which their home has become famous, is chairman of the committee planning the amateur night, which is to be the grande finale of the annual Christ Church fair on the 15th of July . . .

Amateur night is open to all, and anyone along the shore who possesses latent talent is urged to get in touch with Mrs. Pingree or any of her committee before Saturday, so that they can get an idea of how many acts there will be . . .

Assisting Mrs. Pingree on the committee are Mrs. Arthur L. Hobson, Jr., Mrs. Harrison Gardner, Mrs. Horace Soule, Jr., Mrs. Arthur Mason, Jr., Mrs. Richard Hubbard and Beatrice Phillips . . .

Evidently the directors of the Magnolia Beach Club have heard the song "She shall have music wherever she goes," and are going to comply with the modern miss in being as up to date as she likes . . . and have provided that their members shall have music even when splashing in the pool . . . Beginning this Saturday morning Ruby Newman and some of his men will play foxtrots and waltzes to the accompaniment of the Australian crawl and the back stroke . . .

* * *

Howard Turners Plan Trip Abroad

OTHER NEWS TO PLEASE the members of the Beach Club is that luncheon and tea, as well as cocktails, are to be served daily at the clubhouse, or on the beach, for those who prefer to be thoroughly relaxed and acquire a sunburn . . . And a real old fashioned celebration has been arranged for the night of the Fourth, with a buffet supper on the beach, followed by a fireworks display, and then dancing on into the night on the moonlit porch . . .

Among the directors who are receiving congratulations for planning all these pleasant surprises are Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Weld Richardson, Alexander Wheeler, William G. Reuter, Priscilla Phelan, Arthur M. Jones, Mrs. Samuel S. Stevens and Mrs. John Zinsser of Villa Nova, Pa., and Manchester . . .

In spite of the enjoyable summer program already well under way along the shore, Connie Turner and her family, the Howard Turners, with their sons, Jackson and Howard R., are all going to be in England long enough to have their address listed as care of Brown and Shipley, London . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Wrightington are ensconced in their home, Driftwood, at Marblehead Neck, and others who have recently joined the colony on the Neck are the Walworth Pierces who have opened Ledgemere for the season . . .

Chatty Notes of Social Circles

MRS. GEORGE KNIGHT and Miss Rhoda Johnson were among the members of the Toll Bridge Club who held a luncheon and bridge meeting at the 1812 House Monday afternoon. Others at the luncheon were Mrs. Henry Woodhill. Miss Winifred Samson, Mrs. Dana Perkins, Mrs. Ralph Armington, Miss Jennie Prescott and Mrs. Henry Falvey.

DEB LAST Season, Now A Bride

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

LESLIE LINDSEY MEMORIAL CHAPEL was the scene of another fashionable wedding yesterday when Miss Peggy Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Wright of Waban, became the bride of Winthrop Lane Brown of Milton. Wearing a family heirloom gown of ivory satin, the bride carried a small, old-fashioned bouquet of gardenias. Photo shows the happy couple emerging from the chapel after the ceremony.

JOIN JUNE BRIDES

Shirley Fay In Belmont Ceremony

MARBLE CHANCEL of St. Joseph's Church in Belmont was gaily banked with spring flowers for the wedding of Shirley Fay and Charles Douglas Wheeler of Brookline which took place this morning at 10 o'clock.

The Rev. Robert Barry officiated at the ceremony and a reception to the bridal pair was staged in the Sheraton Room of the Copley-Plaza.

Shirley was one of the season's most attractive brides as she walked altarward on the arm of her father, Francis M. Fay. Her dainty mousseline de soie gown was topped with a long veil of tulle which fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. A bouquet of white orchid completed the bride's costume.

Serving as maid of honor was Dorothy Woodbury of Brookline, who wore a deep purple horsehair hat with her matching chiffon gown fashioned on the empire lines.

Clad in similar gowns of variegated chiffon and carrying arm bouquets of spring blooms were the quartet of bridesmaids . . . Helen Johnston of Brookline, Mary Groden of Cambridge, and Ethel and Dorothy Sullivan of Brighton . . . cousins of the bride.

Best man was Harold Bickford of New York and Frederick Harkins of Brookline . . . cousin of the groom . . . headed the list of ushers which included Edward McGee of Winchester, Edward Connell of Hyde Park, Wynn Terwilliger of Watertown, William Lippman of Medford, Paul Collins of Brookline, William Coleman of Sharon and Ralph Proctor of Cambridge.

A round of parties preceded the nuptials . . . Dorothy Woodbury and Helen Johnston of Brookline were co-hostesses at a tea at the Ritz-Carlton . . . and last night, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Fay, parents of the bride, entertained at a dinner and dance at the Charles River Country Club.

After a six-week cruise to California, Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler will make their home in Waban.

Mrs. Wheeler attended Boston Academy of Notre Dame. Lasell Junior College, Trinity College and was graduated from Emmanuel College with the class of 1935.

Winchester Guild Holds Bridge

All roads lead to Rockport Country Club tomorrow where the Winchester Guild of Infant Saviour is holding forth at a June bridge. Many guild members are going down for luncheon at the club before the round of bridge and the organization is optimistic about swelling its coffers for its philanthropic causes.

Mrs. Jonathan Felt and Mrs. Thomas Hennessey will entertain a group of guests at the luncheon. Others who have made reservations include Mary Dwyer, Mrs. L. T. Osterberg, Mrs. Earl Woode, Mrs. Philip O'Rourke, Mrs. James Carr, Mrs. James Gaffney, Mrs. Peter and Mrs. Thomas Caulfield and Mrs. Thomas Feely.

Members of the Boston Guild of Infant Saviour who are lending their support to the undertaking are Mrs. William B. McDermott, president of the Boston organization, who will be hostess to a large party at the luncheon. Also bringing guests to the affair are Mrs. Robert Sheehan and Mrs. John Buckley.

Others making reservations for tomorrow's benefit are Mrs. M. H. Hintlian and Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini . . . an active pair in any of the guild's doings.

To aid the Boston College scholarship fund, an interesting lecture by Maurice Leahy is being held at the Philomathela clubhouse Tuesday evening.

Mr. Leahy's subject will be "My Memories of G. K. Chesterton and an Appreciation of His Poetry."

Mr. Leahy is former secretary of the University Catholic Society and of the Pax Romana Group in London. Hilaire Belloc, well-known historian, served as president of the group, and G. K. Chesterton was vice-president of the literary organization.

Milton Girl Weds in Capital

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS MOROSINI of Brush Hill road, Milton, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Melena Louise, to Roderick Koenig Eskew, of Charles Town, W. Va. The ceremony took place last Saturday at Washington, D. C., after which the bridal couple left on a trip to Hot Springs, Virginia, and Asheville, North Carolina.

The bride's sister, Rose, was her only attendant.

Mrs. Eskew was graduated from Simmons College and has traveled and studied extensively abroad. She is active in the Club Espagnol of Boston and the Portland Players.

Mr. Eskew was graduated from the University of Arizona and also studied at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Garnett Eskew of Charles Town, West Virginia.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS —TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS!

A strong delegation from Rhode Island will be represented when contestants meet at Franklin Field, Blue Hill and Talbot avenues, Dorchester, on Monday, July 6, to decide the outdoor championship of New England in the Boston American wing's model plane air races for Junior Birdmen.

Five Rhode Island youths have officially entered and include Louis Marcucelli, 19, of 140 Rhode Island, avenue, Pawtucket, whose membership number in the Junior Birdmen is 44, indicating that he was among the first to join.

Jean Hill

Louis is always a strong contender though of late luck has been against him in numerous major honors. The other four are: Leslie B. Stuart, 18, of Cranston, an ace in the Boston wing, and always in the thick of a model plane fight; his brother, Richard K. Stuart, 20; George Sholes of Cranston and Grant Logan, 17, of Pawtucket.

Other late entries include:

George Abagis, 15, of Everett, a member of the Leaping Lenas squadron; William J. Blanchard, 15, of Greenwood; George R. Cardin, 18, of Attleboro; Earle Colwill, 18, of Jamaica Plain; Edward A. Drury, 15, of Fall River; Benjamin Falabella, 15, of Greenwood; Leonard Gelfand, 17, of Roxbury; Arnold Greenbaum, 14, of Dorchester; Ralph Goodrow, 17, of Montreal; Russell A. Grout, 17, of Greenwood; Emilio J. Ialenti, 14, of Mattapan; Wayne G. Johnson, 20, of East Bridgewater; Francis, 13, and Peter Limmer, 15, of Jamaica Plain; Joseph McCarthy, 14, of Medford; Paul C. Wilcox, 13, of North Quincy; and Martin Phillips, 12, of Everett, who is making steady progress in model plane competitions.

Annelisse Dorrwachter, 15, of 9 Woodside avenue, Jamaica Plain, whose persistency in Junior Birdmen contests is bound to be rewarded some time with a prize, will be among the record number of girls who have registered for the outdoor air races.

Jean Hill, Junior Birdwoman of Newburyport, has won another prize, a trip with her mother to St. Johns, N. B. and Digby, N. S. on the Eastern Steamship Lines on August 4. Her trip is one of 20 prizes awarded in a national essay contest. She wrote a 1200-word essay on "The Relation of the American Merchant Marine to Agriculture, Manufacturing and Labor." About 35,000 entries were submitted.

During July she will be councillor in the Newburyport Y. W. C. A. camp at Kingston, N. H.

Orchestra Star To Enter Films

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, June 25—The quickest contract in the history of pictures was signed Monday night in Chicago between Harry Cohn of Columbia and Carl Grayson of the Henry Busse Orchestra playing at the Drake Hotel.

Cohn has a terrible yen for "Is It True What They Say About Dixie," and when Grayson sang it he called him over to the table and said, "How about going into pictures?" "Okay," said Grayson. So Cohn pulled a paper out of his pocket and signed him then and there.

Louella O. Parsons

P. S.—Grayson arrives in Hollywood as soon as he finishes his contract with the orchestra, and all hands at Columbia have been told to get ready to welcome a male Grace Moore and to find stories accordingly.

It is a pleasure to report that Bill Fields' temperature is down to 99 degrees, and that he is telling jokes for the first time in many moons. Paramount is so encouraged over his progress toward health that another story is being prepared against the day of his return. It is the story of an American business man with a penchant for juggling, and fits Bill to a T. The title will be either "Bag of Tricks" or "Don't Look Now." But under any name a Bill Fields' film is fun.

Gertrude Niessen stopped them cold at a popular cafe when she sang her blues songs last Sunday. Up to the time she made her appearance she couldn't land a job at any studio simply because she wasn't the usual cutie type. But remembering Eleanor Powell's tremendous success as a dancer, Louis B. Mayer asked her to come to the studio for a test the very next day. So don't be surprised if Miss Niessen and MGM get together on a contract.

Snapshots of Hollywood

No luck for CARY GRANT—just as he is shipped out to Alaska for three months, MARY BRIAN arrives on his home lot; the good luck Chinese joss on "The Good Earth" set was struck by lightning during our recent unusual weather; DANNY WINKLER spreading the good news that FRED WARING is now a pop; AL SANTELL spreading his own good news that he is the father of a daughter; LIAM O'FLAHERTY surprising everyone by returning to Hollywood; he wrote a book panning the town, in spite of the warm reception accorded him and his "Informer"; now he will write a RICHARD DIX yarn; GLENDA FARRELL continuing to smile on CRAIG REYNOLDS, lunching with him. That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Here's a Winning Screen Combination

Clark Gable and Jeanette MacDonald are the stars of "San Francisco," the new film which comes to both the Loew's houses, the Orpheum and the State, tomorrow. They are shown in a scene from the new screen hit.

Nightingale Story Told On Screen

Directed by William Dieterle, who was responsible for the handling of "The Story of Louis Pasteur," a new Warner Bros. picture, "The White Angel," will have its Boston premiere tomorrow on the screen of the Metropolitan Theater.

Kay Francis is starred in "The White Angel," which is based on the story of the revered Florence Nightingale. A superlative cast appears in Miss Francis' support. Ian Hunter, Donald Woods, Nigel Bruce, Henry O'Neill, Donald Crisp, Billy Mauch, Phoebe Foster and George Caine are among the other players.

Patricia Bowman, famous ballerina of Broadway, headlines a lavish stage revue called "High Jinks." Miss Bowman was seen in Boston in "The Ziegfeld Follies" and "Calling All Stars."

* * *

A topical film entitled "Parole" is featured in the Keith-Memorial program for the next week which begins tomorrow. The accompanying feature film is "Little Miss Nobody," with Jane Withers playing the role of an orphan who is restored to her father. Ralph Morgan plays the father.

"Parole" includes Henry Hunter, Ann Preston, Grant Mitchell, Alan Dinehart, Burton Churchill, Alan Hale in the large cast. Jane Darwell, and the former "Western" hero, Harry Carey, appear in "Little Miss Nobody."

LAUDS FIGHT FILM

Warren Brown Turns Movie Critic

Mr. John A. Malloy,
Managing Editor, Boston Evening American,

Dear Jack: Remember me? I used to work with you in Chicago. Well, I'm here watching our Cubs get on their way toward another pennant, and when I dropped in to call on you I found, instead, your motion picture critic, Miss Marion French, and darned if she didn't put me to work writing a fight story picture, or a fight picture story, or something. Anyhow, here it is.—WARREN BROWN.

With all due respect to the pictorial elegance of Claire Trevor in "Human Cargo," it is a German actor, and a most dramatic one, Herr Max Schmeling who furnishes the "KO" in the RKO Boston Theater this week.

Herr Max is the lead in the Boston showing of the fight pictures. And it is not necessary to ask "What fight pictures?" They are a faithful, accurate and unusually clear production of the knocking out of the erstwhile sensational "Brown Bomber," Joe Louis.

Seeing the fight, as it made its sensational way through those 12 rounds at the Yankee Stadium in New York last week, few were willing to believe what they witnessed. So the pictures serve, in their way, as an argument settler.

Boston fight fans have been thronging to the RKO Boston this week, trying to find out just what it was that many of the country's leading sports writers run their wells of adjectives dry trying to present an adequate description of the spectacular downfall of the Detroit fighter.

Moved in to the RKO Boston as one corner of a program that includes as well the comedy "Three Of a Kind," the fight pictures seem to be the main attraction.

Because of the one-sided viewpoint the fight critics took of the contest (before), many folks decided it was useless to attend it and see the inevitable. The fight pictures, clearly enough, are making up for that "morning after" feeling of the fans who are sorry now they didn't go.

Oh, yes, before I forget, Brian Donlevy, Alan Dinehart and Ralph Morgan support Miss Trevor, but only the canvas supported Joe Louis, at the finish, after most of the fight picture witnesses wondered what was holding him up for every round from the fourth to the 12th.

Pops Program

The following program will be given under the direction of Arthur Fiedler at tonight's Symphony Hall Pops concert:

"Carmen" prelude ..... bizet

"WHEN I LOVED YOU"

By Hazel Livingston

They took their plates, found their favorite sheltered swing on the back veranda and ate like the healthy young animals they were.

"I wish I had another biscuit," Jan sighed, "and some more coffee."

"And I want some more crab."

But they sat their plates on the little iron table, and she moved a little nearer to him.

"I love you, Jan."

"Enough to get me another biscuit?"

"Enough to forego my second helping of crab."

"But I'm still hungry."

"So am I, I'll go in a minute."

"No, don't go. You'll be going away forever soon."

"Jan, don't say that!"

"You're going away."

Lowell's Promise

"Yes, but I shall come back. In another year I'll be 21. And when I am 21 I shall marry you. Do you forget that I promised you that?"

"X-no. But you WILL be going away."

"I must. I have no choice until I am of age. Oh, Jan! Jan, darling, don't make it too hard for me!"

His dark head went down on her shoulder. She held him tightly against her thin, hard body. Her heart beat frenziedly under the lace of her dancing dress.

Music floated out to them, as if from some distant place. Far away laughter tinkled. The spicy sweetness of flowering shrubs came up from the garden, and the fresh, damp sweetness of wet grass.

Heartsick and poignantly happy, she held his relaxed, heavy body in her tired arms. Her foot had gone to sleep, but she didn't care. She kissed the top of his head gently. So lightly that he didn't even know.

She thought: I can't bear it. I can't live for a year without him. I wish there'd be an earthquake or something, and we'd die together, like this. As she thought of death, and never living in the house together, tears stood in her eyes.

But every fiber of her being was singing and alive, because she held him in her arms.

People were going home. The men from the orchestra filed out the side door, their dark-swathed instruments bulging grotesquely in the half light.

"I must take you home," he said, lifting his head his dark eyes troubled, his hand clinging tightly still to hers.

"It must be late. Have they all gone?"

But she was too languid, too dreamy, to move or care.

Lights went off in the house. The French doors at one end of the veranda were being closed, bolted.

"Wait a moment, will you?" Lowell called.

The butler opened the doors again stuck his head out. "Who's out there? Oh, it's you, Mr. Lowell. Excuse me, sir. They've all gone, sir and I thought—"

Embarrassed, faintly frightened, Jan hurried to the door. She felt the man's eyes upon her, appraising her. She wondered if her hair was mussed, her dress creased.

Inside the house all was quiet. She crept softly up the stairs. In the blue room, where the girls had left their wraps, she found a sleepy-eyed maid still waiting, her mother's mink coat, borrowed for the occasion, lying in solitary state on the blue taffeta bedspread.

The senora?

But perhaps she'd better not ask. Perhaps she'd already gone to her room. In the crowd of departing guests it would be easy for her to forget that one girl had not come to her to say good-bye.

Still . . . it wasn't just the thing to do.

She hesitated, wrapping the coat around her, oblivious of the impatient maid.

"Come, Jan," Lowell whispered from the open door.

He had slipped into a long, dark overcoat, his hat and gloves were in his hand.

Jan looked about her. A last look. Goodbye, dear house. Goodbye, dear house that may never be mine.

Then quietly, silently, she tiptoed down the stairs and went out into the darkness, with Lowell by her side.

"Did you have a nice time?" Evelyn asked at breakfast.

"Yes," Jan said, ignoring prunes and slightly burnt toast, sipping her coffee dreamily.

"Meet any new people?"

"No. Yes, I think so. I don't know. Lowell's coming this afternoon. We're going for a ride. They're sailing tomorrow, you know—at noon."

"We might have him to dinner," Evelyn said, "Or we might get him to take us somewhere. I'll be alone, Dorathea's staying down town with somebody."

"Oh, no, he couldn't. He has another date."

"Well!" Evelyn said, "When I was a girl, and a boy was interested in a girl as Lowell pretends to be in you, he didn't have another date the day before he sailed for South America! It seems to me—"

"Who's Dorathea having dinner with?"

"Oh, the same girl she's been out with pretty near every night for the last two weeks. A girl. You'd think in a stock and bond house she'd meet some men. A girl! Well, I suppose you and I can stay home and eat off the kitchen table like a couple of old maids.

"I'm beginning to feel like one, and Dorathea acts like one, and as for you I'm sure I don't know what to think. Lowell acts about as peculiar as anybody I ever—"

"Oh, Dorathea will be getting married some day."

"Well! I hope so! That was one thing mama didn't have to worry about. Edith was the first, and I was next and Francesca was the last—though she's the eldest. She thought the world of me when we were little—always called me her baby. I can't understand why she's so nasty now! If she'd only send for us all to come out to Manila!"

Evelyn Hopes

"All of us?" Jan was frightened. She didn't want to go to Manila, it was too far from Lowell.

"I don't know why not." Evelyn said. "Look at the match Francesca made, and she was 27 when she married. Of course—naturally—I'm older than that, but that doesn't matter these days. Everyone says it's the older women who are the most attractive."

Svelte Bathing Ensemble Tagged By Congress

NOW IT'S the silky tufted chenille rug that's lifted off the bedroom floor and slung around a fair bather's shoulders.

Bed-ticking, bed-sheeting and the very chintz at the windows have been dragged onto the fashion scene. They've made grand—and even glamorous—conquests in the field.

And if you never realized how glamorous a chenille rug could look across your shoulders, try on one of the new capes. Miss Betsy Byron models a Fashion Congress ensemble of svelte blue knit suit in waffle weave with lacy white straps and the striped chenille cape. Brilliant gold, green, red, blue and white stripes are to be had, or two-tone colorings.

A longer chenille cape is available, but its swirl is more dramatic and belongs on a very tall girl. The short, extremely full cape worn by Miss Byron has the pert flare of a medieval trumpeter's uniform . . . and it's said to lend grace and slimness to the nether limbs. The bathing outfit is moderately priced.

For shopping information on suit, cape or rubber shoes, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Liberty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

By IDA JEAN KAIN

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

IN REDUCING, where you lose is just as important as how much you lose. As weight is removed, there are certain obstinate bulges which demand individual attention. When annoying fat pads here and there elude the direct line of pull in exercise, try massage and kneading.

One of those handy little vibrators will help you to break down fatty resistance, or you might try slapping and pummeling—fat pads can't take it! These measures have double action in that they soften the lumps and stimulate circulation, which aids in the disposal of waste tissue.

Take the vibrator to that hump on the back of the neck, which is not easily reached by exercise. Erase this cushion of fat with massage, then forever after hold up your head to keep it away.

Perhaps the most annoying bulge, which simply won't respond to reasonable exercise, is that on the side of the hip, directly opposite the hip bone. Massaging or pummeling will do more to reduce these fat lumps than any single exercise ever could. There is always some way to get at these pudgy little mounds, so apply all the tricks of the reducer's trade.

Stretching affords an excellent technique for dealing with the waistline bulges. Add a twist to the stretch to reach out-of-the-way spots and do your figure a good turn. Center the line of pull through the offending bulge and force the controlling muscles into action. Let's try it: Arms above the head, fingers locked, s-t-r-e-t-c-h and p-u-l-l. Bend to the right, back to the front, then bend to the left. Now, bend forward and backward. Be sure that you pull upward with your arms continually, holding the hips squarely to the front.

Stretch your figure into the limber suppleness of adolescence with Ida Jean Kain's leaflet "Stretch the Fat from Waistline, Ribs and Wishbone." Send a large self-addressed, stamped envelope to this paper for your free copy.

Indigestion Causes

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

NOWADAYS WE hear a great deal about what to eat, when to eat and how to eat. Yet the medical profession continues to report an increasing prevalence of heartburn, indigestion, dyspepsia and other annoying digestive complaints.

A great many of these disturbances can be traced to faulty eating habits. It is not so much what we eat, as it is how we eat. Too many persons are careful in their choice of food, but eat it hurriedly and at irregular hours.

One of the most common causes of gas pains, heartburn and indigestion is the rapidity with which most persons eat their meals. Too few persons appear to realize that perfect digestion depends upon the digestive juices. These are poured out as food is taken into the system. The tissues that supply these juices are not sufficiently stimulated when we eat our food rapidly, neither are they if we eat under certain abnormal mental or physical conditions. Exhaustion, excessive fatigue, nervousness and worry are destructive of proper digestion.

MAY BE SERIOUS

It is true, too, that in many cases of indigestion the fault is not the choice of food or the manner of eating it. It may be due to an irritation or inflammation of the stomach. At times the symptoms of dyspepsia may be the first warning of an ulcer of the stomach, a tumor or even something worse.

Because some real trouble may exist is the reason why it is never advisable to resort to taking so-called "indigestion tablets." It is true that various patent medicines give relief, but too often it is only temporary and unfortunately such treatment may serve to mask the real underlying cause.

My advice to all who suffer from persistent indigestion is to consult a doctor.

You Need a Handy Atlas

IT'S NOT ENOUGH to know about your own town or state any more.

The spotlight of the news, of conversation of your own interests may fall on any state in the Union. Cousin Bill moved to San Angelo, Texas.

Why, it's on the Colorado river! What's that doing down in Texas? Must be two Colorado rivers.

Then your eye roves over the Nevada. You can't believe it! Reno is farther west than either San Diego or Los Angeles, California!

And what a lot of foreign cities changed their names after the World War! Back to the old native name. Famous old Constantinople became Istanbul (Istan-bul). Canton, China, is now often called Kwang-Chow. That peace center, The Hague, sometimes crops up as 's-Gravenhage, though none of us home folks will ever really believe in beginning a word with 's!

Makes you feel proud to know these things, just the same. To be able to tell people that Ethiopia is three times as big as Italy, for instance.

Our handy INTERNATIONAL ATLAS AND GAZETTEER OF THE WORLD gives you just the facts you want. Ten maps in full color show in detail the countries of the world. Charts give airline distances in United States and other countries. Lists of cities, populations, areas of countries, governments, products, briefly lined up.

Send 15c for our booklet, INTERNATIONAL ATLAS AND GAZETTEER OF THE WORLD, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 100 West 10th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Value of Self-Control

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Self-control is just as valuable a quality at Contract as in most walks of life. Opportunities for its use arise in many different forms; even in the non-technical matter of keeping one's temper under provocative conditions (induced either by partner or by Fate).

Another form of self-control is involved in trap-bidding. How many players would have reaped West's reward in the hand described below?

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ 8 5 4 2 ♡ 6 ◇ J 9 8 5 3 ♣ A Q 10
♠ K Q J 10 ♡ A K Q J 7 ◇ 6 4 ♣ 7 2	North W E S	♠ — ♡ 5 4 2 ◇ Q 10 7 2 ♣ K J 9 6 4 3
	South ♠ A 9 7 6 3 ♡ 10 9 8 3 ◇ A K ♣ 8 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

It required restraint for West to pass over the opening spade bid. As a matter of fact, he did not even hope that North-South would reach such an exalted height as four-odd in spades against his holding; he was "laying back" for smaller game, North's jump-raise (which was an inexcusable "stretch") may have been music to South's ears but it was much more delightful to West!

West did not make the mistake of choosing a heart for his opening lead. He realized that there was a grave chance of finding the dummy very short in hearts and therefore set about insuring his heart tricks by removing dummy's ruffers. His lead of the King of spades, followed by East's failure to follow suit, was the harbinger of disaster, from declarer's point of view.

And, as the cards lay, there was no way to stop the massacre. The futility of leading a heart to take out dummy's singleton was apparent—West would get on lead and draw all of dummy's trumps.

Declarer cashed the Ace and King of diamonds and then tried the club finesse. When it lost to East, the fat was in the fire. East returned a heart, West won and led out his trumps.

After that he collected three heart tricks, for a grand total of eight tricks and 100 honors—a penalty of 1500 points! A notable victory for self-restraint and a crushing defeat for North's super-optimistic raise.

HOUSEWARMING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have been invited to a housewarming party. Should I send the gift in advance or may I deliver it in person on the night of the party?

2. Would a card with the name of the giver be sufficient, or should good wishes be expressed? If so, what wording should I use?

B.

1—We usually take our housewarming presents with us when we go to the housewarming party, as we do to a shower.

2—This is such a personal party, with such a charming idea for the opening of a new home, that a note of good wishes is a pleasant way of expressing our friendliness. Maybe something like this:

Dear Mary and John:

I'm so happy at your happiness! May this little gift tell to you two dear friends how devoted I am to you and what especially deep and high prayers I dedicate to the happiness that I want always to "be at home" in this new home of yours.

Love to you both, and blessings on 219 Park street!

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Boy With Permanent Wave And Girl in Trousers Are Quite Alike

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

His hair, believe it or not, was permanently waved. His cheeks were too red—rouged, I suspect. And he walked with girlish, mincing steps.

Poor boy, if he only knew what we commuters were thinking this morning or heard just a few of the things we were saying. Mary, who sat across the aisle, was almost hysterical with laughter. John, her brother, didn't say a word—too disgusted, I presume. Even the conductor grinned as he went by.

No, I don't know who the young man was, don't care. Like other women I hate beautiful men, especially those who seek to enhance their charms, artificially. But I do know one thing about him, a thing that even he, perhaps, doesn't realize. And that is this: His matrimonial chances are as completely wrecked as the house lightning struck. Every thinking girl would a thousand times prefer spinsterhood to him as a husband.

Mary, across the aisle, was still laughing. She'd look at the poor, girlish boy, whisper something to her brother, and break out in fresh peals. It was like a circus, only better. And her laughter was intoxicating. Every woman about us had joined her before the train had gone 10 miles.

A LITTLE HYPOCRITE

I looked at Mary. I couldn't help it. I studied her more critically than I ordinarily would. And I also laughed, not so much at the young man Mary found so amusing, but at Mary herself.

There she sat, clad in blue slacks, mannish sweater, and hair no longer than her brother's. Low-heeled shoes, cotton hose, tan-and-white wristwatch—as mannish as the permanently-waved boy was womanish. And, what's more, she was a hypocrite.

Women's and men's tastes differ, that's why Mary couldn't realize her appearance was as distasteful to men as the feminine boy's was to her, and that only good manners prevented their laughing at her.

Men will not marry women who try to look like their brothers. Tweeds, call them what you will, rough shoes and plain felt hats never won a man, and never will. And the girl, of Mary's type, who thinks dressing like a boy is the way to attract a boy is deluding herself even more than the youth who waves his hair and paints his face. The two are in the same class; one's as bad as the other.

If I had a daughter who insisted on going about in slacks, shorts and mannish attire, I'd buy a good, full-length mirror and I'd have her look at herself at least a half-dozen times a day.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My wife and I no longer have anything in common, and the physical emotion I once felt for her has ceased to exist. She is so lacking in everything I admire that marriage with her is a farce that should be ended.

If we go to a restaurant, she is always saying, "We can't afford this and that and costs too much." At the theater she's always gazing around to see whom she knows.

She's a good housekeeper—good, clean and all that sort of thing. But she's just a housekeeper, nothing more. The backyard gossip, the neighborhood scandal and the corner store sale constitute her entire life.

Do you blame me, Miss Fairfax, for desiring a divorce, even if I do lack the courage to tell my wife I want one? FRANK.

MY DEAR FRANK:

Who is the "other woman"? How often do you see her? Have you discussed marriage with her?

When a husband begins seeing faults in the woman he married, you can always be certain that the "other woman" has entered the picture. There's positively no doubt about it.

Wake up, young man, before it is too late. Your wife is practical and frugal because your inability to earn more money made her practical and frugal. She gossips and listens to scandal because you failed to provide other interests for her. She was loyal to you, more loyal than you deserve. And now she's paying the penalty.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Married Comrades

CHAPTER 37

KATHERINE WAS recalling the cruel letter of Ruth Hayes, line by line with me, as, after my confession that I "went berserk" upon reading it, I called it forth from my memory and mentally reread it.

I knew this by the look on her face when I looked up from my reverie—of seconds only—and saw the tortured expression in her eyes.

"Please hurry and tell me about your letter to Jack" she said, I answered both voice and eyes in my hastened speech.

"I was sure—then—that Jack did not know she had written that letter," I began.

"Do you mean you are not sure now?" she asked, and when I hesitated in replying, she said feverishly:

"Please be honest with me. Tell me exactly what you think."

"I wish I knew myself what to think about it." I told her with such conviction in my voice that I saw belief in her eyes.

COULDN'T BELIEVE IT

"Sponsoring such a letter, or even giving a woman any reason for thinking she could accomplish anything by writing it, is so foreign to Jack's nature, as I knew him, that I just couldn't believe it," I went on, "I felt as if something must be done about it at once, and, in the heat of my anger, I sat down and wrote to Jack, telling him of the letter you had received, and quoting every word of it to him."

"Madge!" Katherine ejaculated. "How did you ever—oh! I forgot your wonderful memory!"

"It is nothing, when one has been trained as my mother trained me from babyhood," I said. "I read the letter over two or three times, you may remember, and I naturally absorbed it."

On one point I was much relieved, Katherine was betraying no rancor, no contemptuous disgust at my interference with her affairs, such as she had every right to show. Indeed, I began to wonder if she were not a bit grateful that I had interfered, secretly hopeful of some favorable result to come from my meddling.

JACK DIDN'T RECEIVE IT!

"I asked Jack to write to me as soon as he received it, but thinking it over from all points of view, I am sure now that it never reached him. Indeed, I tried hard enough to fag it in the hours immediately following its sending, but to no avail."

"What do you mean?" she asked, surprise in her voice.

"Why," I answered with a ruefull smile, "I was so ashamed of my meddling when I gave it a sober second thought, that I came back upstairs intending to destroy it. But I had left it addressed and stamped in my sack on my desk, and one of the girls, mailing her own letters, took this one along, thinking she was doing me a favor."

"Perhaps she was doing me one," Katherine said softly, and I knew that if she had felt any momentary resentment at my interference, she felt it no longer.

COULDN'T INTERCEPT LETTER

"I didn't consider it one," I said, "I had sent the letter to the offices of Jack's company in New York, asking the mail clerk to remail it in a firm envelope."

"Why? Oh! I see why you did that!" Katherine interposed.

Yes," I answered quickly "I was very sure that a woman would intercept any private letter to Jack where she might not dare to open one especially come from his firm. But when I found that the letter had been mailed next morning. But efficiency had been my enemy. The letter already had gone out for good or for evil. But I never received an answer to it."

Katherine leaned forward her eyes fairly blazing into mine.

"Tell me, do you think that woman got hold of that letter and kept it from Jack?"

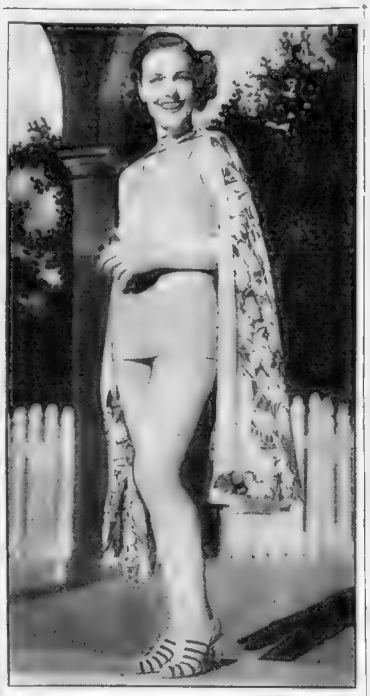
Walk in Beauty and in Fashion

By DONNA GRACE



POSED BY FRANCES FARMER

IT WILL BE indeed a poor summer outfit that does not include at least one pair of new shoes and some beach sandals. Shoes are really a most important part of every costume. They will, as we are reminded, make or mar any costume.

Nice-looking, well-fitted shoes will assure an air and style that is absolutely necessary to good grooming. There is a real comfort now about the selection of shoes that is such an improvement over the old methods.

We remember when the really smart shoes came only in small sizes, 4B was the deadline in pretty designs, and if one's feet called for a size 5 or 6, or larger, there were the plain homely lasts that may promise comfort but no great effort was made to turn out smart shoes for the average-sized foot.

• • •

That, as you know, has all been changed, and the manufacturers now have a sense of style and correct grooming that conforms with the dictates of the world's greatest fashion artists.

A few days ago I visited one of our famous shoe manufacturers, and after showing me many of the exquisite new spring styles he brought out some books of dress and suit fashion along with yard samples of all he new fabrics to show close harmony in the two fashion groups.

The costume today is taken as an ensemble, and the shoes must be a part of each costume design.

• • •

It is a comfort, too, to know that size is no barrier to stylish feet. The rule is to fit the feet properly, and the size will be in proportion with the rest of the figure. Always have enough length for comfort. Short shoes will injure the feet and cause bunions.

You must make some effort to keep the ankles trim, if they are inclined to be heavy. All fat, ungainly ankles can be molded back into slender lines.

I have a splendid foot treatment that will give you foot comfort and also a leg and ankle reducing method. There is no charge for either, but please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for each and address Donna Grace, Boston Evening American.

Martha Lee

Food for the Wedding

In the spirit of the month of June, the Martha Lee Cooking School of the Boston Evening American went bridal yesterday and presented the proper thing in food for the wedding reception.

There were heart shaped wedding cakes, pieces and, of course, the spectacle cake.

In the matter of cake we learned the real, swank wedding serves three cakes. There is THE wedding cake which is usually a fruit cake, then there is the bride's cake of white sponge and lastly the bridegroom's cake of dark spice.

If a wedding breakfast is served, the standardized menus of chicken patties or lobster were given the highest stamp of approval.

And still again in the spirit of June, picnics were discussed and the proper foods and accoutrements for the successful day back to nature.

BICYCLE LUNCH

And as we learned picnics are not just picnics. There is the bicycle lunch, the "all comforts of home" picnic, the "everybody in the car own sandwiches" picnic, the "don't take anything along" picnic, the "don't carry anything back" picnic, the picnic "cooked out of doors" and the out of door meal.

"Picnics now-a-days are a scientific affair," Miss Lee pointed out.

"There is no longer reason for Mother to be exhausted from preparing food before she starts out."

If you think as we thought we would, when we attended the Martha Lee session, that picnic means sandwiches then you're, to put it mildly, away off in left field. In other words, in error.

The successful and well-done picnic has all the comforts of home.

Even the return to nature must have swank these days.

The modern appointments to a day at the seashore, or at the country, are breath-taking in their ingenuity.

PICNIC SUPPLIES

There are new cups (paper, we think) that keep the hot beverages hot and the cold beverages cold.

There is an ultra-modern picnic kit that has forgotten nothing. It provides everything.

The stores, Miss Lee explained, are showing ovens which will fit in anyone's car and will cook any kind of complicated meal.

And if you will insist upon the luxurious sandwich for the picnic, do not make it at home. Slice the bread prior to leaving, bring along the butter, and make your sandwiches fresh on the scene.

Yesterday was the last session of the school.

Necessary articles for the picnic proper were provided by Jordan Marsh Company. Flowers by Penn.

Radio Flashes

Programs Get Pushing Around On Air

By N. F. T.

Sawing the Rudy Vallee hour in half is made necessary by the big Democratic conclave doings (WEEI) tonight.

All his varieties can have is an amputated thirty minutes, from 8 to 8:30 p. m. From then until 10 o'clock, the Philadelphia political picnic holds forth. No regular "show-boat" program excursion on the air waves this week.

Music by the Roy Shields orchestra and the time troupe of Xavier Cugat along WBZ-WBZA channels will likewise be sidetracked. Which means the reverberating roar of rallying Democratic delegates may have the radio right of way from coast to coast, beginning at 8 o'clock. Philharmonic Symphony concerting is being edged out of its 8 to 9 o'clock place (WNAC) for the same purpose, with WAAB and WMEX also clearing the dial decks to give almost the whole evening over to seething Philly.

OASE OZONE OASIS

There will be a Bing Crosby setting (WEEI) however. This popular 10 to 11 o'clock offering escapes the wholesale schedule slashing by some seemingly strange inconsistency—and listeners galore are bound to be glad. In addition to the dry-wit dispensing of Bazooka Bob Burns, the Crosby man promises to introduce Bert Wheeler for added comedy and Toscha Seidel for some ultra-ultra classic violining.

• • •

Earlier in the night, Terry O'Toole, the local lad who has won his way along in the "mike" personality world, plans to outline the story of the name "O'Toole" as part of his "Irish Echoes" half hour (WAAB) between 7:15 and 7:45 p. m.

THIS FAR—THAT AIR

Freeman Gosden, known as "Amos" with "Andy" in radioland, has just turned over his bonus contesting fund for the education of young Negro students . . . Kay Smith bids the air audience a vocalizing adieu during her program (WNAC) at 7:30 this evening—leaving for a three-week summer vacation in Canada . . . Frank Fay finds it hard to time his program so alert studio men with stop watches must keep an eye on him toward the end of the hour just to get him off the air gracefully . . . Mrs. Melvin Mucklestone, national president of the Women's Legion Auxiliary, has a message for WBZA patrons at 4 o'clock this afternoon speaking in Springfield, where the Auxiliary is conventioning until Saturday . . . And Eddie Cantor announces his network comeback to date, October 2nd, that is a Sunday night feature (WNAC) over the 8:30 to 9 o'clock stretch.

REDS GAIN HOLD IN COLLEGES OF MAINE

Portland, Me., June 25—That Communism has gained a strong-hold in Maine colleges was declared today by the forum committee of 100 now combatting all subversive influences within the state.

This was told to a Boston Evening American reporter by Richard B. Walker, Portland attorney, and chairman of the committee.

"I have been amazed," he said, "at the evidences of Communistic activity that we have uncovered in this state. Portland and Stockland are hotbeds of radicalism.

"The chemistry of the growth of this tendency in our colleges. Communism has definitely gained a stronghold there.

"In talking with graduates, I have been astonished by the expressions of radicalism advanced by them. Apparently they are no 'ultra-educated' that the old fashioned principles of real Americanism do not satisfy them.

BOOKS BLAMED

"I believe that the Communistic and radical theories are being inculcated in the minds of the students within the classrooms themselves. I do not mean that the professors teach outright Communism, but from the books given the students to read they develop these anti-American viewpoints.

"Even the high school graduate is becoming more and more radical in his views.

"I have heard it stated recently that the high school principal of a certain central Maine town refused to have a patriotic speaker at the graduation exercises.

"This all points toward the growth of subversive influences which our organization is determined to probe.

"We firmly believe that legislation must be passed to protect the younger element of the state from foreign propaganda.

DRIVE OUT REDS

"We are dedicated to purely American principles. We are non-sectarian and open to all creeds. We are not connected with any political faction or part.

"We will drive the Red element out of Maine. But it will be a fight, and it will take the awakening of all public spirited citizens.

"There are hundreds of Communist party members here in Portland alone. They have been holding regular weekly meetings throughout the winter.

"It is not our purpose to name names, but to combat the subversive influences of their propaganda with teachings of true Americanism.

"But it is not Communism alone that is menacing the state today. In the large mill towns Fascist organizations have sprung up.

"We will be as militant in our fight against them as against the Communists.

TO OUST ALIENS

"Another important issue we are striving to place before the public is the employment of aliens on governmental projects.

"This unquestionably deprives American citizens from gainful employment and it is one reason why our relief rolls have increased.

"The forum committee of 100 of the association of patriotic organizations has been formed with the sole purpose of building up our government and to combat those who are seeking to destroy it by revolution.

"We do not believe in a war of aggression, but we do believe in preparedness to conserve peace.

"I have been instructed by the executive committee to write City Manager James Barlow to announce to him formally the conditions prevailing in Portland and of the organization of the forum committee of 100."

Meanwhile the committee received additional support today when several more patriotic groups joined their banner.

It was learned an important notice regarding the activity of the committee would be forthcoming in the very near future.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking acids and wastes out of the blood. A healthy person should pass about 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, waste stays in the body and may become poisonous. It may start nagging backaches, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't let it lay you up.

Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills.

Hopelessness Cited By Farm Woman

New York, June 25 (INS)—There is too much hopelessness in the land, believes Mrs. George B. Simmons, Missouri farm woman whose economic theories have attracted considerable attention as expressive of the attitude of the "average woman."

Writing in the July issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine Mrs. Simmons deplores the spirit of futility she has encountered.

"Some belief that sustained us," she says, "is gone. Everywhere there is too much of the tension of waiting; too much marking time until, as a younger ster recently expressed it 'something will have to break.'"

Make 'Em Cook

Lynn husbands were chuckling today as the result of an announcement by the local WPA office that Lynn girls are to be taught how to make biscuits, arrange beds and do other household duties.

French Guillotine Policeman's Slayer

Paris, June 25 (AP)—Arthur Malnieu, 33, convicted of slaying a policeman, died by the guillotine at dawn today. His was the first public execution in nearly four years.

The platform was set on Arago boulevard near the Sante prison. Nearby streets were roped off to keep all but 30 witnesses and officials from the enclosure. Witnesses and police lifted their hats as the blade dropped.

Civil War Vet, 99, To Wed Widow, 54

Old Forge, N. Y., June 25 (AP)—Charles Jeannette, 99-year-old Civil War veteran, was busy today preparing for his third wedding.

He said he would marry Mrs. Ella Blanche Manning, 54, a widow, on Sunday. Mrs. Manning confirmed the announcement.

When he was 98 years old, the veteran said that he would be married "before I'm 100," adding "after 100 a man is too old to marry."

Mrs. Manning, he said, was one of nine women who visited him at his invitation after he had received 106 letters following his announcement that he intended to wed again.

Jeannette's first wife died after 57 years of married life and his second, whom he married in Montreal in January, 1935, died two months later.

Haile Will Fight To Hold Sanctions

London, June 25 (AP)—Haile Selassie, exelled emperor of Ethiopia, departed for Geneva today to direct his conquered nation's last diplomatic stand against Italy.

The Ethiopian delegation to the League of Nations announced that he would seek the continuance of League sanctions against Italy, the conqueror of his country.

21.18 MILES PER GALLON!

Two stock Ford V-8 Sedans show outstanding economy with New Mobilgas in tank and Mobiloil in crankcase in 15,619-mile economy run—No oil added between 1,000-mile changes. Mobilubrication every 1,000 miles.

WHEN a car gives better than 20 miles to a gallon of gasoline through today's heavy traffic—that's news! And that's exactly what happened in this 15,619-mile economy test conducted by Standard Oil of New York, with two stock 1936 Ford V-8 Fordor Touring Sedans.

The Ford V-8's were selected to prove the high mileage and performance of the new Socony Mobilgas—America's largest selling gasoline—and Mobiloil. And prove them they did by delivering an average of 21.18 miles per gallon of gasoline for the entire runs and requiring no oil added between 1,000-mile changes! The Ford V-8 test cars were driven at legal speeds 24 hours a day for ten days. The cars were regular stock models . . . exactly the same kind of cars you can buy today from any Authorized Ford Dealer.

The tests illustrate one kind of Ford V-8 economy. But in addition to gasoline and oil mileage on a par with that of less powerful cars Ford V-8 economy includes low first cost, low cost financing, low upkeep costs and high resale value.

Get the whole story of Ford V-8 economy from your Ford Dealer—then get that V-8 feeling for ten minutes behind the wheel of this thrifty car!

ANN MARSTERS IN HOLLYWOOD

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

In my mail today I received the following letter which rather amuses me, as it seems to imply in me an importance which I do not possess.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

"The Boston Chapter of the Special Libraries Association is listing and analyzing collections of books, literary source material and whatsoever other items might have special subject value contained in the libraries of Massachusetts and in the possession of private collectors. When finished the work will be published in the form of a directory with comprehensive indices and will prove useful not only to librarians but to all scholars, research workers and special collectors.

"The committee is desirous of obtaining a record of all special collections in the hands of private collectors so that the list may be complete. A preliminary survey has shown a decided interest among collectors. For those, however, who would not want to have their names published we have arranged a subject listing only of their collections with some indication of their range and emphasis. In this case the person seeking information would be referred to an appointed librarian who, himself only, would consider the demand and approach the owner. The collector then could use his own judgment as to whether or not he wanted to see the person or answer the question.

Anyway "Thanks For the Compliment"

"This letter is to give you time to consider the matter and to introduce one of our members, Mr. William A. Robiver, who would like to see you some time soon to talk with you personally and answer whatever questions may arise.

"We hope you will be favorably inclined toward being listed in the directory, and that you will be willing to further the advancement of scientific and scholarly knowledge in this way.

"Sincerely yours,

"James F. Ballard, Director of the Boston Medical Library and Project Director for the Special Libraries Association of Boston."

My reply to this courteous and ingratiating letter can only be that of the darky who was asked to change ten dollars. I thank Mr. Ballard for the compliment.

I have often wished that when I was younger I had chosen a subject of particular interest to me and kept at the collection of books on that subject, however slowly and economically.

Only One Item of Value— and It Lost!

I can remember, however, only one item during all these years which might have accumulated such a value. In the summer of 1916, the year in which Eugene O'Neill had his first play produced on any stage, at the Provincetown Playhouse, he gave me a copy of his first published work, a volume of one act plays entitled "Thirst," dated 1914, printed in Boston by one of these publishers who will publish anything if the author will only pay for it.

The volume was later suppressed by O'Neill, I believe. It is no longer in print and is very scarce. Unfortunately, not foreseeing the extraordinary position which was to be Mr. O'Neill's in the history of his country's literature and drama, I promptly lent or lost the book. I have never seen a copy since.

I have always been more interested in what is in a book than in the accidental circumstances surrounding it. So far as I know I do not own a single first edition, except when by accident I have come into the possession of some utterly unimportant book by an utterly unimportant author. I have no doubt that I own many of these, but I have never taken the trouble to look them up.

Boondoggle Plan Might Be Tried

All is fish that comes to an English teacher's net. In course of twenty-five years I have acquired a lot of books, mostly in the way of professional material. Plenty of the odds and ends of British and American classical literature, lots of drama, plenty of biography, piles of contemporary fiction in which I have always been deeply interested, an embarrassment of reference books—no one of all which, so far as I know, is not procurable in the commonest public libraries of any size.

In my own case Mr. Ballard and his committee guessed wrong. That does not mean, however, that the project is not worth encouraging. There must be many gentlemen and ladies of means and taste in these parts who possess books, many or few, not publicly available, which might be life-savers to historians and other research workers. Of all the kind of thing commonly nicknamed "boondoggling" and carried on in part at least by federal funds, this seems to be one of the most useful and valuable. Under present conditions there seems to be plenty of public money available, which may not be available after January next.

Make hay while the sun shines, Mr. Ballard.

Kay Francis Believes Marriage Not For Stars

The Boston Evening American presents herewith the 19th story in a series of intimate glimpses into the life of filmland's capital—"ANN MARSTERS IN HOLLYWOOD." Miss Marsters is being given entree to all of the studios, and is writing her stories from behind the scenes in the land of make-believe. These stories will appear daily.

By ANN MARSTERS

Hollywood, Cal., June 25—On the set with Kay Francis:

We are sitting side by side on canvas chairs within the Warner Brothers studio. Before us is a sound stage showing the interior of a lovely room, with a broad stairway leading to the upstairs. A scene in Kay Francis' new picture, "Give Me Your Heart," is being shot—and the actors are George Brent, Roland Young and Patric Knowles.

Kay Francis seems very gay this morning. At the moment, she is laughing delightedly at George Brent. Director Archie Mayo is laughing, too. In fact, just about everyone on the set is laughing at Brent—except Brent. And this is why:

He has been running up and down the stairs—up and down, up and down—at least "a million times," he'll tell you. And he has gone through a whole package of cigarettes, because the property man has a notation in his book which states that in this particular scene, Brent's cigarette is such and such a length.

Of course, in the picture, you'll see Brent run casually down the stairs only once. He will greet his guests below, they will say a few words and disappear into another room. The whole scene will take about one minute.

KAY FRANCIS

ANN MARSTERS

Originally a Roxbury girl and once married to a Boston man, Kay Francis is just like an old neighbor to Ann Marsters when the Boston Evening American's feature writer interviews the lovely Warner Brothers star on her Hollywood set. They talked about clothes, of course, for clothes are Kay's hobby. In fact, she's regarded as one of the best dressed women in the films. Miss Francis comes to Boston's Metropolitan screen for a week beginning tomorrow in "The White Angel." She portrays the role of Florence Nightingale.

But Archie Mayo is determined that that minute will be a perfect jewel of a minute. Thus, Brent must keep on running up and down stairs until Mayo is satisfied with every movement, every word of the three players.

Then, in his own amusing way, Mayo will say,

"Thank you, nice people. You have made me very happy."

Sophisticated, Charming Lady

A hairdresser is hovering over Kay Francis, arranging each curl to its most becoming effect. Miss Francis, you know, does not go in for many curls, but there are little wings of fluffiness on either side of her head.

"I am feeling particularly fine this morning," she was saying, "because I have made the most wonderful discovery. And I want to tell all my friends about it."

What could it be?

"It's a sort of an exerciser," she said. "Something entirely new—and the most wonderful thing I've ever seen. All you have to do is sit on it, turn on the switch, and all your muscles get thoroughly exercised.

"It's particularly wonderful for me, because I'm too lazy to do any exercising of my own. I hate to exercise any way, and I don't enjoy sports. Now I have a machine to do it for me—and I'll keep young and healthy all my life."

She laughed, the typical Francis laugh that is low and musical. Her voice, too, is deep-toned and beautiful; suiting her personality to perfection.

Kay Francis is not very "different" from the person she appears to be on the screen—which makes her one of the rare cases in Hollywood. You probably imagine her to be a smoothly sophisticated, charming woman—and that is just what she is.

Perhaps you don't need to be reminded that she is a New Englander; that she was educated, principally, in the Roxbury schools and attended Notre Dame academy in the Fenway. Her name, then, was Katherine Gibbs, and when she was 17, she eloped with Dwight Francis of Pittsfield, Massachusetts.

Her second marriage was to William A. Gaston of Boston, whose father was mayor of Boston and governor of the state.

Evidently Kay Francis prefers New England men, for her third marriage was to Kenneth McKenna of Canterbury, New Hampshire.

"It was while I was married to Kenneth," she said, "that I spent so much time on Cape Cod. His parents had a home at Truro.

"I feel pretty sure," she went on, "that I won't marry again as long as I am in pictures. I suppose it's possible to make a success of both marriage and a movie career—but it's very, very difficult.

"The world sometimes attributes the failure of Hollywood marriages to 'temperament.' But I think that is very seldom the reason. I know that I'm not the least bit temperamental—am I Archie?"

Actress Called Temperamental

She called to Director Mayo who had finally told the "nice people" that they had made him very happy—and George Brent was resting in a near-by chair.

"Of course you're temperamental," answered Mayo. "You're one of the most temperamental women I've ever known."

Kay looked genuinely surprised.

"But I'm not," she insisted.

"Oh yes you are," contributed Mr. Brent. "You are very temperamental, Kay. You're never the same two days in succession—hardly two hours in succession."

"Well—I may have moods," she admitted, "but I don't think that means temperament. Not, anyway, what people mean when they refer to 'Hollywood temperament.'

"I think the latter is more or less of a pose; a sign that an actress has been definitely spoiled, or that she has a difficult disposition. She enjoys causing scenes and disturbing other people. Temperament can be a form of extreme selfishness."

Mayo and Brent quickly said that they hadn't meant that sort of temperament at all—and Mayo added:

"But all intelligent, artistic people have a certain amount of temperament—or you may call it moodiness if you like."

Career Takes Up All Star's Time

Kay Francis smiled.

"What I was going to say," she said, turning to me, "was, that Hollywood marriages fail so frequently because a movie career takes up so much of one's time and energy and interest.

"When both the husband and wife are in pictures, it is humanly impossible for them to be terribly absorbed in the other's future. Their own careers come first—and that's as it should be if they are going to succeed individually."

Such is her explanation—and such is her reason for believing that she will not marry again while she remains in pictures. But even as she said it, she admitted that no one can be too sure of what the future will bring.

Meanwhile—Kay Francis

$100,000 Will Case To Supreme Court

Salem, June 25—Mrs Mary H Marsh, 75, of Puritan avenue, Swampscott, in probate court here today entered an appeal to the Supreme Court in her attempt to inherit the entire $100,000 residue of the estate of her late husband, Edward L. Marsh, Boston wool importer.

In probate court here last week Judge Harry R. Dow disallowed her petition to have the residuary clause of her husband's first will be made part of a second will.

Her husband died February 18, 1935, and a will filed and allowed in May, 1935, contained no residuary clause. Mrs. Marsh presented a petition asking that a former will, dated September 24, 1927 be probated. She claims this will gives her the residue of the $100,000 estate.

Chilly Spell Ends, Warm Wave Due

Boston awoke with a chill this morning as the temperature registered 55 degrees at 6 a. m., but a warm spell was forecast by the weatherman.

Tomorrow's warm weather forecast, officials state, is based on the high temperatures this week in the Northwest. In Bismarck, N. D., yesterday it was 106 degrees, while in many other sections the mercury went over the 100 mark.

The coolest June 25 on record was in 1903, with the temperature at 48 degrees. The warmest was 91 in 1914 and 1923.

Cardinal to Award Prizes for Essays

Cardinal O'Connell will present prizes Sunday afternoon to winners in a diocesan essay contest in which participants discussed a book tracing development of religion and civil liberties in Maryland.

The presentation will take place in St. John's Seminary, Brighton.

The essays are based on the book "The Ark and the Dove," by J. Moss Ives. Parochial high schools and parish reading clubs turned out 400 contestants for prizes of $100 and $50 for the first and second place in each of the two groups.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Marjorie McBride

If Katharine Cornell needs an added sprig of laurel, here it is, tendered by Charlie Van, stage manager at the Shubert Theater for 20 years. He says the boys who work back of the drops think she's one of the nicest women in show business.

She never asks for special favors, and doesn't care where she is quartered. As a natural result, she gets the best dressing room, and studiously respectful attention from the stagehands.

MARJORIE McBRIDE

Van remembers Walter Huston when he played the old Boston Theater in vaudeville . . . the late Marilyn Miller as a happy-go-lucky leading lady with more stage-door-Johnnies than any woman on the boards . . . Mary Boland, only recently the star of "Jubilee," got a kidnaping note during the run, and four city detectives were assigned to roam the theater . . . everybody was on edge but Mary . . . Andy Tombes, comedian, was the only really superstitious actor he ever knew . . . Andy knocked on wood every time he said it was a fine day . . . he is now in the movies. Charlie Van swears that actors are not more superstitious than pipe-layers, bankers, or girls-about-town.

Show Girls Confide Romances to Charlie

Show girls and chorus girls confide in Charlie. During the run of an ordinary show, he has from two to six romances given him in confidence. He was around and conscious when Albert R. Erskine, of the Studebaker Erskines, wooed Florence Meredith Howard, appearing at his theater. They're married now.

Mr. Van says

"Joe Cook carries more paraphernalia than any other stage person, but he's popular backstage because he's a regular guy. When he moved in with 'Hold Your Horses,' it was like an invasion. But all the boys cheered.

"Two of the largest shows I ever was called on to mount were 'Chu Chin Chow' and 'Sons of Guns.'

"The late Jack Donahue, Boston-born, was a favorite with me and my men. Fritzi Scheff, not so much. She always carried her own electric sign, with her name on it, for the outside of her dressing room door."

• • •

First Show He Saw On Big Fight Night

It takes two and one-half days to set up most shows, according to Charlie. And 60 men to do the work. Then he reduces his staff.

Van remembers the first show he ever saw from the wings. It was "Up and Down Broadway," with Eddie Foy. It was the night of the Jeffries and Johnson fight.

It's a bit late to be commenting on bonus payments, but the Boston Sunday Advertiser, last Sabbath, carried an ad that is unusual. It read:

"I have received my bonus. Most of my debts I know of. I am now paying them. Do I owe you?"

It was signed "Harry Ginsberg, 169 Columbia road, Dorchester."

"All Wet," This Young Hero Gets a Reward

If Bobby Sullivan, 11-year-old son of the D. T. Sullivans of Auburndale, doesn't grow up to be one of the strong, silent men of the world, sue Girl-About-Town.

His parents were visiting the other day in Hingham. He was given permission to wander off by himself. He wandered down to Cushing pond.

Returning, he was wet all over. All he would say was:

"I jumped in the water my own self."

His parents were annoyed. It seemed so foolish. Next day, arrived a big box of candy and a note from the parents of Junior Porter of Maine street, Hingham, whom Bobby had saved from drowning. Junior is 6, and was sailing a boat in the pond when he fell in, and could use a friend.

Leo Connolly, lawyer, is a collector of dolls from foreign lands . . . Another doll collector is Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts, president of Philomathea Club, who has one that's been in her family for a century . . . SHARKEY 10 TO 9 CHOICE IN FIGHT

Jack Sharkey Sees Fortune Over Brubaker's Shoulder

Austen Lake

WHEN MAX SCHMELING EMERGED from his limbo last Friday night and smashed the custard filling out of Joe Louis, it warmed the homicidal cockles of Jack Sharkey's heart and flooded his old arteries with a resolve to take Phil Brubaker into Fenway's woodshed tonight and administer a similar licking.

The eldering Squire, who moves in his leisure between his rum pots on Canal street and his petunia pots on Chestnut Hill, is susceptible to suggestion. In his mental arithmetic he may figure if Schmeling, whose gifts as a common fist fighter he never held in esteem, can beat a Frankenstein like Louis, the brown-bugaboo who scared the wits out of the current line of undistinguished heavyweights for two years, why can't a Sharkey push over a less conspicuous figure like Brubaker and find his way back to the top of the ladder.

This seems sensible enough. Because Schmeling was a fistic classmate of Sharkey's in the dear days of the boom when cobblestone characters were yawning down opportunities to collect as much for a bout as a restrained effort in the prize ring as honest laborers piped to earn in a lifetime of productive toil. It was the golden era of Tex Rickard when $1 million was merely a promotional teaser and dickering did not begin to warm up till the bidding had passed the quarter-million mark, plus an option of 30 per cent.

SHARKEY SUDDENLY SERIOUS

UP TO SCHMELING'S KNOCKOUT of Louis, I doubt that Sharkey's comeback was impelled by anything more urgent than a wish to ease his boredom by knocking over a few stiffs for the exercise, and his idle curiosity to see how much of his vitality was left. He wanted to return to the beloved smells of the arena for its excitement.

But he refused a meeting with Joe Louis last winter when the Negro's agents were hungry for any gate attraction who wouldn't collapse like an oyster with the first pitch to the jaw. Jack said that his comeback intentions were still a little vague and that he wanted to do some more laboratory work before essaying a major flight. He would file the offer away for future reference.

But when Schmeling knocked out Louis, Jack became suddenly serious. He decided if Schmeling, from whom he acquired the heavyweight title on a June evening in 1930, can shoot his way back to the top and have an even chance to win back his crown, he too can be reckoned eligible despite his advanced years.

It illustrates the curious condition into which Schmeling's victory over Louis has plunged the fight market, and the dismal lack of youthful fighters who are in their physical and commercial prime. Except for Louis, momentarily discredited, and Brubaker, with only a moderate reputation East of the Sierras, there is none to wear the shoes of the wheel horses left over from a previous ring generation and who now are being dusted off and put back into circulation.

HARK FROM THE TOMB

THE MOON MUST BE IN THE RIGHT cosmic quarter to make times so propitious for men in athletic middle age. And all the antiquated spooks, who have declared themselves professionally dead—like Johnny Risko and Kingfish Levinsky, are wriggling out of the grave ceremonents to try another macabre whirl.

If Schmeling [illegible] and the scene is upside-down time—we of the press may live to see him resume the old royal feud [illegible] with Hitler [illegible] in a Paris boxing ring.

It was [illegible] in the attitude of [illegible] toward Max Schmeling the day after he ruined Louis' hopes. The camp [illegible] had treated him with a polite tolerance and half-concealed disdain in his farm cottage at Napanoch. I was one of them suddenly thronged about him when he gave a ballroom welcome at the Hotel Markham the day after the fight. They invited a sprinkling of his smile, sought his autograph and generally acted as obsequious folk in the presence of the mighty, somewhat as English tenants make mental courtsies, yank their forelocks and breath "Your Grace" to the Earl of Ramsbottom.

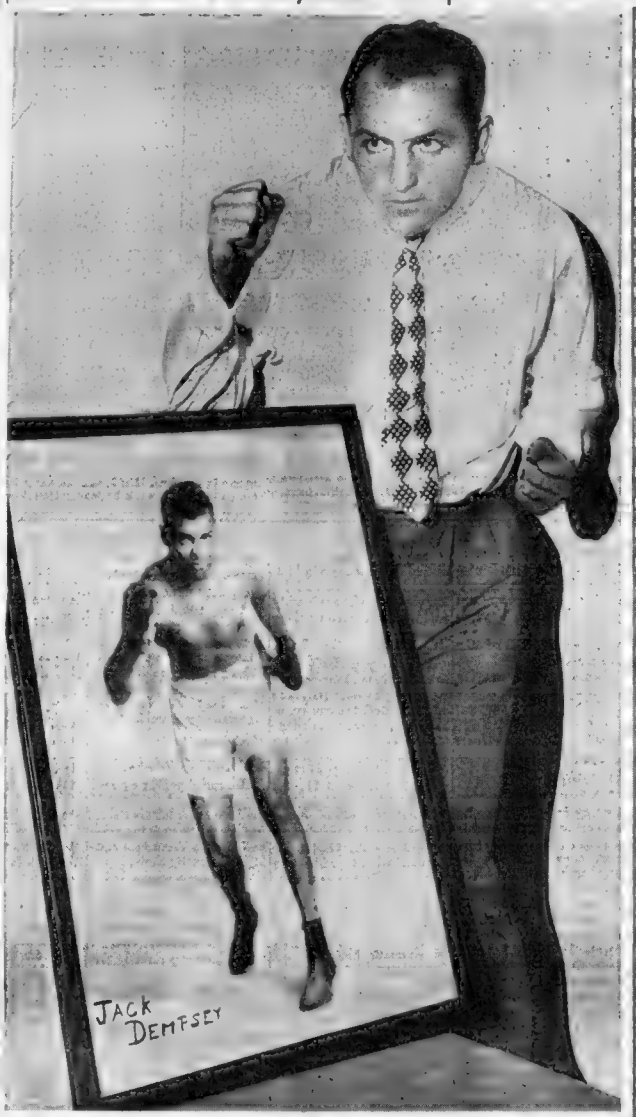
A FORTUNE BEYOND PHIL

THE PURSE WHICH SHARKEY will draw down tonight for his work with Brubaker is just trash money when compared with the richer rewards for which he will become instantly eligible, if he wins. He can have the choice of several lucrative fights and has already spurned a repeat offer to meet Louis because he says this would just be feeding on the crumbs left from Schmeling's feast. He wants a crack at the full menu, and will accept the loser of the Schmeling-Braddock fight in September, estimating that his cut of the house would amount to upwards of $50,000.

So his task tonight is worth a small fortune in prospective profits if he wins and a professional knock if he runs and petunia pots if he loses. And it is reasonable to think, considering the Squire has always been a shrewd man with a dollar, to whom the one thing more romantic than making a shilling is to make two shillings, will fire every ounce of energy he can muster on Brubaker's chin, trusting if he can reach it that Phil will fall over in a replica of Louis' swoon on the night that his nude jaw ran into a swarm of Schmeling's right-hand busts. We shall see.

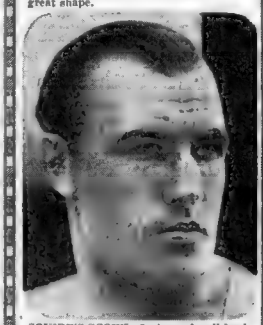
Titleholder of Yesterday and Champ of Tomorrow Seek Glory of Today



A GREAT EXAMPLE even if he does not reach the same heights, Parson Phil Brubaker has set Jack Dempsey as his idol and intends to reach the title also. Phil knows every position of the former champ and often imitates him in the ring. If Brubaker is anywhere near as good as Dempsey then Mr. Sharkey is in for a very busy evening at Fenway Park tonight.

SHARKEY SMILE. The famed smile, always in evidence except before and during a fight, is expected to return tonight after he clashes with the California fistic artist.

JACK'S DUKES. With these hands, Jack Sharkey expects to batter Phil Brubaker out of the picture tonight and continue his climb back to the top of the heavyweight division where he once ruled supreme. His hands, incidentally, are in great shape.



SQUIRE'S SCOWL. Jack can be all business and he intends to be this evening at Fenway Park against Brubaker, for a victory tonight will put him in position to meet top flight heavyweights.

Both Men Shooting For Title Bout

SQUIRE Ready for BATTLE

COAST YOUTH GOOD BOXER

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Sharkey and Phil Brubaker will each be shooting for a crack at the winner of the Schmeling-Braddock bout when they collide in a ten-round bout at a Goodwin A. C. show at Fenway Park tonight.

Sharkey has already beaten Schmeling once, and believes he can do so again, while Brubaker contends his youth and punch will enable him to upset the man who stopped Joe Louis.

Sharkey and Brubaker both believe they also possess the wallop that would set Jimmy Braddock back on his heels.

Sharkey and Brubaker raced through the closing stages of their training season, Schmeling's victory over Louis has both of the principals in the Goodwin A. C. feature thinking they can skyrocket to the top of the heavy-

Youth vs. Age

Sharkey 31 years old will have Old Man Experience on his side. He has clashed with the greatest heavyweights of his period, and he looks upon his tussle with Brubaker as just another fight. He will enter the ring determined to punch his way past the Coast sensation to a big money match in New York.

When Sharkey has [illegible] mental attitude towards the ring game he is a very difficult boxer to beat. Just now Sharkey feels he is headed for the boxing heights, and he doesn't intend to permit the 22-year-old Brubaker to check his surge.

Brubaker is a good boxer and a particularly heavy hitter. He has the urge to crash into the big money and looks upon Sharkey as the stepping stone which will enable him to satisfy his ambition.

If Brubaker wins, he will try to pick his spots, so that he will be the outstanding challenger for the title in 1937.

I look for Sharkey and Brubaker to furnish a fistic season Sharkey will be battling to regain his former position in the fistic sun, while Brubaker will be striving to climb the ladder that leads to fame and glory.

Sharkey is a 10 to 9 favorite in the betting, due to his experience, but there will be plenty of bettors who will take a shot at Brubaker.

Tiger Warrenton of Nova Scotia will [illegible] with Nick Tracy of Everett in the feature six-round tussle. Warrenton has shown exceptional hitting power in his training sessions and is anxious to test his kayo sock against the rugged Tracy.

Heavy Title Bout Up to Garden

New York, June 25—The proposed meeting between Champion Jimmy Braddock and Max Schmeling in September was squarely up to Madison Square Garden officials today.

Mike Jacobs, promoter of the Schmeling-Louis fight, who has Schmeling under contract, offered the group $150,000 to release the option they have on the champion's services in his next fight.

If that were not agreeable, Jacobs offered to sell out his Schmeling holdings for the same figure. A decision was expected today.

If the Garden rejects both plans, both may depute the boys or Braddock may desert to the Jacobs camp and risk a law suit.

Baysides Seeking Saturday Games

Baseball has been booming a bit in Hull this year with the Bayside playing Sunday afternoons at Bayside against strong teams. Russ Lynch, Boston University athlete, manages the club.

Tom Bilodeau of Harvard is at second, Joe Sullivan of Brookline at first, Joe Concannon of Dorchester at second and Walter Murray of Amherst at third. The outfield includes Abe Riesberg of Syracuse in left, Link Cleverly of B. U. in center, and Dave Concannon of B. C. in right. Tim Feeley (this year's baseball captain at B. C.) is catching.

The Bayides want games for Saturdays, away anywhere in New England. Managers write Russ Lynch at Allerton, Mass.

Girl Swim Stars In A. A. U. Meet

New York, June 25—The national A. A. U. swimming and diving championships for women got under way here today with the nation's leading mermaids on hand for competition.

Today's program includes trials and the final in the 100-meter free-style and finals in the springboard dive and the one-mil freestyle.

Miss Morrison To Try Channel

Undismayed by a previous failure, Eva Morrison, Boston swim star, sails for Europe on Sunday to make a second attempt to conquer the English Channel.

Last August Miss Morrison was forced to give up the gruelling test when within four miles of her goal.

Olympic Team Needs Funds

Chicago, June 25—With only 20 days left before the United States Olympic team is scheduled to sail for Berlin, the American Olympic committee a $146,000 deficit in traveling expenses.

President Avery Brundage declared that four years ago the team sailed without enough funds to get it home again but that this year necessary funds must be available before it will be allowed to depart.

The team is scheduled to sail on the Manhattan on July 1 and athletes must know whether funds are available at least five days in advance of that date.

Ross Offer

New York, June 25—Barney Ross welterweight titleholder, has been offered $40,000 by Madison Square Garden to defend his crown here in August either against Jimmy McLarnin or Tony Canzoneri.

Cowboy Hughes Wins Arena Bout

Cowboy Hughes took charge of Chuck Montana at the Arena last night, winning two straight falls before a gathering of several thousand fans.

Paddy Mack dropped Marcel Lafayette with a body slam in 13 minutes, 22 seconds.

Western Oarsmen Train at 'Keepsie

Poughkeepsie, June 25—Washington ad California crews returned to their training grinds here today in preparation for the Olympic tryouts on Lake Carnegie, July 4 and 5.

Washington finished first in the regatta here a few days ago while California was a good second.

U. S. Team Wins

London, June 25—The American polo team prepared to return home today after a clean sweep in the three games played with an english team for the international polo cup. The Americans won the final game, 15 to 9.

THREE GAMES SCHEDULED AT BEE HIVE

Mr. Boston Boxing Moguls Gather

By Jack Conway

SPEAKING OF Tommy Laird and Harry Smith, San Francisco sports experts, will be in the press row when Jack Sharkey and Phil Brubaker start swinging blows. Both came East for the Schmeling-Louis bout, and then came to Boston with Brubaker who hails from San Francisco.

• • •

Tony Palazolo, San Francisco boxing promoter flew here for the bout. He told me that if Brubaker wins he will try to match him to clash with Max Baer, "Rup" Vasenti told Tony he was also angling for a bout between Max Baer and the victor of his Fenway Park tussle.

Mr. Boston

• • •

Jimmy Johnston of the New York Garden telephoned me he was flying to Boston for the bout with the hope it would be a stirring scrap and that he would be able to get the victor's signature to a contract.

• • •

Joe Jacobs, Max Schmeling's manager will also be parked in a ringside pew. Joe is always looking to the future, and he knows that Der Max may eventually be in there swinging punches at either Sharkey or Brubaker. Joe confirms Schmeling's statement to the effect Joe Louis will never be given a return bout by the German.

"Max has licked Louis once and in decisive style," said Joe. "That's enough."

• • •

Ed Van Every of the New York Sun, who wrote an interesting book on Joe Louis, is in town for the fight. He has the distinction of being one of the few experts who picked Gene Tunney to defeat Jack Dempsey at Philadelphia. Like other members of the Louis for Champion Club," Ed went down with Joe when he was belted out of the picture by Schmeling.

• • •

OFFICIALS

DAN KELLEY and Peter Carr of the Boxing Commission say they will have the best possible officials on the job at Fenway Park.

• • •

If Sharkey and Brubaker live up to advance statements, all that will be required is a referee who can count to ten. Both promise knockouts.

• • •

Warren Brown, able sports editor of the Chicago Herald Examiner will give mid-west fans a graphic account of the Sharkey-Brubaker bout.

• • •

Jim Mullin, Chicago boxing promoter, wants Sharkey to meet Harry Thomas in the Windy City if he wins.

• • •

Johnny Buckley will direct the attack from Sharkey's corner with his brother Jerry as his Right Eye.

• • •

Bill Hunnefeld will be in charge of the Brubaker corner. Bill is a former lightweight star. He will have the assistance of Harry Kelley who used to train Sharkey.

• • •

$15,000 GATE

DAVE Arata of the Goodwin Club says the gate will hit $15,000.

Brubaker will receive a guarantee of $3500 and $1000 for expenses.

• • •

Sharkey will get 27½ per cent of the receipts.

• • •

Danno O'Mahony, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, will take a night off to see Sharkey and Brubaker toss leather. The Irishman is picking Sharkey to win. Jack taught O'Mahony how to toss a right hand punch when the latter first came to this country.

• • •

O'Mahony has also gone on record as naming Braddock to defeat Schmeling. Danno picked Jimmy to win the title from Max Baer.

• • •

Sharkey 33 years old, Brubaker, 22. When Sharkey became an international ring feature 10 years ago the coming October by defeating Harry Wills, Brubaker was 12 years old and didn't know the difference between a left hook and a baseball glove.

• • •

Mrs. Brubaker, on her way to Boston by auto, will arrive here tomorrow.

Catholic League Leaders Clash

Hostilities in connection with the playoff of the top tie in the Catholic High league will be resumed today at Waltham Bike Park with Mission High meeting Malden Catholic.

The two teams finished with 14 victories and four losses. Yesterday's rain caused a shift in dates until today at 2.30.

LEAGUE Clubs to PLAY 2 OLD TIMERS IN THIRD

By DAVE EGAN

Mr. Chollie Grimm, mgr.,
Chicago Cubs,
National League Field.
Dear Chollie:

We Egans, Chollie, as you well know, come from a long line of military persons, and many of my illustrious ancestors have been generals, taking brilliant advantage of their opportunities.

Yesterday, when it rained, I rose to great heights. It was my opportunity to get a shave and a haircut.

So I peeked into Suffolk Downs for just a moment to see how the folks were doing, and you will be pleased to learn that I got what the boys term a haircut and a shave. In addition I received a nifty tattooing, a genteel shoeshine and a sweet manicure.

I trust that the weather man will relent today, for the Old-Timers' game will be staged at 1 o'clock, and your boys will engage in two tussles with the Bees, and the nip and tuck fellow, Grimm, should all be staged in a bargain basement with free beer and pretzels on the side.

If I were you, Chollie, I would not bring my banjo to the game to play between the innings because some of the clients here have no sense of humor and you might wind up wearing your banjo for a collar.

Of course, the two previous games in the series were played in strict privacy, and if you had brought your banjo out on Monday and Tuesday and gingered away in your grating basso profundo which sounds like a sawmill in full swing, would have been all right. But today, there may be some fans tenants in the pew and it would be just as well all things considered in a broad and statesmanlike manner, to leave the damned banjo where it is.

I suppose your boys will snap up two more ball victories this afternoon. The Bees are doing very poorly, having won only six out of nine games. Of course, they are pretty good on a slow track, and the track promises to be heavy this afternoon, so look out for them coming down the stretch.

Meanwhile, I was wondering whether or not you could share a deuce until the weather breaks.

Farewell, Chollie! Good luck, poddner! Don't get caught in revolving doors, or step off broads into an elevator well!

Sincerely,

D. RAILBIRD EGAN.

$2000 PURSE PUT UP FOR DOG RACE

West Springfield, June 25—Inauguration of the Sportsman's Sweepstakes, bringing, to the winner $2000, was announced today by aMnager John E. Brooks of the local greyhound track.

It will be the richest stake run in the greyhound sport this year.

The stake closed with 20 nominations. The race will be over the 5-16th mile distance.

Under the provisions of the race three elimination events will be staged. The first, July 4; the second, July 8, and the third, July 11. The sweepstakes event itself will run Saturday night July 18.

TO HOLD DINNER

A dinner to be held in a local hotel the night of July 18 is expected to bring together the leading sportsmen of New England as well as owners and officials of the greyhound racing sport.

Among the owners who have nominated for the seven-stake event is Al Bilow, whose California Kennel scored a total of 97 victories during the winter season in the South and who saw members of his string crash into the spotlight the first week of racing here this season by winning three events in a single night.

Another nominator is John E. Howell, Jr., whose group of youngsters from the famous Mr. Ladd's entered their way into the top won ranks during the winter campaign in the South.

Zeno Freeman, Augusta, Kansas owner of Relief, leading winner of the local track last year, is among the entrants, as is G. A. Alderson owner of Bad Louise and On the Way, and P. C. Alderson, whose kennels include Bad Vida and Bad Sally.

Schmeling Fleeced Of Ring Savings

GERMAN BOXER DEAD BROKE

By HYPE IGOE

New York, June 25 (INS) — Max Schmeling is broke!

All that nice talk about not coming over here to fight Joe Louis "for just the loser's big end" was a bit of Teuton blarney. It is true that Max finally gathered up some $12,000 after his defeat of Joe Louis, but this amount wouldn't afford the upkeep of his German home and several property holdings over a period of six months.

When Max came over I met either Braddock or Louis he came because he needed the money.

Max has owned him $5,000 which he borrowed from Germans after the Louis and Paulino fiasco, and the wise men of Broadway were inclined to regard the cracked jaw's outlook as showing that Max had unwittingly kissed 20,000 wads good-bye.

Inside Track

Max may have had the inside track. I think he did. He knew Schmeling on old return to the country, not to regain the twenty thousand, particularly, but to start a brand new bankroll of his own in general. He was broke when he went away and he was broke when he arrived here.

Schmeling, a clever, shrewd chap in money matters, went the way of all painstaking fellows who come into "heavy sugar" suddenly.

Max was "taken." He fell prey to a German barrister who clipped him for something like 500,000 marks or about one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars in our money.

He was suing for that huge sum after losing a decision that ran up to a man said to be a trusted adviser of Axis Orpheus, beautiful moving picture actress Anny Ondra, Mrs. Schmeling.

Whether she was a victim or not is not known.

Max says she "is wealthy in her own right." It is a fact, however, that $125,000 was about all the money which Max had gleaned from his ring earnings here and abroad. When he was trimmed of that, he was flat broke.

Had he been able to walk in to Mike Jacobs and pick up his check after the blasting of Joe Louis, he would have gathered in something like $140,000, but there were too many strings attached to this pay check.

Tax Claims

Max had to settle old federal and state income tax claims totalling to bring him free, the stand-pat sportsmen of New England as well as custom officials of the greyhound racing sport.

Among the owners who have nominated for the seven-stake event is Al Bilow, whose California Kennel scored a total of 97 victories during the winter season in the South and who saw members of his string crash into the spotlight the first week of racing here this season by winning three events in a single night.

Di Maggio Keeps Yanks on Top

By Associated Press

For a youngster just breaking into the big time, Joe DiMaggio has a unique way of grabbing off the baseball headlines from the boys who've been around.

Not only such a rookie with the big bat crowd he lots of other stars out of the limelight, but to him and Lou Gehrig must go a large share of the credit for the Yanks' success that the New York Yanks' mighties now own a comfortable edge in the league's race over the Detroit Tigers.

Joe Jaye when Di Maggio" had had a red-hot two weeks in succession but was sensational slugger up the proper ways with a record of batting that has been done by a man ten others in the history of the game hit two home runs one morning.

Joe chose the Yankees' home fifth inning of yesterday's game with the White Sox to repeat his batting performance. He singled first time up, scored on a base-on-balls by Lefty Gomez, stole second and scored on Tommy Henrich's single. Then in the seventh he poled his fifteenth home run of the season with a mate on base.

Joe's two-run wallop put the Yanks out in front, 3-2, which, as it turned out, was the margin of victory. The Yanks' pitching staff, allowing up the ball game for an 8-11 set-to. This surge widened the Red Sox's 7-6 defeat at the hands of Tommy Bridges and the Detroit Tigers, and Lefty Gomez keeps American League percentage edge to 9½ games.

'Bing' Miller Made Red Sox Regular for Indian Series

By JOE CASHMAN

Cleveland, June 25—Edmund "Bing" Miller, who man and boy has spent close to 42 years on this planet and is undeniably the oldest active player in the majors has become a Red Sox regular for the time being.

Old Uncle Tom will be out in left field, spelling "Dusty" Cooke, when the faltering Fenway flock opens a four-game series with Steve O'Neil's Indians this afternoon out at League Park, where it has yet to win a decision this year.

That much was settled in the final game in Detroit when the ancient Iowan led all his more youthful and agile mates with a stick as the Sox dropped a 7 to 6 verdict.

Cooke's knee, sore for a week, became so stiff that he had to beg off, Manager Joe Cronin delberated long and earnestly whether to call Bill Werber to the outfield and put Jack Kroner on third or to take a chance with Miller. He finally decided on old man river.

"Bing" pulled his cap down on his bald noggin, gave his creaking limbs a rub and stepped out to slap Tommy Bridges curves, the most bewildering in the business, for a home run and two singles, after being winged by a pitched ball on his second time up.

So flaming youth as represented by Mr. Kroner must continue indefinitely to brighten a corner of the bench.

This is relatively unimportant at the moment, though, except to Messrs. Miller and Kroner.

The important thing is for the Red Sox to win a flock of games in a hurry, starting this very afternoon, when Fred "Fritzie" Ostermueller will take his southpaw soupbone out for the first start of this trip.

What's happened while "Ostie" has been awaiting this chance has been just too bad.

Three three-game series have our heroes played out here in the West and in each they managed to win but the middle tilt.

■ your arithmetic is up to snuff, you know now that the record of our pennant hopefuls is three wins and six losses, which is a slow pace for a last place outfit.

Leaving home they were three games back of the league leading Yankees and were aiming to be on the roof by June 25. That's today and they are 8½ games back.

Right now it's third and not first place they must think about. They came here this morning with four games ahead of the Indians, who occupy the No. 3 ring.

To put it peaceful-like on the line, the hitting our boys did while dropping two out of three in Detroit.

They pounded out no less than six hits in each by a different player in the three games, ran their total to double figures in each tilt and overcame a Tiger lead in seven day.

Sport, get hing and a succession of bad breaks ruined them.

Wes Ferrell, seeking his 11th victory with a two-day rest, carried a three-run lead into the sixth inning but couldn't protect it, the Tigers putting over four markers in the sixth on only two clean hits.

Rogell started it by reaching on a fielder's choice which Rick Ferrell missed and following up Gehringer walked and Goslin tripled a single over short. Then Walker whacked a rousing single and Al Simmons singled home.

After that both Wes Ferrell and Mike Fenzel Bridges for home runs in the game was nobody aboard on either occasion and the drives proved of no avail as Simmons knocked in another Tiger marker in the seventh and Marvin Owen hit a homer in the eighth.

Simmons, in addition to knocking in three runs, came within one of the American League record by making ten putouts in centerfield, one of which was a diving clutch that cost our heroes a run or two.

GLYNSON, WILSON BEST AT DOWNS

CHOICE Goes in SIXTH

CANDY PRINCE IN FEATURE

By DAVE WILSON

Selections for Last Track Best—GLYNSON, SIXTH

Suffolk Downs, June 25 H. T. Archibald's Candy Prince looks like the tops in the North Shore Handicap, the six furlongs event for a $1300 purse which will feature the racing here today.

He was a beaten favorite the other day in practically the same company.

Gryson [illegible]

FIRST—Sun Capture, America First, Noel H.

SUN CAPTURE is a well speedy at Salem to [illegible] rating in the juvenile maiden affair. Contention should be furnished by Wilson & Telford's AMERICA FIRST. The latter worked fast [illegible] test. NOEL H. second to Miss Dolphin at Woodbine, figures next best.

SECOND—Rough Party, Blue Day, Pitter Patter

Stringing along with ROUGH PARTY to down the highly fancied BLUE DAY. Blue Day has won six in a row, but they were heads apart last trip and there's a three-pound shift in weights in favor of my selection. PITTER PAT is dropping down in class, and on his best form could take it all.

THIRD—Retired, Narise, Kal Harri

RETIRED beat three good horses in a gallop the other day, and there [illegible] should be [illegible] last [illegible] further [illegible] for this race and may [illegible] dope.

FOURTH—Jolly, Miss Olis, Forced Landing

Anything can happen in this race, for it is a wide open affair. I'm stringing along with the fast working JOLLY [illegible] showed [illegible] variation [illegible] Road [illegible] Miss OLIS is the early [illegible] was so poor [illegible] beating the [illegible] FORCED LANDING [illegible] none while expect [illegible] come up a good [illegible]

FIFTH—Candy Prince, Night Sprite, Devil

If anything smears the dope and hands CANDY PRINCE another defeat, it may be Homie Neuterter's [illegible] SPRITE [illegible] dangerous, dropped picking up three pounds and carrying top weight.

SIXTH—Glynson, Xandra, Long Bit

GLYNSON [illegible] up as the one solid wager on the card. He has been racing well in much better company. Contention, if [illegible] should be furnished by XANDRA. LONG BIT has won her last two races, but is [illegible] class.

SEVENTH—Lady Hockberger, Flaven, Bull Market

THE [illegible] last [illegible] starting [illegible] 10 pounds [illegible] to Madwind BULL MARKET has been knocking on the door in recent [illegible]

EIGHTH—Whipper Cracker, Dancing Boy, Rocks Prince

WHIPPER CRACKER is a veteran [illegible] class, and if he is not too sore, he should [illegible] kind of company. DANCING BOY finished a hangup third to Pass Shot and Mt. Hood his last out. [illegible] all season. He expects to return next year.

Yesterday's Stars

Earl Averill, Indians—Hit three homers in double-header defeat of Athletics.

Mel Ott, Giants, and Jim Weaver, Pirates—Former's two-run homer was major factor in opening game victory in double-header, while Weaver's three-hit pitching clinched nightcap.

Buck Newsom, Senators—Let Browns down with seven hits for 7-4 win.

Joe DiMaggio, Yanks—Hit two homers and two doubles to set pace for 19-11 triumph over White Sox.

Mary Owen, Tigers—His eighth-inning homer provided winning run against Red Sox.

Gus Sonnenberg Fractures Hip

Holyoke, June 25—Gus Sonnenberg, [illegible] former football star and one-time heavyweight champion, was in a hospital today with a fractured hip, sustained when he was thrown out of the ring during a match here

Sonnenberg was wrestling Count Koverzoff when, after a few moments in the ring, the latter threw him out.

As he went over the ropes, Sonnenberg grasped the top rope. This caused him to crash heavily against the edge of the ring.

At Mercy Hospital, it was said he will be confined to his bed for several weeks.

JACOBS GIVES AWAY AUTOS

New York, June 25 (AP)—Pictures of the Louis-Schmeling fight are breaking attendance records all over the country.

Bill Duffy, one of the managers of Primo Carnera, bought the rights and he'll clean up almost a million.

Several reels accompanied Schmeling on the Hindenburg . . . But to the lot none were of the after-the-fight shots which revealed Max with a shiner.

Also a high-priced auto is being shipped to Max tonight, the gift of Mike Jacobs . . . Max Mechos got one too . . . Mike is taking no chances of these beauties hopping to the Garden . . . Nein, nein!

If Phil Brubaker the Coast sensation, does all right against Jack Sharkey in Boston tonight he may be picked to oppose Joe Louis in the latter's start along the comeback trail in August.

Writer Had Dream

George Habeeb, the Louisville jockey, booted home a 25 to 1 winner in the second race as a jock at Aqueduct the other day . . . Add those who picked Schmeling: Stuart Dunbar of the Salina (Kans.) Journal, one of the corner's best clients . . . He had a dream and played it.

It cost the Buffalo Internationals $8500 for baseball last season . . . The Pirates need 200 dozen.

Jack Ramos, manager of Jack Longden, opened up $50-$9 on Longden at 6 to 1 . . . They promptly abandoned a movement to move the York franchise of the New York-Penn League to Trenton . . . Reason: The Trenton municipal park is not available as a playing field.

It will be interesting to see how long it takes Everett Marshall to flop at Palm Beach, Columbus, O., next Monday night . . . A Detroit sportsman has let Al Simmons and Hank Greenberg, of the Tigers that Joe DiMaggio doesn't hit .330 this season.

Grimes Bad Man

As this edition went to press, Joe was more than holding his own at 349 . . . Burleigh Grimes, Louisville manager, is the bad boy of the American Association . . . So [illegible] [illegible] has been chased by umpire, 11 times, fined three times and suspended twice.

Professional notes: Lloyd Lewis, once famous as a dramatic critic, has been named sports ed of the Chicago Daily News succeeding the late Howard Mann.

Wes Wood, head man on the Sun here, has gone on a two months' leave of absence.

Vanderbilt to Reduce Stable

By Associated Press

C. V. Whitney, who races one of the largest strings of thoroughbreds in the country, plans to reduce his stable about 25 horses next year. The establishment, which has won more than $5,000,000 in the last 15 years, will sell most of its yearlings at the Saratoga sales in August.

William Collins Whitney, grand father of the present owner of the stable, established the famous Elon blue and brown capped silk more than 25 years ago. After his death the stable went to Harry Payne Whitney who raced with marked success. Since C. V. Whitney inherited the stable, however, it has showed a steady decline both in money earned and races won.

Seven stakes are listed to be run during the 22-day meeting opening at Empire City Monday. The most important of the races will be the $10,000 Butler handicap, in which Col. Vanderbilt's Discovery is slated to try for his second successive victory.

A $500 gold watch awits Suffolk Downs' leading jockey at the end of the first 26 days of the present meeting. The management also will give $500 in cash to the ranking trainer during the same period.

300 to Take Part In Skeet Shoot

Bridgeport, Ct., June 25 (AP)—A field of more than 300 is expected to compete here Saturday and Sunday in the Great Eastern skeet championships.

The individual championships will be shot Saturday and on Sunday there will be the team championships and Great Eastern individual championship.

Title-holders who are expected to defend their 1935 honors include Augustine W. Macone of Concord, Mass., Dr. Robert G. Vance of Waban, Mass., Douglas R. Nichols of West Orange, N. J., and Mrs. Russell G. Merriman of Montpelier, Vt.

The Roseland, N. J., Community Gun Club five-man team will try to retain the Great Eastern team championship won last year.

Forty-two trophies will be awarded.

SARAZEN Trails Cox by 3 SHOTS IN BRITISH OPEN GOLF

Hoylake, Eng., June 25 (AP)—Bill Cox, British Ryder Cup player, took the lead in the first round of the British open golf championship today with a 70, four under par.

Gene Sarazen, the American star, and Henry Cotton, the British favorite, were in a tie for fourth place, three shots behind.

James Adams, Scottish international, was a shot behind Cox, with 71, and W. H. Davis, former British Ryder cup player; Reginald Whitcombe a member of the 1935 British Ryder cup team, and Jock McLean, the Scottish amateur, were bracketed at 72.

The French native professional champion, Marcel Dallemange, and Francis Francis, Great Britain, were tied with Sarazen and Cotton in the 73 slot.

Two Americans Willie Goggin San Francisco, and Ernie Ball Mobile, Ala., had 74. A set that mark were Percy Au[illegible] Bert Gold Addey Boomer, Tom Green, Max Faulkner, and Dick Burton, all of Great Britain.

Skids Coming In

Joe Ezar, Waco, Tex., had an 82. Ted Turner, Pine Valley N. J. the only other American who qualified, shot a 75 one over par.

Sarazen was out on 35, one under par, and started back with a birdie, but he took a six at the long 16th, and played all the other holes on the inward nine in par.

Joe Ezar, Waco, Tex., finished with an 82. He started badly, taking a six at the first hole, and reached the bottom at the 16th hole, where he missed one shot completely and took a seven.

James Adams posted a 71, after a magnificent 34, four under par, on the last nine.

W. H. Davis, former British Ryder Cup star, turned in 36 and started back with three birdies and an eagle, but he blew up on the last few holes and finished with a 72.

Percy Alliss, one of the favorites, fired a level par 74. He went out on 37, two over par, and came back in 36, two under.

Henry Cotton, the favorite, played fast golf to the greens in getting his 73. Out in even par, Cotton three-putted the 10th, landed his second into the rough at the 16th, and hit his approach into the sand at the 17th.

Canadian Group Seeks Canoe Race

The Canadian delegation, headed by Marcel Dufresne representing the third international 125-mile canoe race, was homeward bound from here today after several conferences with officials of the United States Canoe Racing Association, Inc.

The Canadians visited Boston in an attempt to interest local paddlers to make entry in the La Tuque to Three Rivers event to be held in 1937, but due to the fact that money prizes were being offered, it became impossible for the United States Canoe Racing Association, Inc., to consider entries.

However, as a result of the several conferences that have taken place since Saturday, a tentative plan has been arrived at for the building of a Canadian Canoe Racing Association, of strictly amateurs from which an international agreement as to rules and regulations will be reached. One year hence there will be an international amateur canoe meet on the St. Lawrence at Montreal, with the best paddlers of the eastern United States competing.

Caddies Picket Concord C. C.

Concord, June 25 (AP)—Caddies at Concord Country Club, on strike since Sunday, today picketed approaches to the clubhouse and posted placards protesting refusal of club officials to meet their demands.

The boys struck after a ruling by the green committee divided them into two classes, giving class A caddies 75 cents for a round of 18 holes and class B bag carriers 65 cents.

They demanded 75 cents for all caddies, explaining 18 holes involved walking five miles.

Harold Cahoon, club professional, said 20 caddies worked at the club today, only four of them regulars.

Striking caddies, number 28, he said, Picketing, he added, had been conducted quietly.

Ann Marsters' Best Bets

Hollywood, Cal., June 25—Following a disappointing day yesterday, I'm looking forward hopefully today to a change in racing luck which will send my bankroll upward once again.

HI VIC ran third and STONE MARTIN second at Agawam to spoil my win parlay. Suffolk's slow track cancelled the bet on STEELHEAD. So today, going into the seventy-third of the experiment, the bankroll stands at $439.90.

Today I'm trying another $10 win parlay on SUN CAPTURE in the first at Suffolk and GLYNSON in the sixth at the same track. At Agawam, the good thing looks like PRIMER in the sixth and it's $2 win, $2 place on this one.

Glynson, 6th, Suffolk
Bankroll Now $439.90. Day's Play $14

(At the suggestion of Walter O'Hare, Miss Marsters has set out to determine that conservative bets can result in satisfactory profits, or at worst small losses. Walter O'Hare, Narragansett Park owner, provided the capital with a $1000 gift. Half was turned over to the Boston Evening American Christmas Fund immediately. The remainder will be similarly handled at the end of the experiment. This is the seventy-third day.)

COLLYER'S SPORT OF KINGS COMMENT

By BERT E. COLLYER

GABRIEL: Boy, the old guy is sure goin' to blow his horn today—third spasm at Death Valley.

The race, which as might be expected, brings out a very ordinary band of maidens, gives "gabe" a full three-point call. Also and as if to indicate that others believe in the same dope, is the appearance, tonight, of some commissions—in St. Louis and Kansas City. Let your conscience be your guide.

SILK MASK, which was withdrawn yesterday to go in the sixth, is another labeled XXX special—by the clockers. "Never looked or acted better, and should tip top in the field." Sounds like winning info to me. TEAROUT SPLASH holding the others safe. Ye'awkkum.

Dempsey Feted On Birthday

Virginia Beach Va., June 25 (INS)—Jack Dempsey was feted at a party at the Cavalier Hotel where he was spending his forty-first birthday anniversary.

Dempsey entertained his guests by demonstrating the right hand blow Schmeling employed in knocking out Joe Louis. Dudley Field Mayone, of New York, acted as his stooge.

VAN RYN STANDS STILL AS PERRY WINS

Sock for the Sox

BOOST For the BEES

By DAVE EGAN

According to latest advices, the Red Sox are doing one of two things out there in the West, and I will gladly spell them out for you so that even the simplest child would understand.

(1) They are advancing backwards.

(2) They are retreating forwards.

Here in Boston, a most hilarious condition of affairs exists. On the one hand we have the Red Sox. On the other we have the Bees. The Red Sox were supposed to be the class of the league, instead of second-class. They have the speediest product, while the Bees were just a lot of blowers named Joe who were too lazy to work and hence played baseball for a livelihood.

Dave Egan

The Red Sox were chosen by hundreds of experts to win the pennant after a brief but exciting battle with the Detroit Tigers. The Yankees ran a poor third in the pre-season polls.

In the National League the Bees were an almost unanimous choice to finish eighth, and the reason they were selected to finish eighth was because there were only eight teams in the league.

Expert Dope

Now I am not the type to rub salt in raw and festering wounds. The experts have been in a numbed and pitiful condition since last Friday night when a certain white dope knocked out a pair of big brown bumbers by the name of Vernon Gomez. It is not necessary to state that the day of the experts has passed and that the youngsters now step in and take it to write with authority concerning baseball affairs.

Not so long years back sports writers were specialists who covered one branch of sports. We had experts then who were really experts. In the boxing line, fellows like Bob Edgren and Hype Igoe and the great Larry Sutton were the tops, and knew who got the money.

But today, all that is necessary to become a sports writer is to have the gift of the gab. In fact, several times I have run counter-fells whom I can name know nothing about sports but they tell what they know, which is nothing, in a most interesting manner.

There is no reason on earth why we, who write for newspapers, should know more about sports than those who watch them with eyes of equal intelligence. But some of us ask for trouble, and so we pose as experts, and we say that the Red Sox are of championship calibre and that the Bees are mirthmaking bums, and then we wind up back of the eight ball and against the bank again.

Bee Boost

For the Red Sox are not in the championship class and the Bees are not performing like mirth-quaking bums. Out in the West where if anybody hopes much don't bet on Bosox the Red Sox have won three games and lost six. In the National League David, against the Cardinals, the Reds and the Cubs, the Bees have won six and lost three.

The Red Sox are not in first place and there is no immediate danger that they will be there this year.

The Bees are not in last place and if I knew where the dollar is I'd bet you on that typewriter. I would say that there is no immediate danger that they will be there this year.

I imagine that, if you threw out Berger, a passing stranger could buy the Bees for what Jimmy Foxx cost Tom Yawkey.

Now, please do not construe this as a knock at Joe Cronin. Joe is doing a grand job with what he has. Take it as a knock at the geneer who drew the buying. He bought everything except the very thing the Sox need—pitching strength.

If you wish to construe, my good constituents, construe it as a boost for the belittled Bee, who are playing gifted baseball day after day.

There were two strikes on the Bees when the season opened. Now they've worked it down to three and two.

Recipe for Adventure

Lynn Woman Gives the Ingredients That Cooked Up First-Class Thrill

By FLOYD GIBBONS

FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Well sir, here's where I answer some correspondence. I had a letter the other day from a young fellow who says he's never had an adventure and wants to know how he can have one, and I'm answering Johnny right here in the column, because he isn't the first one to ask me that question and it occurred to me that a lot of people might sort of want to look over his shoulder while I give him his answer.

I'm sorry to say it isn't much of an answer. When you ask me for the recipe for an adventure, you're putting in a big order, Johnny. In a way, every one of these yarns is the recipe for a big thrill.

Take today's yarn, for instance which I got from MRS. FLORENCE H. KING of 27 Whiting street, Lynn. The recipe for her adventure would run something like this:

Take one whopping big snowstorm. Add one broken sled, one leather strap and one baby. Then throw in the Boston Express and scramble.

When properly cooked up, this makes as tasty a dish of adventure as ever you sank a tooth into. And here it comes now, just out of the skillet and pip ing hot!

If you can remember as far back as the year 1920, maybe you'll come to mind a terrific snowstorm that came along about the middle of January and tied up all the traffic in the neighborhood of Boston. The drifts were so high that it took the town two or three days to shovel out of it and even then walking wasn't so good.

At that time Florence King was living in East Braintree in a house at 72 Pond street. Her daughter was then just 15 months old—just the right age for the baby in our adventure formula. Now all we need is the sled, the leather strap and the Boston Express.

It was a Sunday afternoon. For two or three days the snow had kept Florence indoors, and she decided a walk and a little fresh air would be good for the baby.

She put the baby in a sort of a sled contraption that her husband had made. He had nailed a big wooden box on the sled, and rigged up a handle on the box like the handle on a baby carriage. But the handle was broken and just about ready to fall off. Florence had been warned not to push too hard on it.

On the side of the box was fastened a leather strap. Babies get sort of a ride along about 15 months, and the strap was to keep this one from climbing out.

Florence strapped the baby into the sled box and, pushing carefully on the broken handle, started off for a walk.

A few blocks away from her home she came to the Shaw street railroad crossing. The snow had been cleared away, but it was piled three or four feet high between the two tracks. A zigzag path led around the piled snow, but Florence could see that it was going to be tough work pushing that sled with the rickety handle across the bare planks of the crossing.

Florence got the sled safely across the first track. She followed the zigzag path around the pile of snow and reached the bare boards of the second track. In front of her was the gate tender's shack. To one side the tracks curved, hiding anything that might be around the corner.

Florence might have heard the sound of an oncoming train, but if she did she paid no attention. For five years she had lived close to the East Braintree railroad station and had become so used to hearing trains that such sounds didn't mean anything to her. She started to push the sled across the second track.

THEN, SUDDENLY, EVERYTHING WENT WRONG. AS SHE SHOVED ON THE HANDLE OF THE SLED AN OMINOUS CRACK WARNED HER THAT IT WAS ABOUT READY TO BREAK. SHE WAS THINKING THAT MAYBE SHE'D BETTER GO AROUND TO THE FRONT AND PUSH, BEFORE CROSSING THE BARE SPOT, WHEN SHE SAW THE GATE TENDER BURST FROM HIS SHACK CRYING, "Watch out, lady. The train!"

And in that same instant she saw it—an express train bound for Boston—LEAPING AT HER FROM AROUND THE CORNER OF THE CURVE!

"The engine," she says, "looked as big as the Empire State building, it was so near. It couldn't have been more than three or four seconds away, and I never knew before how many things could flash through your mind in that short space of time.

"I could actually picture that train smashing into us, and I even thought of my pocketbook—wondered if there was anything in it by which my body could be identified.

"Then I thought of my helpless baby, sitting right in the middle of the track."

The baby was strapped to the sled box. No time to try to take her out. Before Florence could reach the straps the train would be on it. She could drag the sled from the track, but because both tracks were there was no chance to get back to safety.

To do it she'd have to move toward the oncoming train. Instinctively, she started to do that. THE ONLY THING SHE COULD DO WAS TO PUSH THE SLED FORWARD . . . PUSH IT BY THE CRACKED HANDLE AND HOPE THOSE HANDLES WOULD HOLD.

Says she: "I uttered a swift prayer—a prayer that the handles wouldn't break.

"Then I drew back and threw myself forward on those handles with a mighty shove.

"The handles held. The sled went forward onto the bare ground and I leaped after it.

"I just cleared it. I felt the awful breeze of the train tearing by as I jumped for safety."

All well enough, but I can imagine how that mother must have felt to be within an inch of tragedy. The grandest thing was the conquered death as he viewed Florence and the baby safe and sound as he talked to her about the mishap.

And then a few days later, Florence and baby received a heartfelt letter from the gateman, telling of the excitement of that moment and hastening the poor fellow's end.

"He surely saved our lives," says Florence, "with his cry of 'LOOK OUT, LADY, THE TRAIN!'"

Don't forget, boys and girls, I want to see YOUR stories. I'll have another great yarn for you tomorrow. Watch for it!

Floyd Gibbons will pay good money for good TRUE adventure stories. Hundreds of people in Boston and nearby towns have received ten-dollar and hundred-dollar bills for their yarns, and there's no reason why you can't do the same, for, as Floyd says, every body has had at least one adventure. Fred A. Carlson of 57 Deaconess road, Boston, won a hundred and ten dollars for the story of his life's biggest moment, and you can do the same. For further details, see the box at the right side of this page.

HANEY ON POLITICS

Keynote Speech

CALLED EMPHASIZING

Of Federalism

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, June 25—As you study the early speeches made at the new deal convention now in session, a feeling at the change in the so-called Democratic party comes into your mind.

Democracy is being committed to a federalism which goes far beyond the ideas of Alexander Hamilton, and which would make Jefferson turn over in his grave.

* * *

The keynote speech made by Senator Barkley of Kentucky, and of course okayed, by the White House, emphasizes a centralized collectivism. It dwells on the "national scope" of our "complex modern life," obviously taking its cue from Mr. Roosevelt's talk about "national thinking."

It attacks the division of the country into 48 states as limiting centralized federalism and control of industry from Washington. It goes on and proposes that the federal government should fix wages for men, women and children.

It upholds the agricultural adjustment administration which was decided to be unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, and advocates control over farm production.

Outstanding is the vicious idea that crops are to be plowed under and pigs killed (at the command of somebody in Washington) in order to guarantee profits to farmers.

This is the plain implication of Senator Barkley's statement that "when business is ready to produce for abundance and not for profit, it will be logical to ask the farmer to do likewise."

Since business must be run for profits, this means that if any farmer fails to get profits, the new deal government is to step in and plow crops under till cotton, grain, etc., are scarce enough to make their prices high.

* * *

Of course, all this means overthrowing the Constitution. Senator Barkley says that we "need a new definition and interpretation of interstate commerce."

He speaks of the "antiquated (horse and buggy) predilections" of the Supreme Court. Evidently Franklin Delano Roosevelt wants to make "interstate commerce," which he can control, include all commerce! He wants to get rid of what he calls the "antiquated" (horse and buggy) decisions of the Supreme Court.

Why doesn't he come out frankly and say so? Why not tell us definitely what he proposes to do about it? This vague innuendo is certainly not "courageous."

* * *

The New Deal keynoter says: "We shall balance the budget." But "shall" is not a word that expresses any determination. Why didn't he say, "we will balance the budget"? Why was nothing said about when and how?

He seeks to cover up the weakness of the position by talking about the "morale" of the people and about "human life," but the unbalanced budget and huge debt resulting from wasteful spending, have done more than anything else to demoralize the people, and to make human life dependent upon the largess of a federal bureaucracy.

* * *

Of course, we cannot have sound money under these conditions. So Senator Barkley sneers at what he calls a "so-called return to gold." He says that we do not need this, because "the American dollar, with a larger reserve of gold behind it today than ever before" is the soundest currency in the world.

"Behind it," is right! Our so-called gold reserve is so far behind our paper dollars that we can never get any of it.

And what about silver? The senator does not appear to mention it. But the fact is that 40 cents worth of silver is being put behind one-fourth of all our dollars.

* * *

You may well say, oh, well! What difference do these platforms make as long as what Mr. Farley calls the "sane and orderly" New Dealers are led by what he calls the "calm and capable" Mr. Roosevelt.

I grant you that many pledges of the Democratic party in 1932 were deliberately broken by a "calm" and "courageous" leader. But these new ideas for the 1936 platform are exactly in line with the Roosevelt-Tugwell philosophy of centralization, regimentation, and government spending. They are to be taken seriously.

Also in line, is the picture which the press reports give us of Mr. Farley racing through the Philadelphia streets as the crowds are scattered by the shrieking sirens of his police escort.

The New Deals are always in a hurry.

MILLSOP

New Steel

LEADER

YOUNGEST IN INDUSTRY

Weirton, W. Va., June 25 (AP)—T. E. Millsop became president today of the Weirton Steel Company, largest unit of the $156,000,000 National Steel Corporation, climaxing another up-from-the-ranks story of the industry.

Ernest T. Weir, chairman of National Steel, announced the promotion of the 37-year-old executive vice-president to fill the job made vacant by death of J. C. Williams a few weeks ago.

He said: "Mr. Millsop becomes probably the youngest high executive in the steel industry."

* * *

Millsop went to work at the age of 15 as an open hearth furnace helper at the Carnegie Steel Company mill in his native Sharon, Pa. Except for a three years interruption during the World War, while he served in the Canadian and American aviation corps, he has continued working with steel.

After the war Millsop worked with the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company mills, later he became a riveter in the Sandard Tank Car Company's plate department, rising to production manager.

* * *

He quit this job to become a salesman for a Cleveland company, from which in 1928 joining the rapidly growing Weirton Steel concern as salesman. In three years he became assistant sales manager and assistant to the president in May, 1931. A year ago he was elected executive vice-president, a reward in part for his efforts in helping settle labor disturbances at the Weirton plant.

Millsop lives in Weirton, W. Va., where the main plant of his company is located. Other branches are at Steubenville, O., and in Clarksburg, W. Va. It has approximately 12,000 employes.

Vacation With Pay

The Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company posted notices that the 7400 hourly rate workers in its plants in all states will be given vacations of one week with full pay this year. Employes who have worked one year are eligible. Directors voted the vacation plan voluntarily without any request from the unions in the plants.

Meeting Adjourned

Special meeting of preferred and common stockholders of Certain-Teed Products Corporation was adjourned Wednesday after a brief meeting until Wednesday, July 22. It is understood a lack of sufficient number of proxies was responsible for the meeting being adjourned.

TIN HIT

MOVE TOWARD MONOPOLY

Washington, June 25 (AP) — Fifteen manufacturers of tinplate were ordered today by the Federal Trade Commission to cease entering into agreements not to sell or quote prices on "stock plate" to makers of cans and other containers.

Findings of the commission included a statement that such agreements resulted in "suppression of competition" and moves toward monopoly.

Firms involved are: American Sheet and Tinplate Company, Pittsburgh; Bethlehem Steel Company, Bethlehem, Pa.; Canton Tinplate Corp, Canton, Ohio; Columbia Steel Company, San Francisco; trustees of Follansbee Brothers Company, Pittsburgh; Granite City Steel Company, Granite City, Ill.; Inland Steel Company, Chicago; Jones & Laughlin Steel Company, Pittsburgh; McKeesport Tinplate Company, McKeesport, Pa.; Republic Steel Company Corp., Cleveland; the R. & G. Taylor Company, Cumberland, Md.; Washington Tinplate Company, Washington, Pa.; Weirton Steel Company, Weirton, W. Va.; Wheeling Steel Corp., Wheeling, W. Va.; the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, Youngstown, O.

The "cease and desist" order was directed against the five alleged methods of selling stock plate produced in the processing of first grade tinplate. The order said small manufacturers of tin cans depended upon the stock plate for raw material.

The order also was directed against alleged agreements to cut off otherwise matable the stock plate in order to classify it as a lower grade quality for domestic use, while offering unmatched material to the foreign market.

Amoskeag Losses Revealed at Probe

For the 12 month period ending May 31, 1924, the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company mills in Manchester, N. H., were operated at a loss of $2,851,131, and for the same period ending May 31, 1925, the operating loss totalled $456,022.39, it was admitted by Frederic C. Dumaine, treasurer of the corporation.

He was testifying before Arthur C. Black, sitting as master in Federal court today in the reorganization proceedings of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company under special provision of the Congressional bankruptcy act known as section 77B.

Under cross-examination by Lothrop Withington, of counsel for Eliza S. Leland of Brookline, holder of 26 per cent gold bonds of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, Dumaine identified records of meetings of the company, referred to figures of operating expenses in books of the company for different years, and finally admitted there was a loss in operating expenses of the mills of the corporation close to $4,000,000 the past few years.

Withington read into the records depositions to show that the company's shareholders were in reality a voluntary partnership, the parties to a plan to draw out their capital.

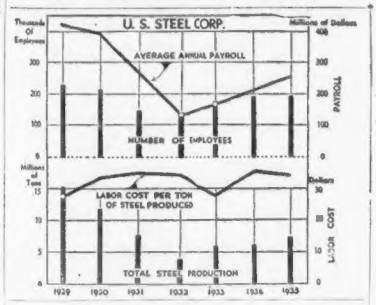
Wall Street Hears

New York, June 25 (INS)—Wall Street hears: That Creole Petroleum Corp. will be the curb will declare a dividend within a week, higher than the previous payment of 20 cents a share.

That Liquid Carbonic (LQT) second quarter net may reach $1.50 a share, against the first quarter deficit.

That first half net of Bristol-Myers (BMY) is expected to approximate $1.70 a share.

STEEL WAGES



Wall Street Sidelights

New York, June 25—Greater speculative activity has appeared this week in stocks included by Wall Street appraisals among those promising more liberal dividend payments as a result of the recently passed tax on undistributed corporation profits.

A few concrete examples of the probable effects of the measure were analyzed by Weingarten & Co., as follows: S. S. Kresge in 1935 showed profits of something over $10,000,000. About $4,500,000 was distributed in dividends. But in the future the retaining of almost one-half of the adjusted net income will mean a totaling approximately $640,000. (A heavy penalty for a corporation to pay to keep unneeded funds in its treasury.) Norfolk & Western last year made almost $25,000,000 and paid out about $14,000,000 in dividends. To retain $10,000,000 of the adjusted net income will now cost the railroad, on the same set of figures, over $1,400,000. Commonwealth & Southern for twelve months ended May 31 showed earnings of over $10,000,000, but continued to pay only half of the preferred dividends. The policy would mean a tax of over $900,000, whereas if the dividend is stepped up to its normal 30 p.c. rate, the tax on undistributed net income is only slightly over $100,000.

Shell Transport Dividend Outlook

Shell Transport & Trading shares have changed little in market price since they were removed from Stock Exchange listing last month because of the failure of the company to apply for permanent registration. It is currently quoted by over-the-counter dealers at 7 bid, 8¼ asked, contrasted with the last Stock Exchange sale price of 48. Little interest exists in the stock over its standing prospects of an interim dividend. Discussing this outlook yesterday, Lord Bearsted, chairman, told the annual meeting in London yesterday the question is receiving serious consideration "in view of the distressing state of world affairs" he was unable to make any definite statement. The equivalent of $1.237 on the American shares was paid a little less than a year ago.

Woolworth Rise On Improved Sales

Woolworth stock this month has enjoyed the longest period of consistent strength in some time. It has advanced nearly 15 per cent in market value with a broadening volume of activity evidenced. The improved action of the stock is attributed to evidence that the company's business has improved after a period or disappointment. Sales of the system last month gained 7.4 per cent over a year ago, the largest increase for that month since 1931. For the year to date the volume was 2.1 per cent greater than for the same period of 1935 contrasted with a decrease of 2.1 per cent from 1934 in the first five months of last year. Some time ago the company added higher priced merchandise to its line and is now understood to be experimenting with $1 items in certain locations.

U. S. Tax Bill Aids Investment Units

The federal tax bill has provoked friendly criticism from Distributors Group, Inc., which regards it as a "recognition of the principles of group investment" affording the advantages of wide diversification and specialized supervision. The bill recognizes the special character of such organizations and reduces the tax burden to a "negligible quantity." The bill permits mutual investment companies in computing their federal income tax to deduct from net income all dividends or distributions paid to their own shareholders, a bulletin from the Distributors Group points out. A tax is paid only on the balance remaining, if any, at the regular corporate rates.

City Bank Small Loans Increased

According to a reliable source, small personal loan operations of the National City Bank have been expanding since the lower borrowing rates were adopted about a year ago. The effective charge on these advances was reduced to a rate of 4 per cent annually. It is understood the change was made to enable the public to benefit from the lower money market and to serve to stimulate a "more business." In connection with the affairs of the institution reports have been circulated that plans are being worked out to retire all or part of the $50,000,000 preferred stock sold to the RFC and common stockholders in January, 1934. These reports have become more widespread since the Chase National Bank announced such a step a week ago. The National City management is considering a similar proposal but no decision has been reached.

25 Years Ago

New York, June 25 (INS)—Twenty-five years ago today Consolidated Gas Company reported operating revenues for year at $15,-336,597.

Department of Commerce reported sharp drop in imports of manufacturers' materials.

G. C. Barber, watch trust head, urged government ownership of railroads.

HOLD WELL

Labor Cost Is Above 1929

How have wage rates of the average steel worker fared during the past seven years? Consider the record of the largest steel company, the United States Steel Corporation.

In 1929 the labor cost of producing one ton of finished steel (payroll divided by production) was $27.63. In 1935 the labor cost was $34.52 per ton of finished steel.

Even at the low point of labor cost in 1933 of $28.10 per ton, it was forty-seven cents higher than in 1929.

From these facts it is apparent that the United States Steel Corporation has maintained wage rates, payrolls and employment despite shrinking business.

Total steel production dropped from 15,200,000 tons in 1929 to 3,900,000 tons in 1932, a decline of 74.4 per cent.

Payrolls during the same period declined 68 per cent and employment declined 38 per cent.

The bars in the lower section of the chart show the total steel production. The solid line shows the labor cost per ton of steel produced.

The bars in the upper section of the chart show the total number of employes. The solid line shows the average annual payroll.

SANE IDEAS RETURNING

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service

New York, June 25—An act of Providence in the form of unfavorable crop weather seems destined to support farm prices in the first season after the AAA program was scrapped.

From present indications, unplanned scarcity resulting from unfavorable weather in the grain belt will have the same bullish effect on farm prices as planned scarcity.

And there will be little protest against regimentation by the weather man.

If farm income remains up, there is every reason to expect continuance of general economic activity at the present high level, which appears to be at the rate of an annual national income of about 69,000 millions.

As business and employment expand, there will be a waning demand for political miracle workers. There will be renewed confidence on the part of the people in themselves and in their institutions.

Men will again know that material progress results from science and invention, rather than from vague talk about "social justice" by political spellbinders.

And the fallacies of the defeatist period are rejected, it is to be hoped that the country won't go back to the fantasies of the Old Deal—to the perversion of the money system by speculation at home and by international adventures overseas.

While the politicians are in the forefront, there is an attempt to work up synthetic excitement over the monopoly issue.

As a matter of fact, there is little monopoly in the United States. The existing anti-trust laws, if enforced, would meet the situation.

On the other hand, there has been considerable non-monopolistic concentration of economic power in certain industries.

In automobiles, three makers dominate the low priced field. Yet they compete intensively among themselves, each trying to outdo the other in perpetually giving better values to the public.

As a result the average profit per car is only two-seventeenths of the amount the motorist must pay in taxes for the privilege of driving his car on the road.

Likewise, while politicians rant and rave against chain stores, the chains continue to grow in popular favor among consumers. The explanation lies in their willingness to operate on an extremely low profit margin.

If the principal chains followed the methods of their less efficient competitors, bankruptcy would confront the entire profit margin and put them in the red.

Business men, great or big, should be encouraged if it tends constantly to create better living standards.

* * *

The monopoly problem will be a synthetic issue unless the internationalists succeed in breaking down our tariff barriers.

Our principal foreign competitors have not adopted similar anti-trust laws. In fact, they have encouraged monopolistic cartels, permitting them to charge home consumers high prices in order to subsidize them for price-cutting in export markets where they are undertaking to grow. Thus, with government aid, foreign cartels tend to raise prices against domestic consumers.

The logical outcome of pursuing the internationalist policies would be to drive the United States into control on a similar footing in world markets.

This would mean opening the doors to cartels, and ultimately breaking down our anti-trust laws.

Incidentally, America's balance of trade in goods was "favorable" in May for the first time since 1931. Of course, when invisible items—services—and transactions in precious metals are added, the so-called favorable balance disappears.

It is becoming increasingly clear that realists in the trading field are recognizing that foreign trade must be paid for in goods and services rather than in currency and credit arrangements.

N. E. Leaders Decry 'Scarcity Economy'

Decrying the "economy of scarcity" as a cure for industrial ills in New England, a poll of 32 leading executives made by the Industrial Committee of the New England Council prior to the 43rd quarterly meeting of the council at Rockland, Maine, tomorrow, indicates that increased production and decreased costs are to be the objective of a large section of New England industry in the period just ahead.

"We do not believe in the economy of scarcity," said Richard W. Sullivan, chairman of the council's industrial committee.

"While the complete application of the production methods of the automotive industry is not possible throughout New England industry, the principles of that industry as stated recently by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, are applicable here. Our committee has submitted Mr. Sloan's statement to key manufacturers and industrialists in every New England state and to date 32 executives have endorsed the Sloan formula unanimously.

"The way to increase employment," said Mr. Sloan, is to create more jobs by making existing goods and services constantly better—greater in value—lower in cost, but by reducing wages but by increased production through greater efficiency, advanced technology and better management. And not only by thus building better the thing of today, but by pioneering new things to build tomorrow and making things more attractive and desirable, we create wider markets."

The executives, three makers dominate the low priced field. Yet they compete intensively among themselves, each trying to outdo the other in perpetually giving better values to the public.

As a result the average profit per car is only two-seventeenths of the amount the motorist must pay in taxes for the privilege of driving his car on the road.

Bank Clearings Show Increase

New York, June 25 (AP)—Bank clearings in 22 leading cities during the week ended June 24 amounted to $5,572,681,000, an increase of 11.5 per cent over the $4,997,943,000, reported in the same week a year ago, according to Dun & Bradstreet. In the preceding week the gain over a year ago was 9.2 per cent.

At New York city the total was $2,545,138,000, compared with $2,302,325,000 last year, an increase of 7.4 per cent over a year ago.

The total for all cities in the latest week dropped $867,050,000 below that of the preceding week.

Gains were reported from virtually all of leading cities. The greatest percentage rises were in Atlanta, where they were 44.5 per cent ahead of last year; Dallas, with a 42.8 per cent gain, and New Orleans, which had a gain of 38.9 pbr cent.

Clearings in Chicago amounted to $380,000,000, compared with $230,-100,000 last year, a gain of 25.6 per cent.

WARREN BROS. To Pay Coupon

Directors of Warren Brothers Co. voted to approve the payment on July 1 next of one of the coupons in default on the company's convertible 6 per cent debentures of 1941 and 10-year 5½ per cent notes of 1937.

The coupon to be paid covers the six months to Sept. 1, 1933, on which date the interest was defaulted.

Cutten's Estate Faces U.S. Suit

Chicago, June 25 (AP)—Although the death of Arthur W. Cutten, famous market trader, wiped out federal charges of income tax evasion, his estate today faced a suit to collect $644,469 in payments and $322,235 in penalties for 1929, 1930 and 1933.

Funeral services for Cutten were planned for 2 p. m. (E. S. T.) today at St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Evanston and he at birthplace, Guelph, Ontario.

Named as active pallbearers were Ben R. Brown, Allan M. Clement, P. H. Lobdell, James McCulloch, William Ragland and Edward Schaack.

President Robert P. Boylan of the Chicago board of trade named 19 members to represent the board at the funeral.

Reports

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Shoe manufacturers hold the spotlight in this week's survey of New England business conditions with good reports from all branches of the industry.

Retail distribution increased slightly, and the outlook for the fall is good and as a result sentiment has improved all along the line.

Tanners are booking an increased volume of orders for all grades of leather and the price situation appears more satisfactory, according to Dun & Bradstreet. Hides and skins are selling fairly well with steady prices the feature. And finally shoe manufacturers themselves are much busier and quite well supplied with orders for several weeks to come.

Much in the manner of the lone soldier seeking allies, we call attention of readers to the recent Iron Age report on the steel industry. We have consistently contended that the industry's longer term outlook was nowhere near as rosy as immediate prospects. Few have agreed with us and some others said that the third quarter price advances had not resulted in abnormal placing of forward orders. At the same time the labor situation is none too good and there are indications of hostility on the part of the federal government toward the industry. However, Iron Age finds these things very real and makes no bones about it.

Chart Picture—Chrysler . . . Whose technical action was last outlined here on June 18 . . . At which time a dip of two or three points was suggested as a possibility . . . And readers were duly warned to watch for signs of dry-up of offerings . . . Also shorts were told that a crossing of 99 was the danger signal . . . The stock subsequently has had a smart move . . . And now has a large following . . . The high-flying auto issue is not to be surprised if profit taking is likely soon . . . To us it seems the chief one is the outside for this phase of the move . . . Assuming a middle price of 111 a subsequent dip to 103-105 would be normal . . . The downside area is likely, even though our upside estimate is off a point or so.

In a market as confusing as this one necessarily is, since the prime movers in the trend toward higher prices are stocks whose strength is drawn from those concerned with the questionable bullishness of a hodge-podge tax bill, there must pick their spots. Those who turned toward rails, as we did, have been disappointed, though hope is definitely present, but not been overexploited and trade reports are favorable. As for the high-flying recent favorites, we will continue to abun them.

Ticker Talk—Texas and Jersey are our favorite oils . . . Anaconda will do for the coppers . . . Although we are told the big part of the selling in Kennecott is over . . . In the next few days watch for the District of Columbia Supreme Court ruling on the Railroad Retirement Act of 1935. A decision invalidating it would supply what the rails need . . . And, of course, the opposite if the act is found valid . . . But the position of the rail industry is sound . . . The Fenner & Beane Industry Service says today the best full-year rail earnings since 1930 are in prospect . . . And rails are 1936 favorites . . . If so one seems right in assuming the market is allowing liberally for increased expenses.

COTTON WEAK

At Opening

New York, June 25 (INS) — The cotton market opened weak again today with losses ranging to 50 cents a bale in initial trading.

July was in the van of the decline as further profit-taking, favorable crop weather conditions and lower Liverpool cables brought in a fair amount of selling.

OIL STOCKS SCORE GAINS

New York, June 25—Oils and a few specialties gave first aid to a stumbling stock market today, but weakness of steels was a serious recovery handicap.

Spot news had little in it to stem the rally which started Wednesday. Sellers, however, took command after a steady to firm opening in which Chrysler and a number of others reached new 6-year peaks. The activity was small near the fourth hour.

Chrysler got up around 2 points at one time. It pared this later. Bucking the profit taking pressure for gains of fractions to a point or more were such issues as Standard Oil of New Jersey, Barnsdall, Consolidated Oil, Standard Oil of California, Socony, Pure Oil and Texas Corp.

Others ahead were Spicer Mfg., Motor Products, American Smelting, National Biscuit, United States Rubber, Harvester and U. S. Smelting.

Down as much as 2 were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, National Steel, Midland Steel Products, Montgomery Ward, International Nickel, American Telephone, Western Union, American Water Works, Consolidated Edison, New York Central, J. I. Case, Gold Dust, Du Pont, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, U. S. Rubber, and Anaconda.

Bank Clearings

Recovery sentiment predominated in the boardrooms prior to the start of dealings.

Analysts were cheered by another upturn in bank clearings throughout the country. The total for 22 cities was 11.5 per cent ahead of the same period last year. In the preceding week the gain amounted to 8.2 per cent.

A flaw in the generally bright market picture was given in the action of the Federal Trade Commission in outlawing agreements among tin plate manufacturers not to sell or quote prices to jobbers and makers of tin cans and other containers. Most of the leading steel companies were named in the desist order.

The threening of French financial tension was shown in the statement of the Bank of France which disclosed a loss of some $40,000,000 in gold during the week of June 19, compared with a loss of $64,000,000 the week before.

The franc, at the begining of foreign exchange transactions, was off .06% of a cent at 6.59⅛, and sterling was ¼ of a cent firmer at $5.02⅜.

Comments of Brokers

It seems best to maintain a conservative position until there are some signs that business activity will not recede materially, writes N. T. Hyde, Jr.—Josephthal & Co.

Market sentiment is becoming exceedingly constructive among traders, and with activity becoming more in evidence in the Pittsburgh priced shares it is probable that volume of trading over the next few days will show a material increase—R. S. Feigus—Prentice, Bisanz & Brady.

It is certain that second quarter reports are going to make a better showing than for any similar period in many years.—G. M. P. Murphy & Co.

In so far as a general market policy is concerned, those who accumulated stocks during the past month should refrain from becoming over-extended at this stage of the advance—F. E. Molloy—Hornblower & Weeks.

From a trading viewpoint believe there is room for a worthwhile move now in principal oils and coppers.—H. D. Comer—Paine, Webber & Co.

The performance of the list at about their April highs should furnish a reasonably dependable cue as to their subsequent action.—J. S. Bache & Co.

ECZEMA

Mrs. Gertrude Phillips, 106 Broad St., Weymouth, Mass., says: "I had suffered from ECZEMA of the hands for eight years. Specialists and local doctors could do nothing for me. The torture of this skin trouble was indescribable. My son told me of Dr. Walsh, and I had him treat me. Now I am well and can make this statement hoping others who suffer as I did may profit by my experience." Signed Mrs. Gertrude Phillips.

"OUT DAM-NED—FACTS!"

This is the burden of the Raw Deal apologia, delivered Tuesday night by the temporary chairman of the Roosevelt Party convention.

The country will read with slack interest and a good deal of weariness, the oft repeated refrain of the so-called achievements of the Roosevelt Administration, not only in every phase of our social and economic life, but "spiritual," as well.

The country was not unprepared even for President Roosevelt's elevation to a position from which he looks down, with condescension and a little patronizingly, upon Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Cleveland, Wilson, and even George Washington.

• • •

THE speaker did NOT touch upon the extent to which our recovery lags behind that of the relatively poor nations of Europe.

Nor did he, in repeating the violated pledge of the 1932 platform, that "our farmers may have the full benefit of the domestic market," refer to our UNPRECEDENTED IMPORTATION from Europe of every species of farm product and livestock, TO THE DETRIMENT AND COST OF THE AMERICAN FARMER.

His treatment of the national credit and the gigantic borrowings of the Federal government was also characterized by the disingenuous reasoning which we instinctively expect from a New Deal spokesman.

In referring to the Treasury issues of bonds, and the ease with which their subscription has been accomplished, he did not mention the fact that these bonds have been issued to the country's banks under what amounts to governmental coercion to subscribe for them.

• • •

TURNING from these shaky and easily refuted claims to achievement, he comes to the significant passages of his speech, as an official utterance of the Roosevelt Party,—its hostility to the Constitution, its disrespect for the Supreme Court and its definite purpose to provide for a vast increase of centralized Federal power, at the expense of the present powers of the States—declaring that "IT IS ESSENTIAL THAT THE POWERS OF GOVERNMENT BE EXERTED IN A NEW WAY ON THE DAILY LIFE OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE."

As to the Supreme Court, the intention to leap upon it is disclosed at the opening of the speech,—"We meet in the fullness of national responsibility in ALL BRANCHES of the government SAVE ONE!"

In another paragraph he upbraids the Court for casting aside such legislation as the NRA, "by the rigors of technicality and the application of antiquated economic predilections."

Whether the desired concentration of augmented power in the national government is to be effected by an amendment of the Constitution, or by what Professor Frankfurter calls "legislative attrition"—which means the passing and re-passing of unconstitutional measures despite their rejection by the Supreme Court—or by "packing" the Court with Raw Deal yes-men, is not disclosed.

The hostility, however, is unconcealed—and also the lurking and sinister purpose to circumvent the Court and the Constitution.

• • •

NO KEYNOTER of the Roosevelt Party is expected to make a speech without a mob appeal to CLASS HATRED.

The appeal is here, and in phrases already made familiar by the President.

How DISGRACEFUL this is! How UN-AMERICAN!

It will soon receive, we hope, a DESERVED REBUKE FROM THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

It gives, however, to THIS address the intended character of a keynote speech—THE TRUE KEYNOTE of THE RAW DEAL!

Maine Wars On Reds

A "COMMITTEE OF 100," finding proof of Communist activity in Maine, arms for action, declares war on all un-American movements within the State. Governor Louis J. Brann, busy now with Democratic convention affairs, promises support.

Communists, also arming, defy the Committee and its patriotic endeavors. A flag in South Portland is stoned. Children refuse to salute school flags. Subversive organizations, unloosing floods of propaganda, attack the government, openly. Aliens, many deportable, brazenly spread their Marxian doctrines.

The "Committee of 100," seeing, acting and ready for a showdown, should become the "Committee of 500,000." There are that many friends of liberty in Maine.

"As Maine goes, so goes the nation" has been the cry in political wars for years. Now, newly significant, it may herald another kind of war, one vital to the preservation of America as the greatest, freest country in the world.

As Reckless With Your States as With Your Dollars

HE THROWS THEM BOTH AWAY

Copyright, 1936, Chicago Herald and Examiner.

The Tammany Idea of the West

JIM FARLEY, formerly Tammany Hall prize fight commissioner and now United States Postmaster-General and also generalissimo of the Democratic Party, insolently slurred the people of TWENTY-ONE GREAT STATES in his Grand Rapids speech. He asserted it would be a "perilous experiment" to elect the "Governor of a typical prairie State" to the Presidency.

The sweep of Jim Farley's BRUSH OF RIDICULE across the map of the United States, through the very heart of America, is vividly portrayed in the above drawing by Cartoonist Dorman H. Smith.

This picture tells, better than words, where the PEOPLE, object of Mr. Farley's contempt, make their homes.

While Mr. Farley obviously sought to belittle Governor Landon as the "Governor of a typical prairie State," he was in reality spreading the black paint of ridicule upon all the people living in every one of these twenty-one States.

Mr. Farley was not content to daub Governor Landon with his sticky brush, or even to besmirch the State of Kansas. He included ALL THE STATES of which Kansas is representative.

The tide of resentment against this expression of NEW YORK BOWERY BOY SECTIONAL PREJUDICE is running high, not only in the States directly attacked, but throughout the nation.

New York may affect to despise the rest of the country, but New York will find that it cannot run the rest of the country.

The New York Times refers to Chairman Farley as a typical city slicker.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, June 25—The Gene Tunneys have made their marriage one of the happiest here-about. Their devotion is one of the sagas of the fashionable Connecticut countryside, where they spend most of their time. They are in each other's company constantly.

Tunney has an office on Park avenue and when there phones his wife every hour or so. They accept few invitations and their most frequent visits are to the nearby home of the Bernard Gimbles. Their Connecticut estate is heavily wooded and they do much tramping with their dogs.

Mrs. Tunney's health, so frail for a year or more, is now excellent and she is able to keep pace with the strenuous activities of the ex-champion. The Tunney children, too, take up much of their time for they are the fondest and most devoted of parents.

There are three boys now, Gene Lauder, aged 5, James Joseph, Jr., aged two and a baby, born a few days ago. The Tunneys had hoped the new baby would be a girl. The pair spend their winters at Hobe Sound, near Palm Beach, but far enough away to escape the social whirl.

Molly and Nora is the name of one of the little upstairs gown shops in West 46th street. A prosperous botique that caters only to shopgirls. All day it is closed but opens at 5 o'clock, home going time, for the rush of trade and remains open as late as customers keep coming in. Molly and Nora aim to sell snappy styles within the reach of the shopgirls' purse.

Narcissus note: Ibsen, the playwright, used to sit for hours on a park bench looking at himself in a mirror he kept inside his top hat. I never see any of his plays without constantly thinking of this.

Dean Cornwell grinds his own wheat for bread, whole wheat bread, and those who have sampled it say it is superb. Tastes as though sprinkled with nuts. He does his own grinding through a coffee mill. Incidentally, Dean's name is misspelled oftenest next to Reinald Werrenrath's and Gelett Burgess'.

I know a cultured and elderly gentleman who has been secretly stage struck most his life. Although a regular patron of the theater, he has never met an actress, for he is painfully shy. He is not a seeker of romance, rather is his enthusiasm for artistic expression.

In recent years his admiration settled on Harriet Hoctor, the dancer. One evening he saw her on his way to dinner turn into a quiet little eating place for the early evening real stage folk must eat. He went in too, sat a few tables away and eyed her when she was not looking. He mussed up the food but didn't eat a bite as he was to have dinner at home.

For a dozen evenings thereafter he followed the same procedure, ordering a dinner he never touched and gazing surreptitiously at a devoted family man, no one enjoys the reports of his vague infatuations more than his wife. There's a short story idea there for someone.

Arnold Reuben, the cafe man, is used to the early morning starting now, but for years it was a great annoyance. He is generally on duty greeting customers until early sunup and then, Tuxedo clad, he goes for a brisk hour's walk before turning in. To early risers, a Tuxedo is something to cause head turning. To them it suggests only one thing—a night on the loose. Almost every big hotel has its dawn and weaving quota of arrivals in dinner jackets or full dress. Scrub-women love to see them. Often they toss coins.

Thingumabobs: Rupert Hughes works best when bucking sleep with strong coffee . . . Nancy Carroll is an expert at truckin' . . . Major Bowes writes everything personally he voices over the radio . . . Frank Adams, magazine writer, runs a movie theater in his home town of Wabaningo, Mich.

"Dear Govt."

By Winston Norman

Convenshun Hall
Filadelphia
June 25

Dear Mr. Roosevelt:

Well Mr. President, I am writin this letter with one hand & chearin for Mr. Farley with the other. Us Democrats has been settin here at the Convenshun for 2 days, but there isn't nobody which knows the reason why.

A lot of oratory sure has flown under the dam since Tuesday, and we are havin a lot of fun attackin Gov. Landon. But like the man next to me says, "It ain't fair," he says, "Mr. Farley told us this was goin to be a dirty campain, but Gov. Landon won't fight dirty, so the dirt-slingin will have to be done by Mr. Farley & the WPA."

Say Mr. Roosevelt, I been lookin at the sleepy faces we got here, and it give me an idea. I seen where a rich man over in India hasn't slep for the last 2½ years, if anybody will put him to sleep he will give them a $100,000.

Well, why don't he come to our Democrat Convenshun? It would give him 3 days of peaseful sleep, and we could use that $100,000 in our campain, now that them rich Liberty League people has refuse to help elect you.

There isn't nothin happen right this minnit, except fotographers runnin around to take pitchers. By golly, they work so fast they got your pitcher in the paper before it was even took.

There they are, snappin away at Mr. Farley. They haven't got no respeck for nobody.

P. S. Mr. President, that is a fine Platform you writ for us.

Of course there was a couple of Democrats with a different idea, but anybody with a idea would of spoilt your party, so they was soon shushed by the Shushin Comittee. Your Shushin Comittee is workin very good Mr. President.

In closeing, I got a supprize for you. We are goin to nomanate you a 100 per cent, and then we will all go home and explane things to our wife.

Yours truly,
W. NORMAN
Unemployed Deligate.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Strange, isn't it, that you're never perfectly contented . . . never perfectly happy?

Yes, you pretend to be . . . put up a swell front. And often you're honestly bewildered yourself at this secret discontent which persists in spite of seemingly fine breaks.

Why CAN'T you be satisfied? Time and again you've thought you were going to be.

Why, you'd have sworn that if you could ever have a car of your own, a little house, a decent job, someone to love, you'd be blissful for keeps.

Yet you've had some or all of these things; seen many a dream come true.

But you've never yet been happy clear through—have you?

Always that strange, inner misery went on and on . . .

And always you fought it. For you believed, as we all believe, that Life should be happy. If it wasn't happy, something was wrong. Successful people were contented. Discontent was a disease—or a sign there wasn't any God in heaven, any justice on earth.

A UNIVERSAL WORRY

Yes, you'd feared and hated your own discontent . . . fought against it . . . felt that you were "being done dirt" somehow.

And you still have that feeling, haven't you? Indeed, this problem of your unhappiness underlies every other problem in life.

Doesn't matter who you are—master mind, multi-millionaire, Hollywood star or plain ditch digger—that's the question you puzzle over most of your time. That's the question that ties you closest and quickest to all other human beings who are wondering, too—

"Why can't I be happy?"

Everybody everywhere wondering all the time why they can't be happy. And all the time the answer is plain before them. There it lies—right in their own discontent—the answer to their misery.

Because GROWING things weren't meant to be contented.

LIVING things weren't meant to be happy.

The human spirit is not a happiness-producing machine. It was made for prouder adventure than pleasure, wider horizons than joy.

THE VOICE OF LIFE

You may have moments of content, glimpses of happiness—but you weren't given life for those glimpses. You were given life to LIVE.

Your discontent is not a disease nor a disaster. It is the healthy reaction of a growing spirit. It is the voice of life in you crying—"SCRAM!"

Discontent is actually your motive power. It is the thing which makes you go—keeps you going. You are as tall, as deep, as wide as the measure of your own dissatisfaction.

Stop crying about your discontent and begin studying it. How are you using it? Are you letting it drivel off into a wallow of self-pity. OR ARE YOU USING IT TO SWEEP YOU UP AND ONWARD TO THE STARS?
